"America's Finest"

Peonies

for

Early May and Decoration Day

Gould's Select

This is the age of specialization, and through specialization men have evolved better products in all lines of endeavor. We are successful Peony specialists, and for years the Gould's "Selects" have been an example to the florists of the country that our claim, "America's Finest Peonies," is justified. This is true simply because we have specialized.

ORDER TODAY

From A. L. RANDALL CO., Chicago

The earliest blooms are cut from our most Southern Peony Farms. The next crop is produced from a farm a little farther north, and others at still higher latitudes. Gould's Peonies are therefore in crop always under ideal climatic conditions. The unusual service that we give you in growing Peonies is rounded out by the marketing service for Gould's "Select" Peonies, offered exclusively through

A. L. RANDALL COMPANY, 180 N. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

On account of the unseasonably cool weather, our cut for Mothers' Day was not so large as we expected, but

We Shall Cut in Great Quantity All Through May.

Place Memorial Day Orders at Randall's NOW.

FIRST

in Variety of Uses

The uses of White Trucks are so varied and widespread that there is literally no transportation undertaking in any line of business in which they have not had a part.

in Long Mileage Records

There are numerous owners' records of 100,000 miles, many of 200,000 miles and some of 300,000 miles.

in High Earning Power

The earning power of White Trucks results from low costs and high performance, without a parallel in motor trucking so far as we have any records.

in Fleet Installations

No fleet record of truck owners has ever been published which compares in extent or progressive growth with the White Annual Roll Call.

in Service to Owners

Millions have been invested in White owner service and factory facilities built up throughout the country, which have taken years to perfect.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

SEEK RELIEF FROM NEW ROSE SCOURGE

From a bothersome pest on strawberry plants, a little beetle has become in the last four years a scourge the course of which is dreaded by the growers who have suffered its ravages. Unless effective means of checking it are discovered, it may become an even greater menace.

FOUR years ago a new kind of insect appeared in several of the greenhouses in Bucks and Montgomery counties, in the state of Pennsylvania. When first noticed it was in the form of a small beetle that fed on the tender young shoots of the roses. At first no special attention was given to the beetle. The fumigations with concentrated extract of tobacco were increased and syringing with cold water under pressure became more frequent; that was all. It was not until the next summer, when the beetles reappeared in greater numbers, that the rose growers became thoroughly alarmed. Then the fumigations and syringings were increased. Other measures were tried without avail. Beds, even whole houses, of fine roses were ruined by the scourge.

The beetle appeared to climb from the bed up the plant to a tender young shoot. There it cut the bark and sucked the sap. Then the shoot withered and died. Like all such pests, the beetles multiplied with extraordinary rapidity. Their number was legion. The growers did their best, but they were facing defeat.

Ask State's Aid.

At this stage of the battle the state authorities were appealed to for aid. Parker Thayer Barnes stated that the scourge was the strawberry beetle, Paria canella, and that it could be wiped out by spraying with a strong solution of arsenate of lead in water. It has hitherto attacked strawberries outdoors, but has now transferred its attention to roses indoors. It is not especially dangerous outdoors, because its season is short. It is extremely dangerous indoors, because its season is virtually the entire year and because it is exceedingly difficult to exterminate.

To a man the growers tried the arsenate of lead method, with results that varied all the way from moderate success to total failure. Where the beetle was not bad, the solution full strength and the spraying frequent, there did seem to be results. Where conditions were not so favorable there appeared to be no results at all. James W. Heacock put some rose beetles in a bottle containing arsenate of lead and water and kept them on his desk. He insists that they only died of old age.

More Beetles for Battle.

Theoretically, spraying the tender young shoots with arsenate of lead was all right. The beetles were hard-shelled and could only be destroyed by poisoning their food. Practically there were too many beetles. Many might be destroyed; there were many more to take their places. Hand-picking was resorted to, steady, persistent hand-picking. It was useless. There was not the slightest evidence of diminution in the numbers of the attacking army. The Florex Gardens employed several children to pick beetles and put them in bottles. The night man counted them. An amazing number were caught, destroyed and paid for without any apparent diminution in the attacking force. What did seem to matter most was the season. The beetles were worst in summer and gradually disappeared with the advance of fall.

Thus the battle was waged with varying success until the close of last year. A careful survey of the field showed that some of the growers were pretty badly used up. Others had suffered a little. Some had escaped entirely. It was those growers who are considered the most progressive who had suffered most, those who had brought new varieties from elsewhere and with these new varieties had unwittingly brought the accursed beetle. It was supposed to be in the form of larvæ in the balls of earth surrounding the plant. The beetle seemed to prefer certain varieties of roses to others, some varieties being badly chewed while others near-by were only slightly attacked. The fancy varieties seemed to suffer most.

It was at this stage of the struggle that the growers were reinforced unexpectedly by the United States government coming to their aid. The Secretary of Agriculture sent a representative, Ernest L. Chambers, to Doylestown, to aid the rose growers in the affected counties. Mr. Chambers did not profess to understand how to destroy the beetle. He knew something about its habits; he learned more by study. He tried every remedy the growers suggested, carefully watching the result, and he evolved certain theories as the result of his observations.

Theories.

These theories are that as the rose beetle larvæ hatch in the soil during the spring, they may be destroyed by chemically treating the soil at that season; that the hard-shelled beetles themselves may be best reached by the use of hydrocyanic acid gas in the houses of roses that are to be carried over, the gas to be liberated just after the plants are cut back, to avoid injuring them. It is essential that the house be perfectly clean at this time to insure success. Another remedy that is of special value now came out in a rather funny way. Mr. Chambers went to Yardley to see the greenhouse of Malcolm Franklin. There he was met by the manager, James J. Curran. Mr. Curran teasingly told Mr. Chambers that he knew a remedy for the beetle, but would not tell it. Mr. Chambers indignantly told Mr. Curran that if he knew something that would benefit his fellow florists and would not tell it, he

GROWERS ALARMED

So severe have the depredations of the strawberry or rose beetle become that a leading grower states: "This is a most serious pest and is getting beyond control. Indeed, no control for it has as yet been found. Rose growers the country over are feeling great concern over what its ravages may be a few years hence if nothing can be found to kill it."

ought to be kicked out of the florists' association. This so nettled Mr. Curran that he said he used wood ashes every ten days and tobacco dust every ten days on the soil during the spring; that is, one every five days. Mr. Chambers said other growers were trying wood ashes and that he was trying the two in the way named.

The idea is that the lye in the wood ashes destroys the larvæ of the rose beetle, as the lye is extremely strong. The tobacco dust is used to prevent injury to the roots of the plants. A good watering between each application is important. Of course, wood ashes can only be used in moderation.

DESCRIPTION OF ROSE BEETLE.

From Entomologist's View.

Mindful as always of the commercial interests as well as the amateur interests more largely represented in the American Rose Society, the editor of the 1920 American Rose Annual, just off the press, has included in the volume short articles on the new pest of greenhouse roses, by two government specialists, C. A. Weigel and J. G. Sanders. That of the former is particularly of value, since Mr. Weigel, who belongs to the bureau of entomology of the Department of Agriculture at Washington, describes the nature of the injury and the appearance and habits of the beetle so that it may be recognized. In the Rose Annual article, he states:

"The strawberry root-worm or leaf-beetle, Paria canella, Fab., has been long recognized as a serious enemy of strawberries and raspberries, and occasionally of the apple, crab-apple, juniper and several other plants.

"Since the reports were received of its injury to roses in greenhouses a careful survey has been inaugurated in order to establish its exact status under greenhouse conditions. As a result, we have recently secured positive evidence that this insect is now of prime importance to many of the commercial rose growers of the United States. At present it is causing much anxiety in several of the largest rose growing establishments, and in some cases has practically ruined their entire stock. While one or two florists report that they have had experience with this pest for several years, the authentic records indicate that it has been exceptionally injurious during the last two seasons only.

How Damage Is Done.

"The damage to rose foliage is caused mainly by the full-grown beetle and does not differ materially from the injury done to the strawberry. The entire foliage is badly perforated and ragged, presenting a shot-hole appearance (Fig. 1), as a result of their voracious feeding. These more or less rounded holes, which vary in size and shape, are so close together that the plants look as though loads of shots had been fired into the foliage at short range.

"The beetles show a marked preference for the new and young shoots, which they badly scar by their peculiar manner of feeding, giving them an unsightly appearance. Ultimately, the entire growth is badly stunted from the gradual killing of the affected parts, thereby reducing the commercial value of the plants.

Appearance of Beetle.

"The full-grown, adult beetle (Fig. 2) is about one-eighth inch long and oval in shape. It is quite variable in color, so that several colored varieties are known, ranging from wholly black to yellowish brown, but ordinarily it has four spots on the wing covers. The common variety is brown in general color, with black markings. The entire insect is highly polished, and the wing-covers are ornamented with longitudinal rows of minute pits.

"The larva (Fig. 2.), or grub, is about the same size, and when full-grown it resembles a white grub, the same as is found under sod, except in size. It is found close to the surface of the ground, feeding on the roots of the rose plants.

"When the larva is full grown, transformation takes place within a smooth-walled cell which is constructed in the soil for that purpose. Finally, it emerges as the full-grown beetle, the female of which lays the eggs for the future generation. As far as is now known, the adults hibernate under mulch or other convenient shelter during the winter months. It has been noticed by the florists who have reported damage that the beetles put in their first appearance about the latter part of May, or early in June, and reach their maximum numbers during July. Their feeding may continue throughout the month of August or even later. There may be several broods annually under glass.

"The beetles are rarely seen and have never been observed feeding during the brighter hours of the day. Occasionally they may be collected in dead or dried and curled-up leaves, or under debris among the surface soil. Beginning at dusk and extending to the early morning hours, they may readily be observed feeding on the plants. On being disturbed they play 'possum.'

Control Methods.

"In the preliminary control experiments conducted by the writer, with the assistance of E. L. Chambers, of the federal bureau of entomology, it was found that the arsenicals or stomach poisons, which are ordinarily employed to control leaf-eating insects of this type, were quite ineffective.

"The best results thus far obtained were by the use of hydrocyanic acid gas against the adult beetles. Until further progress has been made in the life history studies and habits of this new rose pest in greenhouses, it is recommended to fumigate at night only with the above gas, using two ounces of sodium cyanide for every thousand cubic feet of space which is to be fumigated and giving exposure of two hours. The destruction of the adults at this time should forestall a recurrence the following spring and summer, since a large percentage of the females are killed many months prior to the normal time of egg-laying. Incidentally, as the insects occur in their maximum numbers during June and July, the above treatments fit in conveniently in normal cultural methods.

"Growers are also advised not to bring sod or soil into their houses in which strawberries or raspberries, either wild or cultivated, have been growing, because the larva or grub stage occurs in the soil, and such soil is likely to be the source of an infestation in the greenhouses.

"The bureau of entomology is now actively engaged in a thorough study of the life history, the habits and the best means of controlling this new rose pest. It is therefore requested that all specimens of a suspicious nature, or which may conform with the above description, be immediately mailed to the writer for examination, addressed to C. A. Weigel, Bureau of Entomology, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C."

SAVES PRICE OF BULBS.

"We have learned to grow Paper Whites without buying new bulbs every year as we used to do," state L. M. Smith & Co., Laurel, Del. "We plant our Paper Whites close together in flats four inches deep, in good, rich garden soil—no fresh manure—and place them outside until the weather feels almost cool enough for frost, keeping them well watered all the time. Then we bring them into the greenhouse and place the flats under the sunny side of the benches. When the plants bloom, we cut only the flower stems, no foliage. We allow that to remain until it dies down and gradually dry off the plants. After the foliage is dead, we place the flats in a cool, dry place until September 1, then shake them out and repot them in new soil and new flats. In this way one can save the bulbs from year to year. The same treatment may be used for freesias."

A MESSAGE TO GROWERS

By J. FRED AMMANN.

IF IN an article setting forth the reasons for and the purpose of the National Flower Growers' Association, I make comparisons by mentioning other producers who have met with great success in organization, no doubt the skeptic will at once say, "Oh, you cannot compare their product with ours; their problems are so different from ours," etc. I want to say in answer to such critics, before I go any farther, that if our product has become a regular commodity on the American market, the marketing of that product can be favorably compared with any other. Whether it comes under the class of perishable, luxury or non-essential makes no difference. It is nevertheless an American product and, I am sure we shall all agree, a regular commodity; millions of dollars are invested in the producing and marketing of it.

Uncle Sam tells us that ninety per cent of all the money invested in the flower business is in the producing end of it. Now, what are you doing in an intelligent, organized way to market that product? You have built your greenhouses and equipment, made the ninety per cent investment, then trusted to a disorganized market to dispose of the product for you to a few naturally sentimental, flower-loving people. That went all right as long as our business was in its infancy, production limited and a natural sentiment sufficient to create a demand equal to the supply. We have, however, passed the stage of a sufficient natural sentiment and it now becomes necessary to begin to create sentiment by education and that means publicity or advertising. We already have ample proof of the success of this plan in a small way.

As Others Did.

This paper, however, is not a treatise on publicity. The National Flower Growers' Association has embodied in its constitution as one of its objects the marketing of its product by means of publicity; but that is only one of the many objects for which this organization is founded.

A few comparisons will help to show the value of organization. There are in the United States today many other producers who, not many years ago, had the same troubles which the American flower growers are facing today. Among them are the orange growers, apple growers and nut growers of the Pacific coast and, to get nearer home, the milk producers and some plant and lettuce growers in the central states. Their way of marketing their product was slipshod and antiquated, as ours is today, before they were properly organized, but things have changed with them since they got together. I shall not take the time to relate their progress here; anyone can learn the history of the progress which these producers, as well as many others who are thoroughly organized, have made.

As with Milk, So with Flowers.

Take the milk producers, "just farmers, of course," but today wise and intelligent farmers. Only a few years back their product was shipped to the city market, some of it on commission, some of it otherwise, as most of ours is today, Mr. Grower, and at the end of the month they would get their returns and then find out, and not until then, what their product brought, as many growers do today.

But now it is different with the milk producers. They are organized and so are the milk dealers in the cities, and at the close of every month the boards of the two organizations meet and make the price for their product for the preceding month. "Some business system, isn't it?" That is only one instance and only one of the benefits in that particular case obtained through organization. There are many others. They know now what it costs to produce their milk. They produce a better grade of milk. It sells according to quality and is strictly and uniformly graded. There is no more watering of milk. Honesty must prevail among both producers and dealers and much more good is accomplished.

I have been asked many times to give an outline of just what will be done or what will be the work of this new growers' organization. I can best sum up the whole by saying that when the growers once get thoroughly organized they can do whatever work they will undertake to do in a just and fair way. To try to enumerate all the many things that can and should be done would take a volume. First of all, we should create a more staple market for our product. Uniform prices and wages, at least within the local territories, can and should be established. Once a year, preferably in the fall, an invoice of every greenhouse range should be made, records of which should be on file in both the local and national offices to help in regulating the planting of various crops. The matter of insurance protection should be handled for the benefit of members through the national body. Ours is a most hazardous business and without fire or wind storm protection. The matter of credits, grading stock, fuel, labor and numerous other important items of interest and benefit to all the trade can be successfully carried on through organization. Those are just some of the many reasons why we should organize.

Father of the National Flower Growers' Association.

The Locals.

The next question is how to organize. I shall just touch briefly here on the plan as laid down in our proposed national constitution and by-laws; these will in a few days be ready for the printer, and then copies can be had upon application.

It is not intended that the membership of the national body shall consist of individual members, but rather be grouped in units called locals. These locals will be organized in the various communities covering a specified territory and will work under a charter granted by the national body. Individuals or firms will hold membership in the locals. Each local will be an organization within itself, adopting its own by-laws and rules to fit its own local conditions, subject to certain conditions set forth in the national constitution and the approval, of course, of the national body. Each local elects a set of delegates whose duty it is to attend the national convention, there to elect national officers and a national board of directors, consisting of fifteen members, by whom the principal business of the national body is transacted.

We are here again benefiting by the experience of some other successful organizations, which have set the pace for coöperation, and we are modeling our form of organization on theirs. The time was when the leaders in our great parent society looked upon these offspring organizations with fear and trembling lest the old S. A. F. might lose prestige. That time is no more. The old society, of which we are all so proud, is stronger today than ever and, much like the head of any large family, is broadening out with the greater responsibilities and will no doubt do wonders for the various branches of our profession collectively. Individually, however, we are growing too large for the S. A. F. to take care of us; hence we must branch out into individual organizations and thereby not only strengthen ourselves, but also strengthen our sister organizations, the F. T. D., the American Carnation Society, the American Rose Society, the Chrysanthemum Society of America and the others, along with the parent society as well.

Coöperation's Opportunity.

We, the growers, the foundation of the whole trade, must get together. The call is to us. The National Flower Growers' Association is being ushered into existence at a most auspicious time, when all true Americans want more justice and coöperation. It has the unanimous endorsement of the executive boards of the S. A. F., the F. T. D., the American Carnation Society and many other organizations, along with the good will of the entire trade press. So, come on, growers, measure up to your responsibility by taking advantage of this golden opportunity to elevate your business and to better your own condition, as well as that of your employees and the other branches of your profession, by coöperation in a thoroughly businesslike national flower growers' association.

BATTLING BEETLE

BEETLE QUARANTINE LAID.

Affects New Jersey.

The quarantine on account of the Japanese beetle has just been published as effective April 1. The hearing on the quarantine, held at Washington about two months ago, excited the interest of the trade because of the size of some of the trade interests involved and the delay of the federal authorities in extending to trade products an embargo that had affected farm products for a year and a half. The presence of the Japanese beetle in a portion of New Jersey—including the townships of Delran, Chester, Cinnaminson, Palmyra, Mount Laurel and Riverside and the borough of Riverton, in Burlington county, and the townships of Pensauken and Delaware and the borough of Merchantville, in Camden county—has caused the Federal Horticultural Board to forbid the movement interstate from this area of, among other items, nursery, ornamental and greenhouse stock and all other plants, including bulbs and cut flowers.

Imposes Federal Inspection.

The quarantine, however, does not mean the complete shutting off of shipments from this region. Individual farms, districts or nurseries in this area may, if they are found free from the insect, obtain a certificate to authorize the shipment of products.

Also, such shipments intended for interstate movement as come from infested districts that cannot be certificated as clean may be allowed to go to their destination if a federal inspector finds them free from the beetle. This will mean that such establishments as are in this area must have all shipments bound for points outside the state inspected before they can be sent out. Though this will add to the work somewhat, it will not curtail the output of the nurseries in this part of New Jersey unless a large proportion of shipments are condemned. Since all charges for storage, cartage and labor incident to inspection, other than the services of the inspectors, are to be paid by the shippers, this quarantine will cause an added expense to the establishment affected.

In the case of the largest establishment affected, Henry A. Dreer, Inc., at Riverton, N. J., the quarantine has made no change as regards shipment of orders, which are going out precisely as usual. The company's own inspection of outgoing stock is not less strict than the government's; so the government's men serve merely to verify for official purposes the company's O. K. on outgoing shipments.

Text of Ruling.

This quarantine is known as Quarantine No. 40, superseding No. 35, issued on farm products only in September, 1918. It reads as follows:

The fact has been determined by the Secretary of Agriculture, and notice is hereby given, that an injurious insect, the Japanese beetle, Popillia japonica, Newm., not heretofore widely distributed within and throughout the United States, exists in a portion of the state of New Jersey.

Now, therefore, I, J. R. Riggs, Acting Secretary of Agriculture, under authority conferred by section 8 of the plant quarantine act approved August 20, 1912 (37 Stat., 315), as amended by the act of Congress approved March 4, 1917 (39 Stat., 1134, 1165), do hereby quarantine the territory hereinafter described as infested by the Japanese beetle, and by this notice of quarantine No. 40 do order that (1) farm, garden and orchard products of all kinds, including fresh or perishable crops, such as green corn, tomatoes, beans, peas, cantaloupes, watermelons, grapes, raspberries, blackberries, cherries, peaches, apples and all other fresh fruits and vegetables; (2) grain and forage crops of all kinds; (3) nursery, ornamental and greenhouse stock, and all other plants, including bulbs and cut flowers; and (4) soil, compost and manure other than fresh manure, shall not be moved or allowed to be moved interstate from the said quarantined district in manner or method or under conditions other than those prescribed in the rules and regulations hereinafter made, and amendments thereto.

The following territory is designated as the area quarantined for the Japanese beetle: The townships of Delran, Chester, Cinnaminson, Palmyra, Mount Laurel and Riverside, and the borough of Riverton, county of Burlington, and the townships of Pensauken and Delaware, and the borough of Merchantville, county of Camden, N. J.

The regulation covering certification of shipments reads as follows:

Farm, garden and orchard products of all kinds, including fresh or perishable crops, such as green corn, tomatoes, beans, peas, cantaloupes, watermelons, grapes, raspberries, blackberries, cherries, peaches, apples and all other fresh fruits and vegetables; (2) grain and forage crops of all kinds; (3) nursery, ornamental and greenhouse stock and all other plants, including bulbs and cut flowers; and (4) soil, compost and manure other than fresh manure, shall not be moved or allowed to be moved interstate to any point outside the territory quarantined for the Japanese beetle unless and until such articles have been inspected by the United States Department of Agriculture and certified to be free from the Japanese beetle: Provided, That in the case of nursery, ornamental and greenhouse stock, and all other plants, including bulbs and cut flowers, this quarantine and regulation shall apply throughout the year; in the case of all other products, for the period between June 15 and November 1.

Control Planned.

At a recent conference of officials of the United States Department of Agriculture and the New Jersey department of agriculture, held at Riverton, plans of work for the control and suppression of the Japanese beetle were thoroughly gone into. Provision has been made to inspect and certify products found free from the insect. While the quarantine will be rigidly enforced, it is believed that no serious interruption will result to the movement of most products from the infested territory.

In control of the beetle, several methods of attack will be followed. Poisoning with sodium cyanide in water of such soils as are badly infested with the larvæ or grubs will be practiced. Several million beetles, it is believed, can be captured by sweeping infested plants with nets. A band of vegetation from one-half to one mile wide surrounding the infested area will be kept thoroughly poisoned with insecticides sprayed or dusted on the plants. To prevent accidental carriage of the beetles on automobiles and other vehicles and on pedestrians, the roadways have been cleared, by grubbing and burning food plants of the beetle. Attention is being given to the introduction of parasites of the beetle from Japan. An agent of the bureau of entomology is already in Japan, engaged upon the work.

CYCLAMEN CULTURE

By J. A. PETERSON.

CYCLAMENS today, owing to careful selection of the finest plants and flowers for seed, are among the most popular flowering plants for late fall and the Christmas holidays. The flowering period commences in November and, with proper care, will continue until March. It is of the utmost importance to secure fresh seed from the best flowers. There is today a varied assortment of colors and they are all indispensable; sometimes salmon is called for, sometimes pink, or red, or white, but it is the variety which the public likes and not one particular color.

Grow Them Cool.

To have fine specimens for the Christmas holidays, the seed should be sown during August of the previous year in shallow boxes, with the seed about one-half inch apart each way. A light soil should be used, consisting of one-half leaf-mold, one-fourth light, sandy loam and one-fourth sharp sand. Cover the seed only so that it does not appear on the surface; press gently and water so that the soil is well soaked. Failure is sure to follow if the seed is allowed to get dry. The seed boxes should be placed in a moderately warm house, about 65 degrees, and kept there until the seedlings come up, which will be in from six to eight weeks. During that period they should be kept dark and well shaded.

When the young seedlings are well up they should be given more light, close to the glass, or upon a shelf, where they will remain until they have about three leaves, continual care being taken not to allow the young plants to become too dry; a temperature of 55 degrees will now be sufficient. About the latter part of December or the beginning of January the young plants should be transplanted into 2-inch pots, using a light compost. They may also be transplanted into flats and planted about two inches apart, but the 2-inch pots are preferable, since the plants do not suffer by having their roots disturbed again. At this stage keep the night temperature about 55 degrees; young cylamens should be grown cool, as there is no advantage in having them make rapid growth at this time. A short, sturdy plant is much to be preferred to a large, weak one; it will not suffer so much when warm weather commences and it grows more naturally.

Repotting.

About March the young plants should be repotted into 3-inch pots, this time using a little stronger soil and adding some old, dry manure. Give each plant plenty of room; long, drawn-up leaves will not make satisfactory plants. About May 15 repot into 4-inch pots, where they should remain until August, when they should receive their final potting, according to size. For the final potting a good soil mixture consists of three parts sandy loam, three parts leaf-mold, two parts old, well rotted manure and two parts coarse sand. For the first and second potting the young corms should be covered to their tops, but not any deeper. In the final potting a small portion of the corm is best left above the soil; if potted too deep they are likely to rot. Always use clean pots with plenty of drainage and pot moderately firm.

Use of Insecticides.

During the summer months cyclamens require as cool a house as possible, with all the side ventilators, as well as the top ventilators, open day and night. A slight shade is also required to keep the foliage from burning. At all times the plants should have all the room they want; if standing too close together, they will become long and lanky.

All moths and butterflies must be caught and killed. Cyclamens are also subject to mite, thrips and red spider; to destroy these pests Hammond's Thrip Juice No. 2 has been used successfully, following the instructions on the can or container. The use of Thrip Juice should be continued until about October; after that it is better to spray with a nicotine extract once a week until November 1, or until the blooms begin to appear. Then the spraying with insecticides should be discontinued, as it discolors the flowers and foliage. Continue spraying with clear water at least twice every day, weather permitting.

Baltimore's Second Shot.

It is necessary at all times to use great care in watering cyclamen plants. Water only when moderately dry; do not be overliberal with water, since there is little hope for plants when once overwatered. When the plants are strong and sturdy and full of roots, a weekly feeding with liquid fertilizer is greatly beneficial; fresh cow or horse manure is preferable, but it should be used with great care. Cyclamens are easy of culture, but they have their whims and good judgment must be used.

BALTIMORE CARRYING ON.

Public Given Second Lesson.

The Associated Florists of Baltimore launched their second broadside at the public Tuesday, April 27, in the effort to teach it to "Say It with Flowers," in the form of an advertisement eleven and a half inches deep and three columns wide, reproduced on this page. This campaign, which is being carried on both through the newspapers and through floral displays in public buildings, is attracting much attention and is said to be slowly but surely awakening greater interest in flowers.

A novel means of publicity for flowers, which has been used by the florists, tying up with the newspaper advertisements, consists of floral decorations and displays in banks and theaters, bearing the slogan, "Say It with Flowers." Last week the displays in the rooms of the Fidelity Trust Co. and in the Merchants & Manufacturers bank made a decided hit.

Poem from the Review.

The advertisement of April 27 contained a verse from the poem, "Say It with Flowers," by H. Hill, a reader of The Review, which appeared in these columns not long ago. The advertisement was well written and its appeal, to scatter happiness with flowers on every occasion, was a good one. There is a notice in the advertisement that there is an information bureau maintained for the benefit of those seeking information concerning flowers or plants.

The special box of flowers which is advertised every Saturday morning is meeting with success. It is reported that many of the florists had a number of calls for this box after the second advertisement.

THE FISKS IN JAPAN.

Describing the photograph reproduced in the accompanying illustration, Charles H. Fisk, for forty years a Chicago retailer, wrote from Japan:

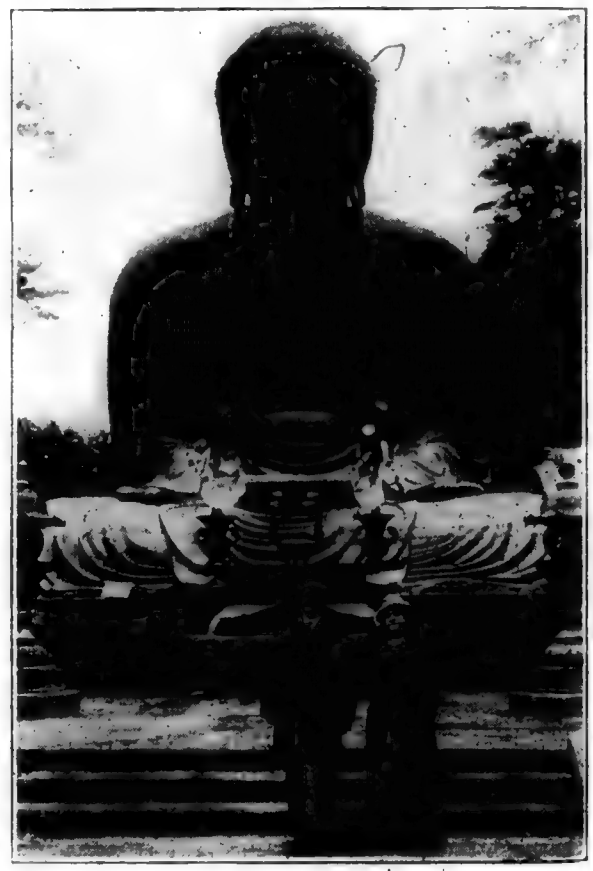
"The large figure at the top is the famous bronze statue of Buddha, cast in the year 1252. The two smaller ones in the foreground are not bronze, and are products of more modern times. The one with an overcoat which bulges a little is not a Japanese statesman, nor even Ajax defying the lightning, and the unseemly, not to say ungraceful, bulging of the coat is caused by too many papers in the pockets, and not by adipose tissue, the fact being that I am several pounds lighter than usual."

After having sold his store to his employees last January, Mr. Fisk, accompanied by his wife, started on a tour of the orient, combining recreation and a purchasing trip for the A. L. Randall Co., he and Mr. Randall having been boys in the trade together and their interests having been more or less the same ever since. Writes Mr. Fisk further from Yokohama:

"We have been in the land of tea and temples long enough to get our bearings a little; have learned to say 'Good morning' in Japanese, the points of the compass, and the knowledge that the U. S. A. is not the most expensive place in the world in which to exist and have your being. Except for the fact that the necessities of life are much higher here than any place I know of, it is nice to be here, for a while, anyhow.

"The great influx of Russian refugees is responsible for much of the H. C. of L.—they are ready and willing to pay fabulous prices for everything, and of course the Japs are willing to meet them more than halfway. Office space is almost impossible to get at any price, and that goes double for living rooms. Nearly all the natives in the business part of the town can speak a little English, and many of them are fairly fluent, but get out in the country a little way and you are up against it unless you have an interpreter. Hotels are all crowded, and reservations must be made at least a week in advance; and travelers I meet who have recently been in Hongkong say it is much worse there.

"I have visited the artificial flower dealers and manufacturers and, while prices are at least a third higher than they were last summer, no one will accept an order with any assurance of when it is likely to be delivered, or that the price will hold as quoted. There are strikes everywhere; tram cars, postal clerks, messenger boys and laborers, which tends in a great measure to make one feel right at home, and just as naturally will keep prices up to the top level for a while."



HYBRIDIZING ORCHIDS.

In crossing orchids, as, for instance, two cattleyas, one blooming in the fall and the other blooming in the spring, how would it be possible to keep the pollen or hold the flowers back in order to make the cross some months later? Or would they have to be blooming at the same time?

The article in The Review of March 11 on "Raising Orchids from Seed" spoke of dividing cattleyas in order to increase stock rapidly. Please describe the method of doing this. Also mention the best books on orchids for hybridizing and growing from seed and for increasing by other means. J. D.—Pa.

In the case of cattleyas or other orchids flowering at different seasons, you can remove the pollen masses and store them in pollen tubes. It is not necessary to have the plants blooming at the same time. Pollen will retain its vitality for several months. I have sent and received pollen from England and it has always proved potent, in one case six months after being removed from cattleya flowers.

In order to increase cattleyas it is often necessary to cut the plants in pieces. Usually one lead or more is left on each division. A sharp knife is needed to make the divisions and the roots are separated as carefully as possible, to avoid injury. In the case of specially good or valuable sorts, back bulbs are often used, even when they have no lead. These will frequently break back. Embryo eyes can be noted at the base of some of these back bulbs. As to

The Fisks Turn Their Backs on Buddha.

"increasing stock rapidly," I am afraid we have a great deal more to learn before this can be done with orchids.

Bailey's "Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture" has interesting practical articles on hybridizing and raising orchids from seed, and by other methods. Special orchid books I would recommend are: "The Book of Orchids," by W. H. White; "Orchids, Their Culture and Management," by W. Watson; "The Orchid Growers' Manual," by B. S. Williams, and "Orchids and Their Cultivation," by James O'Brien. "The Fertilization of Orchids," by Charles Darwin, a small, inexpensive work, should also interest you. With the exception of Bailey's, the above works are English, and, while cultural conditions are similar in both countries, they specialize in odontoglossums, which are hard to grow here, and we are strong on cattleyas, which succeed better here than in Europe. C. W.

FORCING GLADIOLI.

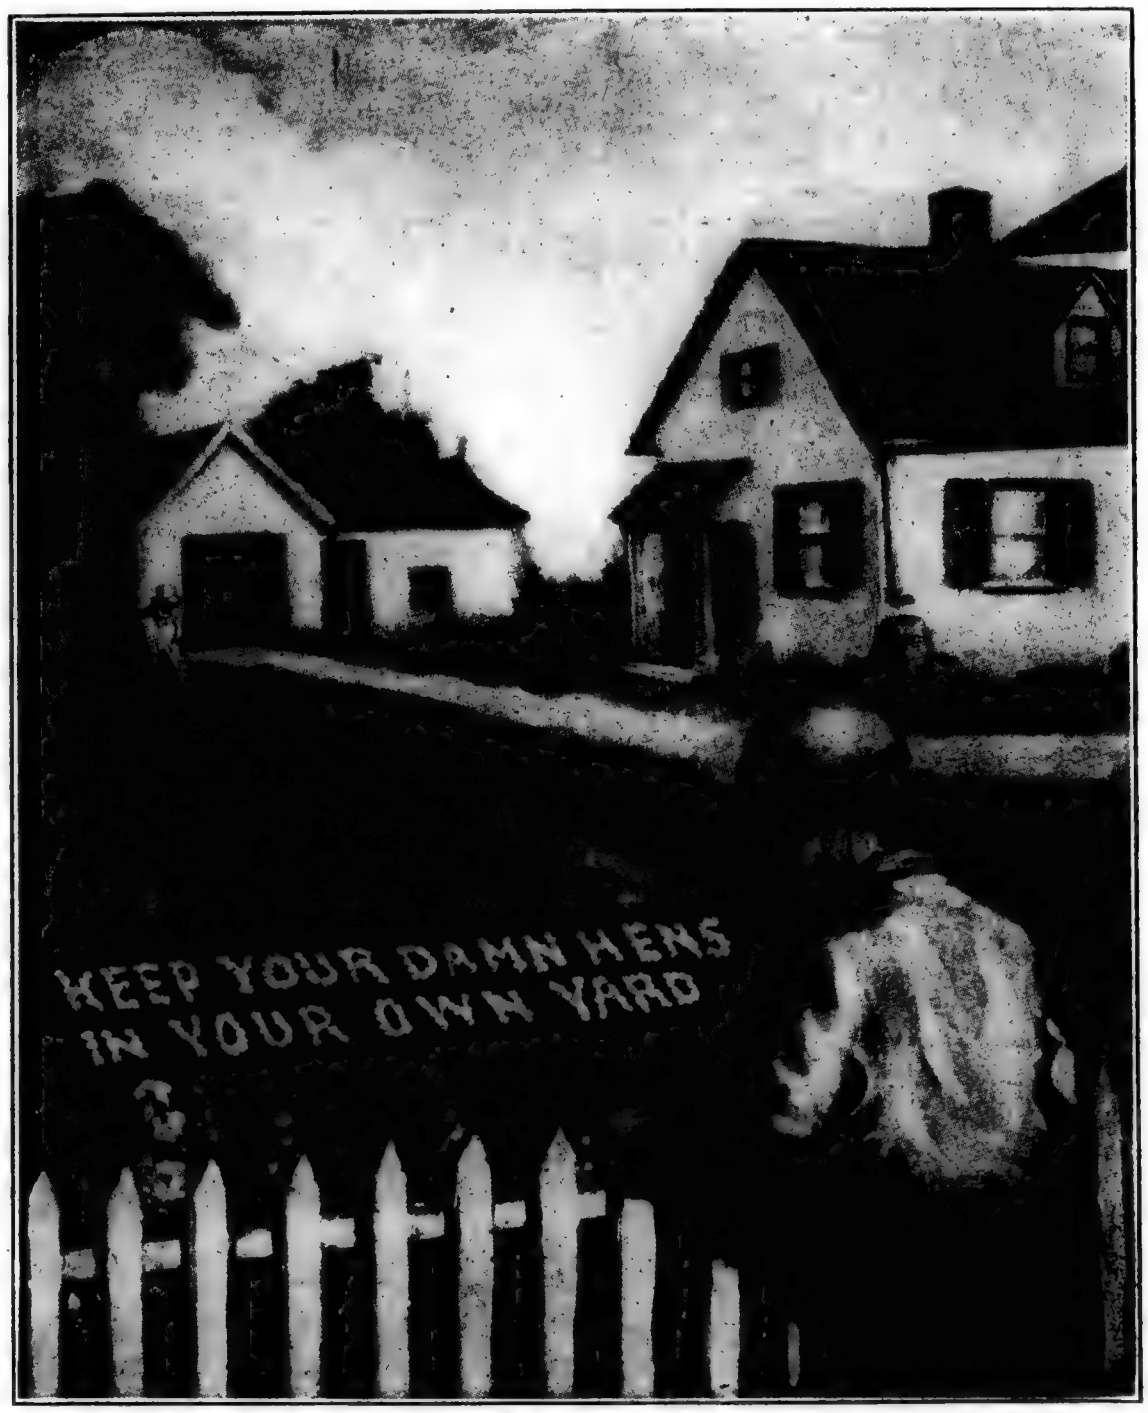
I purchased the largest gladiolus bulbs I could get and put them in deep boxes under a bench. At present they are about ten inches high, most of them having two spikes, some three. Can these be flowered by putting them on a solid bench now, without bottom heat, and is it advisable to leave all the spikes on? I shall appreciate any other advice you can give me in regard to their treatment. H. E. W.—N. Y.

By all means place the gladiolus boxes on the benches at once. You can safely leave all the spikes on them. As gladioli stand a comparatively low temperature, anything above actual freezing will suit them, but for good results I advise a night temperature of 48 to 50 degrees. C. W.

ELECTROCUTING APHIS.

After reading in a British horticultural journal a reprint of the article, "Vacuum-Clean Your Mums," published in The Review several months ago, a member of the trade across the water suggested another scientific novelty, writing as follows:

"A youthful friend, keenly interested in wireless telegraphy and slightly interested in roses, told me he cleaned aphis from his bushes with the aid of an electric battery and coil, by placing one wire to earth and touching the tip of the affected growth with the other.



"The outfit was not capable of throwing a spark more than five-eighths of an inch in size.

GIVING HENS HELL GENTLY.

Eggs are still high-priced. So the hens, who are presumably getting high wages, deserve to be treated with respect. If you are growing flowers not only under glass, but also outdoors, and your neighbor's hens show an uninvited interest in your premises and wrath rises within you, moving you to words, remember that you are a florist and "Say It with Flowers." If you must damn, then damn with flowers.

This suggestion, perhaps born of bitter experience, was recently presented by Judge, "the happy medium," in a picture which covered the page next to the front page in the issue of April 24 and had as caption the trade's familiar slogan. Two or three readers of The Review, evidently alert and appreciative readers of Judge as well, saw it and called attention to it. It is here reproduced, not so much for the benefit of those whose relations with their neighbors need an occasional pacifier, as to show how strong a hold the trade's slogan has on the public mind. It may also help to convince the skeptical that no demand which can be made upon flowers will find them lacking.

Suggestion of Humorous Weekly, Judge, how to "Say It with Flowers."

HOLLYHOCK NOVELTY.

A customer of ours has a hollyhock which is to us a distinct novelty. It was planted out in the spring of 1919. Our customer says that it bloomed profusely all summer and that, when frost came, it was still blooming; so she potted it and took it into the house. It has bloomed all winter and has branched out and makes a large plant. It is still covered with large, single blooms. We should like to know if this is not an unusual kind. B. F. C.—Tenn.

It is rather unusual for a hollyhock to bloom all summer and winter. Some of the single varieties are persistent bloomers and continue to send up new flower stalks as the earlier ones are removed. If it is planted outdoors now and if the flower stems are cut back, the plant will in all probability start to bloom again in June. C. W.

RETURNING CHECKS GALORE.

The word "galore" comes, via the Irish, from a Gaelic word meaning "enough." But nowadays it is used when we mean "more than enough," perhaps "too much of a good thing." That is what busy florists think when they have to take time to send back checks to the people who were just too late in replying to a Classified ad in The Review. See what a single insertion did:

Please don't insert my gladiolus ad more than the one time. I am returning checks galore. Telegrams from nearly every state east of the Mississippi. I wanted to clean up in a hurry and your ad has certainly brought it about. —Tom Moore, Plattville, Wis., April 27, 1920.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

MOTHERS' DAY PRICES.

I wish to call the attention of the many readers of The Review to the lines which appeared on the front page of the New York Tribune May 1, under the caption, "Flower Boycott on Mothers' Day Urged." The Tribune's notice follows:

Because of the sky-rocketing prices of cut flowers, an appeal was sent out yesterday by the Mothers' Day International Association against the wearing of flowers on Mothers' day, May 9. A harvest was reaped last year by florists, who boosted prices throughout the country, the appeal points out, and it is urged that the display of flags from homes and public places be made to take the place this year of boutonnieres.

During Christmas week I noticed signs displayed in various store windows urging "him" to "buy her candy" or some other equally useful present, since "flowers are too expensive."

The wonder is that the trade as a whole has failed to read the writing on the wall, thus failing to safeguard the existence of our industry. I am not an alarmist—far from it—yet when an impression is being created and spread broadcast that flowers are a luxury accessible only to the rich, that the general public should abstain from indulging in such luxuries, that prices for cut flowers are "sky-rocketing," etc., it is time, it seems to me, to sit up and take notice.

If we are striving to have the public "Say It with Flowers," spending thousands of dollars for the purpose, why not strive at the same time to win and hold the confidence of the people, to the end that no false impressions and malicious reports shall impede our progress? If there are any profiteers among us, inclined to "bleed" the public on Mothers' day or any other holiday, we, as a body, should repudiate such actions and not bear the brunt of the misdeeds of a few.

It is up to the publicity committee to emblazon the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," not only upon signboards, stationery, checks, etc., but upon the hearts and souls of the people as well.

On the other hand, it may be well for us to remember the goose that lays the golden eggs. Why charge exorbitant prices on Mothers' day, when there is no necessity for it?

S. S. Skidelsky.

MUCH IN MAKE-UP.

I read The Review from "lid to lid" every week and find much to entertain and instruct. Tate's Tips are particularly interesting and helpful. I know from his article on Easter decorations that he is an artist and is also able to make one see with his pen.

I think there is more in making use of flowers than in the flowers. For instance, some of the prettiest designs (at least, I think so) are made of garden flowers; small flowers lend themselves to design work.

I do not agree about doing away with designs, as that would do away with much of the hard-worked florist's profit, both grower and retailer. But we should try to improve the work until it is a real artistic triumph. A wreath is beautiful and can be made to look different by the use of a variety of arrangements and a variety of flowers. Another design that lends itself to infinite variety is a pillow, although just a square box with a lot of stiff short-stemmed flowers pushed in and topped off with a bow of maline, such as one sees so often, is too awful to contemplate.

When I have time I like to stem and wire my own flowers, as there is really more in having the right length and twist to the flowers and ferns than in placing them, though I would rather do both.

Sue Cabaniss.

CALLA CULTURE.

Please tell me which is the best and most prolific calla lily. What is the best size of bulb to buy to produce the maximum number of flowers? What is a good average number of blooms per plant? When should they be potted and what size of pot is best to use? Can they be bought now and grown on through the summer and have first-class bulbs? If so, what size should be purchased now and what should be their culture from now until putting into their blooming pots? L. K. M.—Pa.

You can purchase callas in 3-inch pots and grow them on during the summer in pots. I have also planted them outdoors in well enriched soil where they can be given an occasional soaking of water and lifted carefully in the fall. They will make much growth during the summer. These plants will bloom well the following winter and I find they do particularly well in 7-inch or 8-inch pots, with three plants in each. Callas benefit greatly from a little bottom heat in winter. Some of the best I have ever seen are annually grown on a shelf along the sides of carnation houses, just over the steam pipes, with a saucer below each pot. Another grower does them successfully in boxes eight inches deep. Still another finds they succeed finely planted out in a solid bed, where they bloom profusely and carry flowers of mammoth size. The variety Godfrey is the only one worth growing. Like all callas, it is a great feeder and top-dressings of bone meal every week or ten days are eagerly devoured by the roots.

Probably later in the season you could purchase dry tubers of Godfrey callas of blooming size. Watch the Classified ads in The Review for such offers. I have not kept close account of the numbers of flowers produced per bulb, but I can state that the Godfrey will give you three times as many blooms as the old type, and flowers of equal size.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

The Jones-Russell Co., Cleveland, O., announces that it expects to occupy its new store, located in the new Hanna building, by the time the S. A. F. convention meets and anticipates having the most beautiful flower store in America.

C. E. Kendel, secretary of the American Seed Trade Association, states that from the inquiries received and new names listed, the convention in June at Milwaukee will be one of the most successful yet held.

"When you subtract two weeks from a possible six, the regular length of the planting time, you will understand the drawbacks that shippers are experiencing and can form some idea of what our business is this season," observed Edward George, of the Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O., mentioning, incidentally, that the veteran Robert George is enjoying excellent health.

Kallay Bros., Painesville, O., report a similar experience in transportation difficulties. Otherwise business is up to normal.

"A boy's best friend is his mother," said Carl Merkel, of C. Merkel & Sons Co., Mentor O. "We three boys vouch for its truth." Was it telepathy? Certainly it is coincidence that a splendid crop of roses and hydrangeas will be just right to gladden the hearts of mothers. The blooms would possibly have been superfluous had the plants bloomed earlier. Otaksa is a favorite hydrangea of the Merkel boys and they can produce plants that are the envy of their confreres. Another profitable item is carnations. White Wonder and Matchless are just right.

L. A. Eaton & Son, Conneaut, O., commenting upon the usefulness of the Album of Designs, admit that it is a great aid to their many patrons, who otherwise would often be unable to decide upon the selection of a floral piece, especially when a committee of several members is placing the order.

• • • •

"A full-page advertisement in The Review," observed Carl Hagenburger, West Mentor, O., "brought us such a crop of orders for cherries that we had quite a time filling them. Apparently we gave everyone satisfaction." Mr. Hagenburger also said that he had a begonia that was beyond words to describe and that had to be seen to be appreciated, along with other good things, cyclamen for instance, that will find a place in the big race next season, when the best stock will win. American Beauty plants purchased in Chicago last January at 12 cents and now blooming in 7-inch pots and selling at $2.50 each show the possibilities in so-called discarded bench-grown plants. A clever arrangement was noted in putting French hydrangeas from 3-inch pots, showing one or more heads of bloom, in the center of a pan of nephrolepis. Macawii is well suited to this purpose.

• • • •

"This tarntable, or 'whirligig,' as the boys term it," observed William Scott, of the William Scott Co., Cold Spring, N. Y., "is the best thing ever invented for the purpose of handling vases and large pots during the process of filling with plants for cemetery purposes. Last season between 700 and 800 were filled and our business in this particular line this year will be fully as large as, if not larger than in previous years. We fill the receptacles with less quantity or quadruple the price, with possibly a better grade of stock than formerly, so that the effect is better. It certainly pleases our patrons." Among the "futures" were noted a fine batch of chrysanthemum cuttings grown cold, making vigorous plants, and cyclamens, graduated from 3-inch to 4-inch pots, which will make specimens. "It is well known that more seed has been sown than usual, but it is the summer period that will be the test," said Mr. Scott. "We are not afraid of conditions, but there will be a good demand for salable plants." Begonia Glory of Cincinnati in 3-inch pots is just breaking, with the promise of a fine crop of plants later on.

One of the most profitable items in the place of F. E. Selkregg, North East, Pa., is a shady corner of Adiantum Croweanum, which was planted several years ago and which was occasionally fed and dusted with insecticide. It is a boon to the retailer for design work. Rex begonias and tomato plants are grown in large numbers. J. L. Selkregg, the son, is proving to be an able assistant in this growing business.

Tong & Weeks Co., Ashtabula, O., is optimistic regardless of the various drawbacks which were unlooked for, but Mr. Weeks says that possibly it is all for the best.

"An important matter left undone which should have been done," observed J. V. Laver, Erie, Pa., with a faint quaver in his voice which was almost drowned by the rattle of hailstones raining upon the rose houses built last summer and now abloom with a full crop of Ophelia. The omission referred to was hail insurance. "Procrastination, that's all," continued Mr. Laver. The appearance of old Sol changed the subject to Mothers' day

RED SPIDER ON MATCHLESS.

We are sending the stem of one of our Matchless carnation plants. Is it affected by red spider? The pink and red varieties are not affected at all. We have used different nicotine sprays and fumigants, but without success.

R. & S.—Mich.

The stem of the Matchless carnation was badly infested with red spider. When plants are as badly affected as these seem to be, it is a difficult matter to clean them at this time of the year. About the only thing that can be done for them is to syringe the plants thoroughly with as strong a force as possible. Repeat this every few days and ventilate the house freely. M. P.

CARTOONIST VISITS MARKET.

In the New York World for Sunday, May 2, a quarter-page cartoon reproduced a staff artist's impression of the new wholesalers' headquarters at Sixth avenue and West Eighteenth street. Some of the conspicuous figures of the New York trade were recognizably portrayed, as you will agree if you refer to the reproduction of the cartoon on this page.

ADVERTISERS PLEASE NOTE

The steadily increasing size of The Review, both in number of pages and in circulation, makes it imperative that advertising copy be obtained farther in advance of publication date. In order that forms may be held open as late as possible, advertisers are urged to send instructions (to start or change) to reach Chicago Thursday, Friday or Saturday, whenever possible. Monday is the last day on which instructions regarding display advertisements can be received for the issue of that week.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

IT is cheaper, if not better, to buy than to build this season.

HIGH costs are not injurious unless they cause low profits. Watch your margin.

INDICATIONS are that the surplus of field-grown carnation plants will not be large this summer.

No previous issue of The Review carried so much Classified advertising as appears this week.

RETALIATION begets retaliation and fair play begets fair play—which do you want? Then start it.

DON'T slow up in anticipation of bad times ahead. Work the harder to make the bank account bigger before they come.

THERE can be no overproduction in the florists' business so long as capable greenhouse workers are so scarce as at present.

DELIVERIES on greenhouse construction material are likely to be delayed further by the slowing up at the steel mills resulting from the railroad embargoes.

SAVE paper. Nearly every florist uses more than he needs and paper now not only costs three times as much as before the war, but is hard to get at any price.

ONE of the most important, in aggregate, of the increases in business costs lies in charges for "extras," formerly considered too insignificant to appear on the bill.

THE altitudinous price of good French chiffon already has developed American substitutes, but some of them hardly are of a quality to appeal to the buyers in high-class stores.

PLANTS quoted at $10 per hundred are not at all likely to be as good as those offered at $20. Buyers should bear this in mind when they purchase stock at "bargain" prices.

TELEPHONE inquiries at The Review office for florists in towns not represented in the Pink Part show the growing opportunities via telegraph for florists in smaller communities.

LOW prices do not always indicate bargains. Often they indicate low quality.

A FLORIST now needs at least twice as much capital as was necessary in the prewar years.

THE florists' industry is big enough to provide everybody in it a living who is willing to work for it.

THE S. A. F. Journal has not proven the success that was expected. Many members say they prefer the former annual volume to the present periodical bulletin.

ALL sources of credit are gradually closing down. The obvious thing for florists to do is to collect their bills, pay their debts and get as nearly as possible on a cash basis.

WHEN the florist pays twice as much for labor as he once did and the laborer does only half as much work as he once did, the need for systematizing every job about the place is increased fourfold.

THE small-town florist who does not get his name before the trade is losing out in these days of rapidly multiplying telegraph orders. His neighbor in an adjoining town gets the orders he might have had.

THE Want Ad department of The Review contains more opportunities just now than it ever has before. The service it gives its users has caused it to grow to record proportions. It pays to watch these offers.

THE confidence which prompted the promotion of new large greenhouse enterprises early in the year has now been replaced by caution, with the result that many ambitious plans are being canceled or modified.

CARNATIONS are higher in price at Mothers' day for the same reason shines are 15 cents on Saturday—not that they cost more to produce or are worth more than at other times, but because they are in greater demand.

IT is greatly to be regretted that interest in the S. A. F. publicity program is on the wane. The campaign has been of inestimable worth to the trade and it will be a distinct loss if funds are not forthcoming to keep it going.

THERE are large numbers of growers and others who would sell out if they could. They have made money, true, but measuring the present difficulties of doing business against the prospect for continued profit they conclude they will take their money out if they can get it.

COPIES of the resolution embodying a lost or damaged goods agreement adopted at Buffalo last October have been sent out by the F. T. D. This agreement, printed in The Review at the time of its adoption, provides that seller and buyer shall present a joint claim against a carrier and, if it is disallowed, share the loss equally.

BIGGER THAN EVER.

From the day that The Review first urged florists to push Mothers' day for all that it was worth, the growth of that infant holiday has been gratifying. The increase each year has been larger as the efforts of the trade in its behalf have increased. This year those efforts, so far as preparations are concerned, surpass to a marked extent those of years preceding. Many florists have followed the suggestions made in these columns two weeks ago for window displays. A picture representing mother, either Whistler's painting or some other, forms the center of numerous decorations; sometimes the cover page of the Mothers' day number of The Review serves to attract passers' eyes. And newspaper advertisements, clippings of which are already coming into The Review office, follow out the points emphasized in the article on that subject. Altogether the trade is working for Mothers' day in a manner that foreshadows big sales. One cannot be wrong in predicting a business next Sunday that will far exceed previous records, with due consideration, such as one must always give, to the fickle whims of the weather man, who, however, did not treat the trade with much consideration at Easter and therefore owes us a good turn next Sunday. Granted fair weather, May 9 will be a red-letter harvest for florists.

OPPORTUNITY IS KNOCKING.

If you are generally in touch with the other members of the trade in your city and find it not difficult to wield a pen, or pencil, there is an opportunity for you, if you reside in a city not already represented in The Review, to add a few dollars to your income in a way that is pleasant and profitable in experience. Send in a weekly or fortnightly newsletter, along the lines of those now appearing in The Review. Among the cities in which correspondents are wanted are:

New Haven, Conn.	Cleveland, O.
Lowell, Mass.	Toledo, O.
Springfield, Mass.	Dayton, O.
Buffalo, N. Y.	Springfield, O.
Syracuse, N. Y.	Omaha, Neb.
Utica, N. Y.	New Orleans, La.
Scranton, Pa.	Louisville, Ky.
Reading, Pa.	Denver, Colo.

This list is not exhaustive; if your city is not on it, don't let that stop you. If you wish to act as correspondent for The Review in your town, send in a news-letter and let the editor see what you can do. Here's a chance to put your city on the map and to earn a little in so doing.

NO COMPARISON.

For the florist who has a surplus of stock which he wishes to turn into money there is ample opportunity just now. Many other florists want just what you have on your hands. And they are looking for it in the Classified ad pages of The Review. That is why a florist writes as follows:

Our mail carrier remarked at the number of checks and money orders in my mail this morning, saying, "That trade paper you advertise in is the darndest money-getter I ever saw." I endorse his statement.—C. E. Majors, Denison, Tex., May 1, 1920.

The striking thing about it is, however, the low cost in proportion to the results. In this respect there is no comparison to be made with any other means. A few lines, costing a little small change, sell hundreds of dollars' worth of stock. This fact impresses itself so strongly on the mind that a florist writes:

Kindly discontinue our ad in The Review and send bill for same. We are sold out, thanks to The Review. If a florist has an oversupply of stock, he can always dispose of it at little cost by advertising in The Review.—L. G. Snyder, Dayton, O., April 28, 1920.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

OBITUARY

J. D. Carmody.

Colonel Carmody, charter member of the S. A. F., first president of the Indiana State Florists' Association, and famous for his witty speeches at S. A. F. conventions, died April 29, at the Walker sanitarium, Evansville, Ind., after a long and painful illness. He lacked one month of being 85 years of age.

Colonel Carmody was born May 31, 1835, at Utica, N. Y. At the age of 18 he entered the Civil war and at the war's end was discharged at Fortress Monroe, Va. Here he met a Miss O'Connor and they were married. They moved to Evansville, Ind., and he started in the florists' business on Water street, later moving to Hull's Hill. About 1890 he sold the business to Julius Niednagel and William Halbrooks. His inventions, the Carmody hot water boiler and the Carmody ventilating machine, were made at this time and were developed by men whose ability lay more in the business field than did his.

For the last few years Colonel Carmody spent the winters in Florida, but more recently he was too feeble and stayed at home. His wife died twenty years ago and his adopted daughter, Miss Bessie Long, has been his constant aid. He leaves no children or relatives.

The funeral took place Saturday, May 1.

J. D. Carmody.

John A. Nuth.

The entire trade of Baltimore, Md., received a great shock Monday morning when it learned of the death May 2 of one of its most popular members, John A. Nuth. Mr. Nuth was a man of remarkably robust health, but intestinal trouble developed; he was operated on Saturday and died the following day. He was 45 years old.

Mr. Nuth had been in the business seventeen years and was one of the best all-round growers in Maryland. He was a member of the Baltimore Florists' Club, the members of which attended the funeral in a body. The funeral took place at the home in Fullerton May 6. Mr. Nuth is survived by his wife and two daughters, Catherine and Anna.

James Thompson Copas.

James Thompson Copas, of Salida, Colo., whose death April 21 from pneumonia, resulting from exposure in a blizzard, was recorded in the obituary column of The Review last week, was born at Kingston-on-Thames, England, June 6, 1877. At the age of 3 years he was brought to the United States, the family making their home in Elyria, O. He received his early training under the direction of his father, William T. Copas, who was a graduate of Kew Gardens, England.

After the death of the father, James Copas and two brothers continued the business until he moved to Colorado in 1914. For three years he was with the Espelin Floral Co., at Fort Collins, Colo. Then he was called to Denver to build and equip a greenhouse on the Verner Z. Reed estate. November 18, 1919, he purchased the greenhouse and store known as the Salida Greenhouse, which he was operating at the time of his death. He was a member of the Masonic and Woodmen orders.

The funeral was held Saturday afternoon, April 24, at the Stewart chapel. The Rev. D. C. Lees officiated.

Mr. Copas is survived by his wife, his daughter, Alice, and four brothers, Fred T. Copas, of Denver; William T. Copas and John T. Copas, of Elyria, O., and Robert T. Copas, of Kansas City. Fred T. Copas reached Salida Wednesday, April 21, but the other brothers were unable to attend the funeral.

MILWAUKEE'S F. T. D. WINDOW.

Milwaukee members of the F. T. D. are coöperating this week on a novel window display in the main office of the Western Union Telegraph Co., 116 Wisconsin street.

The public is instantly attracted by the complete transformation of the window, which otherwise appears unattractive and is passed by without even a glance. This week the live Milwaukee members are stopping thousands by their unique display. It conveys to the minds of those who view it a better impression as to the meaning of telegraph delivery.

In the center of the window, banked among hydrangeas and foliage plants, is a huge map of the United States. Extending from the center, Milwaukee, are miniature wires connected up to main wires on miniature telegraph poles that stretch across the entire window front, one end representing New York, the other San Francisco. The combination of plants, flowers and telegraph instruments makes an interesting display and will bring much additional business for Mothers' day and the future.

The members who are coöperating on the display are William Zimmermann, J. M. Fox & Son, E. Welke Co., Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., Currie Bros. Co., A. Currie & Co., Baumgarten, Inc., Gimbel Bros. and William Lubliner.

The C. C. Pollworth Co., August Kellner, Holton & Hunkel and Gustave Busch, wholesalers, are donating the stock for the display. P.

The Market.

Life in the Chicago flower market never is humdrum; there always is something to furnish food for thought and material for conversation. This time it has been one of the not infrequent sudden reversals of form. Following the overstocked condition between Easter and April 28, both inclusive, April 29 brought the first signs of the impending change; April 30 saw a sudden acceleration in the demand and May 1 found the market bare and prices on the rise. With a tolerable clean-up on the last day of April, when the market closed Saturday night, May 1, there was scarcely anything in the iceboxes and the present week opened with a strong and active market. It was about as sudden a change as the market has seen in recent years and one which took a great many buyers and sellers by surprise. They had expected a good market for Mothers' day, but nothing to compare with what took place, the improvement having come earlier and prices risen faster than was generally anticipated.

At the opening of the present week it was the general report among the wholesale houses that they had booked as many orders as they expected to be able to fill. Almost without exception it was said that the supply of stock then in sight was smaller than had been expected, the demand fully as strong as anyone looked for and prices up to the advance quotations. This was particularly true of short roses and of carnations. Buyers seeking these items found sellers reluctant to book orders, even though offered prices above the advance quotations.

It is the general opinion that orders will have to be cut when the Mothers' day shipments are going out. The demand promises to call for far more flowers than are available except, perhaps, of the longest roses. The reduction in the supply is partly due to replanting operations, but principally is the result of unusually cool weather for this time of year. The danger now lies in a sudden heat wave, just as shipments are made. Such a thing has happened before and with unforgetable results. The market now hopes for a continuance of the cool weather until May 9. Given this favor, the quality of stock will be excellent although the quantity will suffer.

CHICAGO

The sweet pea is the most abundant flower in the market. The demand is so brisk that there is no surplus. The backward spring has disappointed those who expected considerable quantities of peonies; the crop for Mothers' day will be light and the rush will come, no doubt, just after the big demand has subsided.

There is scarcely anything in the way of bulbous stock now available; the few growers who are cutting indoor tulips and jonquils have a fine market. Iris filifolia has passed quickly.

Spring, long delayed, must be near, as southern lilac has appeared.

A sharp demand for smilax has developed and, with extremely small supplies, the price has gone to 50 cents a string, something without precedent in this market.

Ernst Amling Sells Out.

Ernst C. Amling has sold his well known place at Maywood. The purchaser is Fred W. Kuhlmann, a successful grocer at Melrose Park, who will take possession July 1. The range of five houses contains 42,500 square feet of glass, planted to Russell and Columbia roses, and the property includes ten acres of land, dwelling, etc. Mr. Amling plans to spend next winter in California.

It's President Enders Now.

The reward of thirty-three years of faithful service has come to Edward Enders, who has become president of Charles A. Samuelson, Inc.

There will be no change in the affairs beyond the addition of "Inc." in small letters after the name. Incorporation was only for the purpose of making it possible for Mr. Enders and another faithful employee, Joseph Heinzl, to acquire an interest in the business. Mr. Samuelson will hold fifty-one per cent of the stock.

The officers of the corporation will be: President, Edward Enders; vice-president, Joseph Heinzl; secretary, Mrs. C. A. Samuelson; treasurer, C. A. Samuelson. All the details were arranged prior to Mr. Samuelson's departure for his farm in Idaho, where he is becoming a seed grower.

Various Notes.

The Clear Water Ornamental Nursery Co., of Clear Water, Fla., has been incorporated, with $50,000 authorized capital stock. The officers are: President, H. B. Kennicott; vice-president, J. W. McNeely; secretary and treasurer, Angus Kennicott.

Arthur M. Anderson returned May 3 from a three months' trip in Europe for the A. L. Randall Co. He visited England, Holland, France, Germany and Italy. He says the conditions he found there made him extremely glad to be home again.

J. L. Raske says that unless a florist has a volume of business far larger than the average, 100 per cent added to the cost prices will not now net the retailer ten per cent. Overhead expense has mounted rapidly the last two years.

The well known Poehlmann residence on Beacon street has been sold. John Poehlmann has taken up his residence in bachelor quarters on Eastwood avenue.

Joseph Kohout, president of the Growers' Association, was in from Libertyville May 3 to investigate the fuel situation. He called on numerous dealers in southern Illinois and Indiana coals with whom he has had dealings and reports that not one of them would quote a price, either for summer or next winter's deliveries. They told him it would be a matter of another month or so before anyone in the coal business will know what the market is going to do.

Eric Johnson was at Memphis last week, the guest of his friend W. H. Englehart, of the Idlewild Greenhouses.

Peter Reinberg, as president of the Forest Preserve, plans to plant a big arboretum which shall rival the famous Arnold Arboretum at Harvard University.

The old W. L. Palinsky place is to be dismantled.

The Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co. closed its downtown office, in the State-Lake building, May 1. All business hereafter will be transacted at the factory office.

Picture postcards received last week show that C. H. Fisk and wife disembarked at Hongkong, China, Easter morning. "No orders to fill; the first time in forty years," was the message the cards brought.

If you don't find John Mangel at the store these spring days, probably it's because he is planting shrubs and fruit trees at his home at Winnetka. Since Mr. Mangel joined the north shore colony, buying a 7-room house near the lake, he has taken great interest in planting the grounds and much stock has gone out each spring.

August Jurgens will be busy for several weeks harvesting and curing his crop of bulbs at his farm in Mississippi.

April 14 Albert Koehler, of the A. B. C., was at Katwijk, Holland. By now he is in England.

George C. Weiland has a nice crop of jonquils for Mothers' day.

Visitors.

Will F. Hall, with Smith & Fetters Co., Cleveland, was here last week. He says business never was better in Cleveland and that elaborate preparations are being made for entertaining a big crowd at the S. A. F. convention in August.

Sam Seligman, now the resident partner of the New York McCallum Co., was here last week in consultation with jobbers handling lines of merchandise he has developed.

J. A. Peterson, of Cincinnati, was here last week. He said he had no business errand, but was "just looking around." According to Mr. Peterson, there are only two obstacles in the path of the plantsman and lack of demand is not one of them. Most removed from control is the matter of transportation; the inability to ship has shown how much more important good service is than the cost of it. The labor situation is not easy, but it doesn't worry the Petersons much; there are five members of the family to do the work. Mr. Peterson thinks that as long as skilled help is scarce it will be impossible for the trade to increase the production of pot plants. He thinks of dropping hydrangeas for a while.

The Market.

It is pleasing to be able to report a distinct improvement in business. Prices in some cases have advanced and there is a better clean-up. Roses have done rather better than in the previous week. Arrivals have decreased somewhat, as some of the growers are busy pulling out and replanting their houses with young stock. American Beauties prove less popular than Hadley and prices for the latter average a little better than for the former. Premier and Columbia continue popular and are being more heavily planted this season. The Killarneys, except Double White Killarney, will be largely reduced. Ward, Ophelia and Russell all prove good sellers. The principal call is for flowers on 9-inch, 12-inch and 15-inch stems. The demand for fancy stock is light. Some fancy Hadley and Russell still reach $35 to $40 per hundred. Carnations are higher. Fancy stock realizes $6 to $8 and whites $4 to $5 per hundred. Prices are unlikely to sag this week with Mothers' day so near at hand.

Sweet peas are remarkably fine and sell as well as anything in the market. Prices vary from 75 cents to $5 per hundred, the latter for specially fine flowers on long stems. The glut of lilies is relieved somewhat and they are a little dearer. Callas have been hard to move, owing to the overabundance of lilies. Snapdragons remain one of the unpopular flowers. Narcissi are not at all plentiful and have sold at from $6 to $10 per hundred. Gladioli are coming from several growers and prices have dropped as low as $1.50 to $2 per dozen. Marguerites sell well at $1 to $3. Mignonette, calendulas and bachelor's buttons are somewhat slow sellers. Cattleya Mossiæ averages $7.50 per dozen. Valley is fairly plentiful and variable in quality, selling all the way from $3 to $8 per hundred. Among pot plants are hydrangeas, roses, daisies, Pink Pearl rhododendrons and calceolarias. A few Canterbury bells are also offered.

Various Notes.

The Boston Florists' Association met at the Hotel Westminster May 4, with a good attendance. Henry Penn presided. After enjoying a good dinner the members listened to a splendid address on "The Wit and Humor of Flowers" by William H. McMasters, a well known publicist and writer. Miss Lillian Green furnished several songs, which were generously applauded, and Mrs. W. H. McMasters proved herself to be an able pianist.

At Penn's a large window filled with Asplenium Nidus-avis, the bird's-nest fern, in all stages of growth, from spores just germinating to large specimens, has attracted great attention of late. May 1 a window of May day suggestions showed some tasteful arrangements. Large wedding orders were executed April 30 and May 1.

Thomas Roland is busy replanting his large rose houses at Revere. He will increase his plantings considerably of Premier and Columbia, will retain Ward, Ophelia and Hadley and will add some Double White Killarney. At Nahant he is now almost sold out of French hydrangeas, but has a fine lot of Dorothy Perkins and Tausendschoen roses.

The Market.

A rather quiet week closed briskly with May day. Cool weather with cloudy skies reduced the supply of flowers. Prices on carnations advanced Saturday, while prices on roses became firmer, improving the average price. The heavy cuts of snapdragons and of sweet peas have passed. Outdoor lilac from near-by has come. It is bringing good money, which is the street phrase for excellent value. The general demand is for medium-grade stock rather than for fancy quality. Lilies are rather less abundant, which is a mighty good thing, for there have been many more lilies, both Easter and callas, than were needed. Prices on both have been quite low. Outdoor valley has come; the greenhouse-grown spikes are preferred. The first peonies have arrived from the south. Greens are in demand. The outlook for May is promising.

The A. B. C. of Sansom Street.

A is for Aeugle of Phila. cut fame.
B is for Berger—John's his first name.
C is for Campbell—the lily he grows.
G stands for Gannon, as all the world knows.

Outdoor Summer Flowers.

The florist who can grow outdoor summer flowers for cutting to supply the wholesale market is a rare and highly prized consignor. The matter is simple, but it requires qualities difficult to obtain. The florist must be a good grower, know what to grow, be hard-working, persevering and willing to take a chance on having the results of his work swept away by unfavorable conditions sometimes beyond control. The profit in growing cut flowers outdoors frequently lies in production out of season, because the main crop is apt to come at a time when everybody else has that particular flower and prices are low. The principal outdoor flowers grown for market today are alyssum, asters, astermums, candytuft, chrysanthemums, coreopsis, cosmos, dahlias, delphinium, gaillardia, gladioli and sweet peas. Of these, asters, dahlias, gladioli and sweet peas really belong to the specialist rather than to the grower of general stock. The florist who can produce these outdoor flowers in quantity and get them to market in good shape and take defeat manfully, should it come, will be a valuable consignor to the wholesaler.

ROSES

Are the most important item in cut flowers during the month of May. In quality, quantity and value they lead the entire market. We have more of the better varieties of Roses now than we have ever had before, and principally Russell.

Premier, Columbia, Shawyer, Hadley, Sunburst, Ophelia and Double White Killarney are other varieties that we recommend.

Beauties we can furnish of a good quality and you will find that we can supply Beauties if they are to be had anywhere.

EASTER LILIES

They are well grown, mostly 24 inches and over. Our growers cut them in bud or partly open, just in the right condition for shipping.

flowers come double; ninety per cent are the figures given. The new variety sported with the Robert Craig Co. and is named Craigii. Mr. Craig thinks that every daisy grower should grow this variety.

Club Meeting.

The May meeting of the Florists' Club was held at the Hotel Adelphia Tuesday evening. It was growers' night, with Wallace R. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., as chief speaker.

The Philadelphia local of the National Flower Growers' Association was formed. Alfred M. Campbell was elected temporary chairman and John R. Andre secretary.

Wallace R. Pierson brought two specimens of Rose Mrs. John Cook for exhibition. The Robert Craig Co. showed two geraniums, two hydrangeas and two ericas.

Various Notes.

Sydney H. Bayersdorfer arrived in Hamburg April 22. Cables received from him daily for the eight days following indicate high prices in florists' supplies abroad, coupled with unwillingness to accept advance orders for anything not already made, owing to difficulty in securing raw material.

M. J. Callahan has purchased the retail business of Edward Rieger, on South Twentieth street. It is being run as a branch in the rear of the Market street store. Mr. Rieger expects to return to Germany.

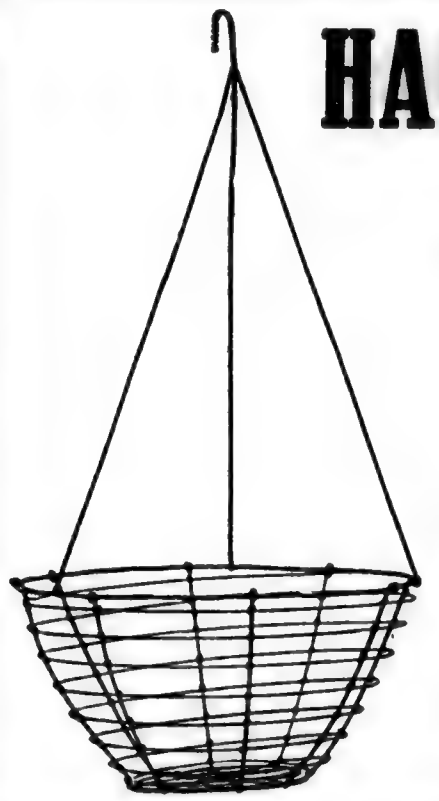
NEW YORK.

The Market.

The market is well supplied with flowers in all lines in season and the quality is excellent for the time of year, owing to the recent cool weather. Spring is backward in this section. While some really warm weather is usually experienced about the end of April, there is no sign of it yet; it seems likely that we shall jump into summer conditions all at once. Judging from the present state of peony plantings, there will not be much in the way of flowers for Memorial day, except possibly the old officinalis types.



Roses are rather more plentiful in both American Beauty and hybrid teas. The former move fairly well, but the prices for special grades have declined somewhat, the top price at the beginning of this week being about $50 per hundred. For hybrid teas the demand is somewhat better and the supply has evened up a little, short grades being in more nearly adequate supply; special grade blooms are bringing as much as $40 per hundred for selected flowers in one or two leading varieties, with $15 per hundred for ordinary grades and lower grades from $12 down to $2 per hundred.

Carnations are in only moderate supply, growers evidently holding all they can for the Mothers' day sales during the latter part of this week. About $4 per hundred is top price for ordinary stock, with selected flowers bringing $6 per hundred. Inferiors are bringing $2 and $3 per hundred. A few Laddie bring as much as $8 per hundred. The quality generally is good.

Spring flowers have not shortened up so much as might be expected and arrivals still are somewhat heavy, although confined to tulips and narcissi. The prices of the former are 25 to 75 cents per bunch and of the latter 35 to 50 cents.

Cattleyas are quite plentiful and of only medium quality; consequently movement is slow. Selected flowers are bringing $50 per hundred, with others down to $25 per hundred and leftovers at much less. Gardenias are abundant, but the quality is poor; a few flowers bring $3 per dozen and the rest go for almost any figure.

Easter lilies are plentiful, the best moving at about $6 per hundred. Lily of the valley has shortened up a little and the best now commands $10 per hundred sprays. Sweet peas continue

Some fine snapdragons are coming in and meet a rather light demand at 25 cents to $2 per bunch. Chairman, T. A. Havemeyer; treasurer, Frederic R. Newbold, and secretary, John Young. Arthur Herrington, Madison, N. J., was appointed manager of the next show, which is to be held March 14 to 21, 1921. A schedule committee was appointed to prepare a preliminary schedule, which will be issued as soon as possible. This will be the last flower show to be held in the Grand Central Palace; in fact, the last show of any kind, as the building is to be given over entirely to commercial purposes.

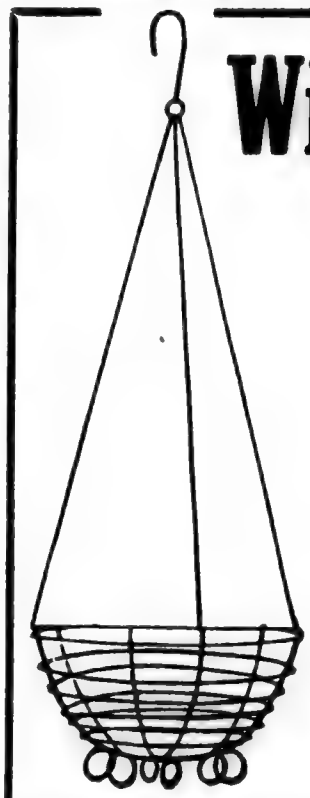
The old flower show committee dined together at the Hotel Biltmore Saturday evening, May 1. At the dinner Charles H. Totty was presented by his fellow members of the committee with a traveling bag and steamer trunk as a mark of esteem.

Various Notes.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held at the club's rooms in the Engineering Societies' building, 25 West Thirty-ninth street, Monday evening, May 10. The lecturer for this evening will be Arthur Herrington, of Madison, N. J., and the subject "Irises." He will show his fine set of lantern slides in connection with the lecture.



A. M. Scheider, of Max Schling, Inc., has the sympathy of his friends in the death of his father, Dr. Julius Scheider, which occurred April 26.

The trade was properly much disturbed by a boxed editorial notice in the New York Tribune last week, which is quoted in full in a letter from S. S. Skidelsky on another page. It is believed by many, however, that the custom of wearing and presenting flowers on this day is now too deeply rooted to be affected by such inspired notices.

The New York World last Sunday printed a cartoon of large size featuring the new flower market at Eighteenth street and Sixth avenue. It is reproduced on another page of this issue.

Albert Von Tilzer, the composer of the official "Say It with Flowers" song, is the composer of the music for "Honey Girl," a new musical comedy presented at the Cohan & Harris theater this week. Neville Fleeson, who wrote the words for the song, is the author of the words used in the comedy.

The tenants of the new flower market at Eighteenth street and Sixth avenue express much satisfaction over the results of the first week of their occupancy of the booths. Many trade visitors were in evidence during the week and all seemed pleased with appearances. The mechanics are not yet all out of the market, but in a few days

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

The principal market feature of the week is that the abundance of carnations is a matter of memory. The crop has fallen off to the extent of firming up their price. Few were to be had at the end of the week for less than $5 per hundred. Perhaps this would have been of little interest if it had not come about just on the eve of Mothers' day. It was everyone's hope that they would be plentiful, so that they could be offered at a reasonable price, averting the public's opinion that florists were getting all their profit at once.

Easter lilies are a drug on the market. Good stock sold as low as $10 per hundred, which is considered an exceedingly low figure, especially when jonquils demand half that price.

Roses continue to be plentiful, but not to the point where prices are affected seriously. Some varieties, Killarney especially, are not in demand, but the others clean up fairly well.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Walla Walla, Wash.—G. S. Schneller has bought the Jones Flower Shop at 16 East Main street, with greenhouses at 902 South Ninth street, and is preparing to push the business. He is a member of the F. T. D.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Shipping business was a little better last week, but it was still not up to its usual form for this time of year. A good deal of the territory shipped to from this center is hard to reach with good stock early in the season, owing to the heat and to the fact that local flowers enter into competition with those outside. This has had the effect of greatly reducing the price on carnations and roses, but, outside of these staples, prices have held up fairly well.

Gladioli are coming in and, though they are not yet in any great quantity, there will soon be a big supply. Orchids are more plentiful, but valley is holding up in price.

Retailers say that their principal business is in funeral work, as little entertaining has been going on since the exodus of the eastern tourists. The weather has been unusually hot, with the result that more people than usual are at health resorts, while the opening of the trout-fishing season takes many to the mountains. It must be said, however, that all retailers are making a good bid for business by keeping fine window displays, the spring baskets being especially attractive.

Club Meeting.

A special meeting of the Los Angeles Florists' Club was called for April 22, with President Walter Armacost in the chair. He gave an interesting account of his visit to San Francisco and to the florists' club there, and also asked for exhibits from the members for the coming flower show at Santa Monica.

The schedule for advertising put forward by the publicity committee was adopted. M. L. Germain made a motion, which was seconded by E. B. Washburn, to the effect that the club employ a paid auditor; this motion was carried. A motion to meet at the large store of W. Armacost & Co. was defeated, as it was the sense of the meeting that a dinner should be part of the proceedings.

H. Reeve Darling, who had the advertising scheme in hand, was unavoidably absent, having an engagement in San Francisco, which it may be noted he reached by the airship route.

Various Notes.

T. Wright, of Wright's Flower Shop, is in the city again, after a trip to the desert to take care of his mining interests. Another greenhouse is to be added to the range, since, even with the large amount of glass devoted to pot plants, the demand is so much greater each year that more room is again required. The present addition will be devoted largely to cyclamens.

LOS ROBLES NURSERY & GARDEN
April 15, 1920 Santa Cruz, Cal.

A sneak thief is always despicable, but one of the worst cases on record is that which occurred at the West Adams Nursery recently, when over fifty fine plants of Cattleya Mossiæ and C. gigas were torn from their pots and stolen between days. Mr. Nishida, the proprietor, leaves his establishment open for visitors to enjoy a display which is always worth while and this is how he was treated by some vandal. Detectives have been working on the case and it is hoped by everyone in the trade that the thief will be caught and given his deserts.

John Fuhrmann, of Chicago, has been visiting in the city for some time and leaves for the north this week.

A number of beautiful water lilies came to the writer this week from Fred Allen, of Allen's Water Gardens. Mr. Allen has a fine selection of the choicest day-flowering types, which are especially welcome during the hot days of summer. Besides being quite attractive, they are particularly long-lasting.

One of the funeral pieces sent out by the Broadway Florist last week was an immense flag or aggregation of flags of the allied nations, to be used at a Greek function. The work was beautifully and correctly carried out and was greatly admired.

F. M. Smith, formerly of the Smith & Fetters Co., Cleveland, O., who is now living at Sierra Madre, had a fine decoration for the wedding of a prominent banker at San Bernardino last week. sonally, the result was excellent. Large boughs of syringa, with long-stemmed watsonias, were used for hall and staircase adornment and several thousand roses were used in the bridal chamber. A wedding bell of fresh orange blossoms was also used, also a large number of greenhouse sweet peas, orchids and other choice stock. With the exception of stock provided locally by friends, the flowers were shipped for Mr. Smith's order by the L. A. Floral Co.

A. Warendorff, of New York, has been visiting the trade in this city, and Stanley Purdie, of Purdie & Co., has been putting in considerable time with him, visiting the various growing establishments and enjoying the beauties of southern California generally.

An entirely new mosaic floor has been put in at F. Lichtenberg's store and this, with the new workroom, offices and other improvements, make it one of the most beautiful and attractive stores in the city. The back room is most conveniently arranged for carrying on the work with dispatch. One of the biggest funerals of the year, at Banning, was handled by this firm last week.

The Market.

The receipt of flowers in this market has been greatly increased by several days of warm weather. There was an abundance of stock before the hot period and now there is an overabundance. Under such conditions there is only one thing to expect, lower prices, and these can be obtained on practically all offerings. While the market is not completely demoralized, it is decidedly a buyers' market, quantities of first-class stock moving at any price to effect a clearance.

The uncertainty in regard to shipping business on account of the railroad strike has a tendency still further to weaken the market here, although considerable stock is reported moving to the northwest and Rocky mountain states. Meanwhile orders continue to pile up for Mothers' day requirements, indicating a heavy movement to out-of-town points and good business locally. There will be plenty of stock to supply an extraordinary demand close at hand and also to take care of much outside business.

Roses predominate on the market and, because of the particularly heavy supply of these flowers, they are in a little weaker position in regard to price than anything else. As far as quality or supply is concerned, it would be hard to determine which variety heads the list, with Russell, Ophelia, Columbia, Hadley, Brunner and various others all in heavy crop and leaving nothing to be desired in quality.

Carnations show good quality and there is a nice crop of outdoor sweet peas arriving. Some indoor sweet peas are still offered, but the outdoor stock has the preference because of superior quality. Of marigolds, daisies, gypsophilas and other miscellaneous outdoor stock there is an abundance of anything one could desire. Iris has a good call and a limited supply of good tulips, winding up their season, cleans up easily.

Easter lilies are still plentiful and move poorly. Callas are in the same position. They are grown so generally in home gardens that they do not attract much attention at the stores. Gardenias are in a class by themselves, being about the only flowers short of the demand here.

Various Notes.

A. J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is expected home in a few days from a southern trip, having visited San Diego, Tijuana and other southern points. Frank D. Pelicano, of the same firm, has been home for the last week on account of illness. He is putting out an increased acreage of dahlias this season. Business is reported seasonably active by Frank Thatcher.

Carl Matraia, formerly identified with the Art Floral Co., and more recently with Podesta & Baldocchi, has gone out of the flower business.

P. V. Matraia, of the Art Floral Co., says that business is rushing.

which makes him the proud father of a boy and a girl. Mr. Baldocchi has just received his new Pierce-Arrow car and, incidentally, reports business excellent for this time of the year.

Fred Bertrand, manager of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., reports much activity in landscape work and says that the store trade leaves nothing to be desired. Many favorable comments are heard about the improved appearance of the Powell street establishment, as the result of a thorough renovation and introduction of a new decorative scheme of latticework. Mr. Bertrand is about ready to begin the manufacture and marketing of his new invention, strippers for cleaning roses and other flowers. In a tryout at the store a few days ago, one of the men cleaned three dozen roses in a minute with the Bertrand strippers, whereas one of the others cleaned about two dozen with shears and another about the same number with a knife.

Mark Ebel, of Sacramento, Cal., was a visitor last week and reported business keeping up well this spring, with indications for a big Mothers' day trade.

B. M. Joseph sums up the situation in the words, "Stock is plentiful and business is good."

J. A. Axell says that as far as his shipping business is concerned, there has been little interference from the railroad strike. He has been filling all orders in the territory west of Denver and so far has not had a complaint on account of delayed delivery.

Florists, horticulturists and amateur flower growers have combined for an exhibition of their garden and greenhouse products at a spring flower show to be given in Oakland, Cal., May 16 to 18, under the auspices of the Alameda County Floral Society. The date for the show was originally set for April 25, but was changed to permit competition and exhibition of the later spring flowers. Space has been obtained at the Hotel Oakland for the exhibition and much interest is shown in perfecting the arrangements for Oakland's first show. Roses will predominate in the displays, but prizes are also offered for various other flowers, plants, ferns, etc.

The Market.

Business was marked by a rather quiet opening last week, a fine demand for Friday, Saturday and Sunday and another quiet opening this week. There has been enough of a demand to care for all of the late arrivals, so that there is little or no reason for complaint. The local cut of roses has been lighter, but, with a few more days of warm sunshine such as have been seen recently, the greenhouses will again be able to offer plenty of stock. The outdoor flowers of spring have been popular sellers in all of the stores and there has been every reason to look for brisk business in bedding plants.

The first irises of the season came in this week from California, setting a new early record, and these shared novelty honors with the cherry blossoms which are being received from local orchards. The quality of late daffodil deliveries is all that could be asked and the narcissus cut is of fine color and exceptionally long stems. Some fine-flowering forget-me-nots in pots have been successfully featured in several stores and the deliveries of snapdragons are holding up as to both quantity and quality.

Local sweet peas are off a little in the lighter shades, but the deep pink and red varieties arriving are the best seen this year and have caused heavy sales in baskets and boxes. The combination of this flower with orchids is becoming more and more popular, undoubtedly influenced by the local shortage of lilies of the valley and gardenias. The cut of orchids is holding up to recent averages and in some instances the wholesalers have been able to care for small shipping orders as well. The color of the stock now being grown is said by local men to be the best ever seen here.

Gentlemen---It may interest you to know the results from the few Freesias that we had from you August, 1919--3000 5-8 inch and 2000 3-4 inch--5000 in all. From the 5000 bulbs we cut and sold practically 24,000 blooms. We think this is a wonderful result, and whether our methods of culture were different or not, we give great credit to the quality of the bulbs.

Some local growers report that the carnations have been a little off color during the last two weeks, but others are offering the best blooms of the season and all are handling their bench stock so as to have a plentiful supply of carnations for Mothers' day.

There is still the same good demand to report for potted stock and basket offerings, with this demand exceeding that for cut flowers or corsages. However, the social activities are increasing and the present year promises one of the busiest seasons with May and June weddings that have ever been experienced. Basket sales to the hotels are on the increase and are being cultivated by the trade, this being made possible by the increased number of tourists who are visiting the northwest this year. Potted hydrangeas and tulips are probably the biggest sellers and there is a healthy demand to report on ferns of all sizes and varieties.

The last of the California violets have been received here for this season. A few late hyacinths have been offered and cleaned up easily. The late varieties of tulips are selling well and there is an especially good sale of the more colorful varieties.

a large vase of cherry blossoms, mounted on a stand and flanked by small vases of anemones, daffodils, Keizerskroon and other tulips and greens. This firm reported trade April 24 as equal in volume to anything in the last month and the floors were entirely cleaned for the start of this week.

Decorations for the dinner given the Seattle school teachers by the Fisher Flouring Mills Co. at its roof garden April 24 were handled by Kenney's Home of Flowers. The 200 dinner guests were seated at two 40-foot tables and the places were marked by spring flowers and forget-me-nots. Joseph Goldsbary, of this firm, reports that stock has been equal to the demand.

Miss Wharton, of the Hollywood Gardens, has returned from a trip to Portland.

Mrs. Ruth Munch, of the Woodlawn Flower Shop's staff, has gone on her annual vacation.

The first California irises of the 1920 season came in for the Hollywood Gardens and created a great deal of interest in the windows where they were shown. The greenhouses of this firm are supplying practically all of its needs now and excellent wallflowers, English primroses, lupines and daffodils are being delivered daily.

Miss Anna F. Burns, of the Burns Floral Co., reports a greater demand for the smaller sizes of potted ferns. As with most of the other retailers, the cut from local greenhouses is practically supplying all needs.

George Rosaia, of Rosaia Bros., spent the greater part of last week at the greenhouses superintending the preparations for Mothers' day and he states that there will be a plentiful supply of all lines. Potted hydrangeas of fine color and strength of stem are being featured by this firm and some rich-colored tulips have also sold well.

Fred H. Rowe, of McCoy's, has been handling some fine sweet peas and carnations from this firm's own greenhouses of late. However, the cut of roses slackened up as the result of a few days of rather cloudy weather for the start.

Henry Day, manager of the Orpheum Floral Co., moved a great many daffodils and carnations during the week by featuring these flowers in the window of this store. A new and artistic sign has been painted on both the Madison street and the Third avenue sides of the store.

H. M.

Terrell, Tex.—C. R. Brown has bought the interest of Mrs. W. D. Fletcher in the Terrell Floral Co. and is now conducting the business. Mrs. Fletcher will not engage in business again here.

New Castle, Pa.—Charles M. Little, who for the last five years has been manager of the local store of J. S. Hennon & Son, has resigned his position. About May 1 he left for his home in Wheeling, W. Va., where he will take up an outdoor line of work for the summer months.

Middletown, O.—The Arcade Floral Shop has a Mothers' day window which receives much notice from the townspeople. It depicts an elderly mother receiving gifts of flowers. Mrs. N. O. Selby has anticipations of excellent sales, for Easter brought a big business, both from old customers and from new ones.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Apathy Is Strange.

The Skinner Irrigation Co., Troy, O., in sending a check to double its subscription to our campaign fund, writes, "We certainly appreciate the fact that a wide advertising of this slogan results in more business for us and it seems strange that so many of the florists require urging to contribute to this fund."

The Skinner people are quite right. It is strange. And it becomes more strange as the benefit, resulting from the small investment we are able to make with the fund available, piles up. The florists do not realize the worth of that slogan—its worth in dollars and cents. We have often called attention to this fact, especially as it is brought home to this office. Only last week we received a communication from a large advertising agency in St. Louis requesting permission to use the slogan, merely as a reference, in a page advertisement to be placed in the Saturday Evening Post as part of a series entitled, "Signs of Friendship." In making the request it said, "As you know, in Holland the hospitality of the natives is best expressed by their presentation of flowers to strangers. We have capitalized this thought in the painting of K. M. Ballantane, a proof of which we have attached hereto, the text of this advertisement beginning with the phrase, 'In Holland they say it with flowers.' Your slogan, 'Say It with Flowers,' has been so extensively advertised that it will be at once recognized in this copy of ours and for that reason has a particular value to you as additional publicity for your organization."

Extra Publicity.

It may be said here that the slogan has proved so attractive that we have had a great deal of this additional publicity. The issue of "Judge" for April 24 contained a full-page sketch demonstrating a novel use for flowers, captioned by our slogan. This sketch, by the way, is to be reproduced in the May issue of our society's Journal.

These examples serve to show how our slogan is taken in the outside world.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

BETTER TELEGRAPH SERVICE.

In the May 1 list of additional members of the F. T. D., Mothers' day is the subject emphasized by the front page. On the back page Secretary Pochelon outlines the way to better telegraph delivery service, which it is the duty of members of the F. T. D. to follow. The points touched upon are vital ones to the florist who wishes to improve his own service and to see it improved by his fellow florists. Whether you have few or many telegraph orders, read it carefully:

The necessity of every member to write plainly every order for out of town is of the greatest importance in order to have the delivery executed in the proper manner, so that it may be a credit to the one sending the gift, as well as to the florist who fills the order. State exactly what is wanted and be correct in giving name and address, city it is from, and when order is to be delivered.

If possible, persuade your customer not to specify any particular flowers or plant, so as to give the florist at the other end some leeway in filling the order. This will avoid many disappointments and will be of material help to the business.

Flowers at special days always command high prices (this applies particularly to large cities); so it would be advisable to have the purchaser spend as much as possible. All orders to the large cities should not be less than $3 and, if possible, $5, but we should under no circumstances refuse an order for a less amount. The cost of doing business in the larger cities has mounted to an alarming degree; hence the statement above is sounded as a warning.

It is also important that any member receiving an order should acknowledge receipt at once, and if any extra charges should be incurred, such as messenger service, the sender will know of this fact.

Do unto others as you would have them do unto you.

FLOWERS FOR FUNERALS.

Bright Colors to Cheer.

The thing that is needed more than anything else about a house of mourning is a little cheerfulness. There was a time not so long ago when everything seemed to be done with the object of depressing the spirits of the surviving members of the family rather than of buoying them up and giving them new hope. For instance, there was the undertaker, with an affected solemnity; there was a long white or black scarf hung on the door-bell knob, and then about the casket was massed a lot of stereotyped pure white designs, especially if the departed had reached a certain age in life. It is hard to understand why white flowers were necessary for an aged person; surely, when alive, he had been just as fond of the bright blooms as of the pure white and the florist should think of the effect on those still living.

When I was a boy double white tuberoses were used freely in funeral work; most people had the greatest antipathy to them and said the odor reminded them of a funeral. But since the florists have been "Saying It with Flowers" there has been a marked change for the better. True, the undertaker, like the poor, "we have always with us," but the scarf on the door is fast giving way to a spray of choice flowers. It is a common thing in any city now to see the flower spray instead of a scarf. The sprays have been made sometimes with orchids and other bright flowers.

About the casket white is conspicuous by its absence. Recently, in an exceptionally fine assortment of funeral offerings, made by the best florists of the city, there was not a single solid white piece. The occasion was the funeral of a florists' wife and many of the offerings came from brother florists; in this great symphony of flowers the most critical could not detect a note of discord. One could not help thinking how depressing they would have looked had they all been white.

Free Flowers from Designs.

We should all remember that the mission of flowers on such an occasion is to counteract, in a measure, the sting of death for the survivors, to give them new hope and make them feel that the sun will shine again, as well as to emphasize the fact that their friends are not buried with their loved one. This is one meaning for "Say It with Flowers."

In these days good taste has little use for stereotyped designs. The customer who goes into a florists' store to order a funeral offering has perhaps some absurd design in mind, often some emblem which has been connected in some way with the departed's life work. Here is where the tact of the salesperson has to be exercised, to show the customer that such things are no longer used, that it is extremely bad taste to cramp flowers into such designs. In many cases you will be asked to suggest something and one of the first things you think of, or may have been thinking of since your customer came in, is a spray or a fine loose cluster. Picture this to the customer in such a manner that he or she will see its superiority; the customer will be quick to see that you know best and will leave it in your hands. Now that the customer has put his trust in you, do not, by any means, betray that trust.

Something in Season.

In speaking recently with a lady who has been connected with a florists' store for over forty years, I asked her the question, "In such a case, when a customer depends upon your advice, what would you suggest?" Her reply was: "I should have in mind anything that might be plentiful on that particular day, or any thing that might be in season. For instance, take snapdragon; there is nothing that will make a prettier bunch tied with the proper ribbon. Of course, one must be governed by the price, but a spray can be made to suit any pocketbook; it is just a question of the quantity and quality of the stock you use. When I say quality I do not mean poor quality of any particular item. I mean the best quality of some particular flower that is not so high-priced as another. For instance, the gladiolus season is not far off; there is nothing that makes a finer spray than almost any color of these if properly arranged. Then dahlias will be coming along and, for my own use, I would rather have a spray of these than roses. Dahlias in the perfection in which they are now grown, with their long, stiff

More About That Dandelion

You doubtless recall that in our last week's talk together, I told you about an old gink who refused to let me pick a dandelion from his lawn, to take to my dear old Mother. Well, that was only half the tale.

Twenty years afterward, that same man, when treasurer of the church funds, called one night on Dad.

From the other room, I overheard just enough to lead me to infer that Dad was going to loan him some money to help him out of a fix involving his honor.

Promptly I thought of that Dandelion.

Promptly I went in and said: 'Dad, before you loan Deacon Duryea any money to make good on what he has appropriated from the church treasury, want to tell you about a dandelion. Perhaps after you have heard it, you may feel differently about helping this man out of his fix."

After Dad heard it, he sat there in immovable silence for what seemed like an hour.

Then he turned slowly to the Deacon and said: "Perhaps you and I better say good night to each other."

The moral of which seemingly is, that what we give, we get back, whether it be harsh words, a sunny smile, or the best service we know how, in connection with our business.

When business is a bit slack, it's mighty nice to have some of your smiles coming back.

And comforting to the cash register to have customers who know what service means, keep right on leaving their money with you.

stems and endless varieties of shades, make ideal flowers for sprays. In fact, during the epidemic of flu in the fall of 1918, when they were so much depended upon, I saw designs made of solid dahlias which were masterpieces.''

The point to be emphasized is, do not be afraid to get away from beaten paths. There are perhaps three flowers of which more bunches are made than of anything else; these are roses, lilies and carnations. These are standbys; don't work them to death. Whenever you have an opportunity, use something else; this will help to keep the public from getting tired of them. Use for green as much as possible of the foliage that service should be the biggest consideration and the motto of every retailer handling wire orders. Because of the Mayo brothers hospital in his town, he is a recipient of many orders requiring the best taste and arrangement. The Market.

Trade at the wholesale markets was fairly good last week, but the clear, warm days have greatly increased the production of all seasonable stock. While sales continue good, prices have dropped considerably since the previous week.

Little outdoor stock is coming in as yet, owing to the backward season. This fact alone kept prices from dropping still lower.

Rose consignments were heavy all the week and Premier, Russell, Ophelia and Columbia were of splendid quality, with fancies holding up well in price. Carnations are not suffering so much as other stock, as the supply has shortened somewhat. Toward the end of last week the price was up as high as $3 and $4 per hundred; extra fancies were $5 per hundred.

There has been a big glut of Easter lilies and these were selling as low as $5 per hundred. Callas, too, are plentiful and are selling below quotations. Sweet peas are in fine supply at all the markets, with quality extra fine.

Lilac, which is usually plentiful at this time, will be scarce, as the frost killed off the early varieties this year. There was plenty of other stock to be had, such as irises, Darwin tulips, valley, white and yellow daisies, calendulas and pansies, and an extra fine supply of snapdragons, which sold well.

All fancy greens are in big demand and not enough of these comes into this market to supply the demand. Flat ferns, galax and leucothoe are sufficient for all demands.

Gardeners Meet.

The St. Louis Association of Gardeners made an eleventh-hour change in the date and place of holding its May meeting. The meeting was held Sunday morning, May 2, at the establishment of the H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co., Nursery, Mo. The members met in a body at the western terminus of the Cherokee car line and were taken to the company's grounds in automobiles.

President L. P. Jensen presided over the meeting, which was largely attended. The chief feature was the talk on "Injurious and Beneficial Insects," by Herman Schwarz. Other interesting features were the reports of all the committees which have charge of the coming convention in September of the National Association of Gardeners.

After the meeting the members made an inspection tour through the greenhouses and the grounds, where a great amount of planting material, hardy as well as tender, was seen. These sights alone were worth the trip. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the officers of the company for the entertainment.

committee was held April 27 at headquarters, 1316 Pine street, with only a fair attendance. The retailers on this committee were again conspicuous by their absence.

After all outstanding bills had been paid, a discussion took place as to advertising the sale of flowers for Mothers' day and it was decided to spend $300 and to use only the newspapers in advertising this day.

It was also voted that the committee recommend to the Florists' Club at its next meeting that it appoint a new committee, to consist of three retailers, three wholesalers and three growers with the president and secretary of the club, thus forming a committee of eleven. The last meeting of the old committee will take place May 11, when it will turn over its affairs to the newly appointed committee.

Various Notes.

The fine weather last week tested the capacity of the various seed houses, giving the workers plenty to do. They had previously been having easy times, owing to the cold and backward spring.

Edward Buechel, president of the Riessen Floral Co., is still confined to his home with sickness and recent reports do not indicate much improvement.

Otto Bruenig, W. H. Kruse, A. Meyer, Mrs. T. Diemer and Mrs. Julia Pelletier, in the south end, had a busy week, with funeral and wedding work and heavy sales on plants.

The officers of C. Young & Sons Co. say that, so far this season, their mail orders for seeds, plants and bulbs are the heaviest in years.

Edward Harvey, show decorator at Grimm & Gorly's store, is making attractive window displays of cut stock and plants. Otto Klinger is the cut flower buyer and Otto Sander the plant buyer.

The leading florists in the west end, including F. C. Weber, Joseph Witek, F. H. Weber and the Sanders Nursery Co., say they are having a big spring business, with some good-sized weddings booked for this and next month. Fancy blooming plants are selling well.

A. S. Cerny last week had a heavy cut of Easter lilies of extra quality, but the exceedingly low prices on lilies will hardly pay for the bulbs.

The retailers display much enthusiasm for Mothers' day business and attractive window displays announcing this event to the public gave them many advance orders.

There is talk of a special bowling match between the Carnations and the Roses, as the members of the Carnation team are not satisfied that the Roses are the best team in the league. Both teams are eager for the match.

The Market.

There was a heavy supply of all lines of stock last week and it was fine, but the demand was not so strong as we might wish to see it. Towards the end of the week stock was beginning to accumulate. Roses were never better on the Baltimore market. Carnations seem to be trying to make up for last season and their quality cannot be beat. Sweet peas are still to be had, some of them fine, but many of them are at the end of the crop and are not so good. Snapdragon has not been plentiful at any time this winter, but what has been on the market has been good stock. Framegrown valley is beginning to make its appearance and it is as good and hard as the outdoor stock. There is plenty of all sorts of miscellaneous stock to be had; in fact, there is plenty of everything except green goods. This has been quite scarce for some time. Prices hold good and everyone seems satisfied with the condition of the market.

Advertising.

The Associated Florists had their second illustrated advertisement Tuesday, April 27, and also the second Saturday advertisement featuring the $2 box. I have heard some criticism on the Saturday advertisement about setting the price. The object of these advertisements is to move as much stock as possible through regular channels at such times as the market is inclined to be glutted, which is bound to occur at this season of the year. After the first appearance I did not hear much about the advertisement, but last week I heard from all sections of the city. Everyone that I have spoken to has had from two to six calls for this box. It will be good business to play this box Saturday for all it is worth. Every box that is

His idea was to call it a week-end box and set no price on it, this box to contain flowers for the dining table and a corsage for the lady of the house to wear to church Sunday. The ladies have made an appeal to the club for help in this sale. I do not mean that they want donations. What they want is someone with experience to help them arrange the sale. When the question was asked if the florists would be permitted to advertise the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," and it was explained to them, they said by all means, for that was just the object of the sale. Various Notes.

M. Hilpert has bought the old Rider range at Glenburnie and is wrecking and moving it to his place on Belair road, where it will be erected in addition to the present range. Mr. Hilpert is a strong believer in preparedness; he does not propose to be caught short.

Last week John J. Perry, of the S. S. Pennock Co., said, "I am going to tell you something, but it's not for publication. I am going to undergo an operation Monday, April 26." I was all sympathy at once. Monday I called at the Pennock establishment to see if the operation had been a success and if John had come out of the ether all right. When I went in, the first one I saw was Mr. Perry with his head swathed in bandages. It was only a wart on his head. You know his hair is not growing any thicker; so he had the wart removed. The ban was lifted; that's why I am telling his friends. He is doing as well as can be expected. Tate.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

Business is not so brisk as it has been for the last few months. All varieties of flowers are arriving in good quantities and previous prices continue. With the exception of lilies, all stock is of good quality.

Various Notes.

J. Wilkinson Elliott, of the Elliott Nursery Co., has closed his home on Roup street and has settled at his summer home on the Allegheny river, near Springdale. Thomas Elliott says that there has been an increase of twenty-five to thirty-five per cent in the company's business over last year.

Mrs. E. A. Williams furnished decorations for the spring ceremonials of the Masonic orders Friday, April 30.

Advertises Mothers' Day.

Following the meeting April 19, the executive committee of the Retail Florists' Club decided to set the ball rolling by coöperating on an advertising fund for Mothers' day. George M. Geraghty, chairman of the publicity committee, together with Harry James and J. J. Higgins, in motor cars kindly loaned by S. A. Frost and J. J. Higgins, visited the florists. Nearly all the growers and retailers in the city voluntarily made cash donations.

Advertisements are being run in large space in the two Sunday newspapers and in five dailies for three days during this week.

All the florists were enthusiastic about the scheme and the publicity committee has been so encouraged that it intends taking up the question of paying into an advertising fund on a percentage basis.

The unfortunate part is that we have had a backward spring, with dark days and dull weather generally, and the a marked contrast to the rush at Easter, everyone is looking forward to Mothers' day and Memorial day.

Bedding plants are beginning to put in an appearance and the seedsmen report increasing business. All the growers report a plentiful supply of geraniums, fuchsias, petunias, begonias, heliotropes, salvias, ageratums, vincas, ivy and ferns, all in good condition for Memorial day.

Fuel Situation.

The problem of coal supply, both hard and soft, is becoming serious in this city and vicinity and there is much concern among the greenhouse men as to their supply for the coming season. No quotations are being given and no orders accepted, so that, whereas the growers usually cart the year's supply in the off weeks in summer, they are unable to take any action at the present time. Several of the larger growers have had their boilers equipped for oil burning, but while they admit that they believe it is more economical than coal, they are not ready to make any statements or draw definite conclusions. But even with oil for fuel the consumers are now confronted by an increase in

The Market.

Business last week was steady, with local trade light, but shipping business was good. The supply of sweet peas is heavy and the stock is exceptionally good. Prices range from $1 to $2.50 per hundred. Carnations were also plentiful, except dark pink and red. There was plenty of Enchantress, but this is beginning to lose color and other shades are preferable. Roses are about equal to the demand. Callas are abundant and hard to clean up.

For Mothers' day, with bright, warm weather there will be a good crop of stock and, from indications on the early

The Market.

The market here is stationary and there is plenty of stock to meet the demand. Mothers' day is being looked forward to by the trade, but carnations will be scarce. Roses, sweet peas and other spring flowers will be plentiful. Funeral work is more in demand than any other kind of work.

It has rained here practically every day lately, and the local newspapers have been picturing Columbus as a

BOSTON NOTES.

Horticultural hall May 15 and 16. The class calling for a miniature rock garden is an interesting one. Classes are allotted for tulips, narcissi, hardy shrubs, etc. A. C. Burrage will make a display of 100 orchid plants in flower.

Carnation day at Salem, Mass., May 1, brought a great demand for carnations and about 30,000 were sold. The majority were furnished by A. A. Pembroke and Dolansky & McDonald.

Remarkably fine sweet peas in large quantities are coming in from D. F. Hutchinson & Sons, of Lexington, and Merle W. Farr, of the West Street Greenhouses, Reading.

John W. Foote, of Reading, is starting to send in a spring crop of colored bouvardias, which are in demand for bouquet work. He has had an excellent carnation season, growing chiefly Pink Delight, Matchless, Beacon and Benora.

Peter Fisher has had a flood of orders for his new scarlet carnation, Ethel Fisher, formerly known as Red Cross, and still has many unfilled orders. Anything Mr. Fisher puts on the market is always eagerly bought. Buyers naturally pin confidence in a man who has produced such sterling sorts and money-makers as Lawson, Enchantress, Beacon and Benora.

Eber Holmes, formerly manager of the Montrose Greenhouses, near Boston, and more recently with Mark Aitken, at Springfield, Mass., assumed charge of the Halifax Gardens, Halifax, Mass., May 1. W. E. Lenk was for some years manager of these greenhouses, which are owned by A. C. Burrage, the well known orchid specialist of Beverly Farms.

April proved true to its reputation as being a month of showers and precipitation was far above the normal. There was an excess of cloudy weather. The minimum temperature was 23 degrees, April 9, and the maximum 72 degrees,

BOSTON NOTES.

Horticultural hall May 15 and 16. The class calling for a miniature rock garden is an interesting one. Classes are allotted for tulips, narcissi, hardy shrubs, etc. A. C. Burrage will make a display of 100 orchid plants in flower.

Carnation day at Salem, Mass., May 1, brought a great demand for carnations and about 30,000 were sold. The majority were furnished by A. A. Pembroke and Dolansky & McDonald.

Remarkably fine sweet peas in large quantities are coming in from D. F. Hutchinson & Sons, of Lexington, and Merle W. Farr, of the West Street Greenhouses, Reading.

John W. Foote, of Reading, is starting to send in a spring crop of colored bouvardias, which are in demand for bouquet work. He has had an excellent carnation season, growing chiefly Pink Delight, Matchless, Beacon and Benora.

Peter Fisher has had a flood of orders for his new scarlet carnation, Ethel Fisher, formerly known as Red Cross, and still has many unfilled orders. Anything Mr. Fisher puts on the market is always eagerly bought. Buyers naturally pin confidence in a man who has produced such sterling sorts and money-makers as Lawson, Enchantress, Beacon and Benora.

Eber Holmes, formerly manager of the Montrose Greenhouses, near Boston, and more recently with Mark Aitken, at Springfield, Mass., assumed charge of the Halifax Gardens, Halifax, Mass., May 1. W. E. Lenk was for some years manager of these greenhouses, which are owned by A. C. Burrage, the well known orchid specialist of Beverly Farms.

April proved true to its reputation as being a month of showers and precipitation was far above the normal. There was an excess of cloudy weather. The minimum temperature was 23 degrees, April 9, and the maximum 72 degrees,

LINDLEY FLORIST BOX CO., QUALITY BOX MAKERS Marion, Ind.

April 20. Low temperatures continued during the first week in May.

Wollrath & Sons, of Waltham, have 14,000 cyclamens, all of which they plan to grow and flower for next fall and winter. They also have a large stock of begonias.

The R. & J. Farquhar Co. is extremely busy at the nurseries at present. The labor shortage is acute and they are some sixty men short. Office employees have worked Sundays and holidays packing up trees and shrubs in an effort to keep abreast of the heavy orders. Stock wintered well, at both Dedham and West Barnstable, and the continued cool weather is an advantage in retarding vegetation.

Professor J. Frank de Chant, director of Burdett College, will address the Gardeners' and Florists' Club May 18 on "Service."

Local carnation growers are busy planting out their stock this week. Sales of rooted cuttings have been so heavy that there promises to be only a small surplus of field-grown plants later in the season.

Mothers' day prospects are good and, as growers and retailers are planning to give the day more publicity than ever before, sales are expected to reach a large volume. There is no talk of substituting American flags for carnations as in Washington, but bright flowers and white flowers will be emphasized. W. N. C.

NEW ENGLAND GROWERS.

Organize Local at Boston.

There was a large attendance of growers at the American House May 1 to form a permanent local branch of the National Flower Growers' Association. William C. Stickel, president of the Boston Flower Exchange, was in the chair. George T. Elliott outlined briefly the aims and purposes of the organization, which are chiefly to protect the interests of the growers. Mr. Finnegan, of the Thomas J. McCue Co., spoke on the coal situation as it affected the growers. Higher prices on fuel seemed probable and growers were urged to lay in ample supplies at an early date.

It was voted unanimously, after some discussion, to form a permanent branch of the National Flower Growers' Association and these officers were elected: President, William C. Stickel; vice-presidents, Thomas Roland, Samuel J. Goddard and William Sim; secretary, George T. Elliott; treasurer, J. Frank Edgar; directors, Herman H. Bartsch, George W. Butterworth, Andrew Christensen, Peter Fisher and E. Allan Peirce. It was voted to hold meetings on the third Saturday in each month.

Boston follows Chicago and St. Louis in organizing a local. The territory

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE lateness of the planting season this year is keeping seedsmen in uncertainty concerning many lines.

COLD and wet ground has so delayed the Wisconsin pea planting that there is pessimism already concerning the season's crop.

NEARLY every seed house has dead names on its mailing list; in some cases the duplicates and names not heard from within two years constitute a considerable part of the whole. A large saving may now be made through editing the mailing list.

SEEDSMEN will be well advised to order their 1921 catalogue paper now. On orders offered in April for M. F. B. and S. & S. C., mills would not promise delivery before September and then only at market price at date of shipment. The price May 1 was about double what it was a year ago.

THE Holland bulb travelers, not counting those who have become resident in this country, have nearly all sailed for home or for England within the last fortnight. In most cases order books have more unused leaves than ever before, most of the buyers having reduced their orders at least as much as prices have advanced.

THE officials of the Federal Horticultural Board believe the Californians can supply America's need for Spanish iris. Several of the growers of freesias have been assisted to import propagating stock since the quarantine became effective. The production of Iris tingitana bulbs also will be tried out on the coast with government assistance.

THE Iowa Seed Dealers' Association will hold its annual meeting at the Savoy hotel, Des Moines, June 1 and 2. It is expected to be a meeting of unusual interest and a general invitation to attend is given to the trade. The officers of the association are: President, M. Kurtzweil; vice-president, B. H. Adams; secretary, A. M. Eldridge; treasurer, J. T. Hamilton.

BECAUSE of the decreased acreage of wheat, clovers and grasses in many sections, seedsmen anticipate a good demand for the kinds of seeds that are usually sown after other crops have been planted. In some sections where farmers had planned sowing large acreages of wheat, oats and barley, seeding operations have been delayed by snow, rain and cold weather to such an extent that corn, soy beans, cowpeas, millets and sorgos will be planted instead.

CALIFORNIA seed growers welcomed the wet weather of March. Weather conditions in all parts of California during March were favorable to agriculture and horticulture, the rainfall exceeding the normal throughout the state for the first time since last September. This was accompanied by a good fall of snow in the mountains, promising an increased water supply later for storage in reservoirs and mountain lakes. Throughout the Sacramento valley rain is still needed, but throughout the southern portions of the state the precipitation has been more satisfactory, and crop prospects accordingly are excellent.

No doubt every seed house can cut down the catalogue to some extent without impairing its selling value. It should be given careful attention.

THE season has been backward in the middle west. Cold and continued rains have kept planting operations back from ten days to three weeks later than usual, but it has prolonged the mail-order seed season.

SEEDSMEN have been unwilling to lower their prices on millets and sorgos because they look for a good demand later on. Furthermore, prices for these seeds this year, except Japanese and Hungarian millet, are lower than those of last year, whereas most other kinds of seeds are considerably higher than last year.

OF the $17,508,125 worth of seeds exported by Russia in the latest year before the war, 1913, approximately $10,500,000 were oil seeds, $5,000,000 forage grass seeds, and $2,000,000 beet and other seeds. To the United States came a total of $83,675 worth, including $12,650 oil seeds, $52,625 grass seeds and $18,400 beet and other seeds.

WESTERN SEEDSMEN ELECT.

The Western Seedmen's Association held its annual meeting at the Hotel Fontanelle, Omaha, Neb., Saturday, May 1, with an extra large attendance. The meeting, because of the many serious problems confronting the trade, was unusually interesting.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—Fred Mangelsdorf, Atchison, Kan.

Vice-president—Carl Chesmore, St. Joseph, Mo.

Secretary—Howard Webster, Independence, Ia.

Treasurer—H. G. Windheim, Omaha, Neb.

LISTING THE LAPSES.

One of the results of an oversupply of certain kinds of seeds, with which growers are heavily stocked, has been to send some of them searching for outlets. And, naturally, when the wholesale seed houses are found to be stocked up and temporarily out of the market the next step is to seek the seed retailers, from whom it is only a step to the seed planters. There is, of course, no claim that a grower should not also be a wholesaler and retailer if he will, but there are many wholesale and retail seedsmen who feel that their own orders would better be placed in support of the concerns which do not enter into competition with them.

As an indication of the trend of trade sentiment in this matter, the following letter may be cited. It was received last week by numerous growers, from one of the largest wholesale and retail seed companies in the United States:

"We are discriminating as much as possible, when placing growing contracts or buying any filling-in goods necessary in our line of business, between the growers who do a legitimate growing business and quote and sell only to seed houses and those who quote and sell direct to our customers.

"We have eighteen to twenty traveling men on the road practically the year around and they are reporting to us that many so-called 'growers' in the United States as well as in Europe are sending lists, special letters and quotations direct to our customers and, in many instances, offering goods direct to the trade we sell at as low and in some instances at lower prices than they are quoting to us or other large seed houses.

"We have now instructed our traveling men to report the date of any quotations they see and the names of all growers quoting direct to our trade, so that we may know and keep on record a list of all growers, both in the United States and European countries, who are trying to solicit our business away from us by quoting direct to our trade, as we do not intend to place contracts or orders to any extent with growers who quote direct to our customers."

deputy state seed inspector and for the last two years was seed specialist at the University of Minnesota. H. H. Valker, who has been in charge of the Valker Greenhouses for many years, retains his present position. Frank Sullivan remains in charge of the retail department. Charles J. Fisk, an attorney of Minot, is one of the incorporators, but will not be actively connected with the management of the business. George E. Valker is the general manager. He started in business in a small way more than fifteen years ago and under his guidance the business has grown at a remarkable rate.

The company is planning some extensive improvements, to be completed this year and next. A large potato warehouse and a large seed house are included among the proposed improvements. The seed house will be equipped with modern seed-cleaning machinery, the concern specializing on corn, sweet clover and alfalfa.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE Clearwater Ornamental Nursery Co. was recently incorporated at Clearwater, Fla., with a capital of $50,000. The officers are: President, H. B. Kennicott; vice-president, J. W. McNeely, and secretary-treasurer, Angus Kennicott.

NURSERYMEN in the middle west are execrating the weather. The cold April would not have been bad except for the continuous rains, which made planting almost impossible. And now we are on the eve of summer. It will be a short planting season.

A FOLDER, "Looking Both Ways Before You Buy Nursery Stock," has been prepared by the A. A. N. to be sent out to buyers of nursery stock. It explains the standards of the association's membership and solicits the buyer's cooperation in enforcing those standards.

RAIDS BY RODENTS.

Considerable damage was done last winter to trees, shrubs, hardy flowers and bulbs by rats and mice. In some sections whole beds of tulips were eaten away, while trees, even such robust kinds as poplars and maples, were entirely destroyed by these troublesome pests, which ate around the stems, in some cases to a great height. Owing to the snow hiding the depredations, the damage was mostly done before anything was noticed. Often the trees so damaged were hid from view by surrounding shrubs.

A good preventive method is to paint around the stems with whatever would be objectionable to these destroyers, such as creosote, lime, sulphur or kerosene. E. E. R.

DYNAMITE FOR PLANTING.

So numerous are the prevalent misconceptions regarding the effect of dynamite on the soil that a plain statement of what is the actual result of the explosion in the soil will set many persons right. It must be understood that the plan recommended by the dynamite propaganda is to bore a hole down to the substratum or subsoil, put in a half stick to a stick of dynamite and explode it. There are no noticeable upheavals at the time of the explosion, and no visible after-effects. The dynamite demonstrators say, "Just wait and see the results."

What does dynamite accomplish? If the substratum is stony, it pulverizes it locally; if shaly, sandy or gravelly, it raises and loosens it slightly for perhaps a foot and a half in each direction (three feet in diameter, at most); if clay or hard pan, it batters it into an impervious pot, but does not break or loosen it, any more than it would "break" the same kind of clay to pound it with a hammer. It is thus seen that the direct effects of dynamite upon the soil are decidedly variable, and the final biologic effects on the tree are fully as variable.

It is stated by competent authorities that a good soil cannot be improved by dynamite, and that nothing can so improve a soil that is not adapted to the desired purpose that it will pay to plant trees upon it. The growth of a tree is so rapid that after a year or two its roots reach beyond the area in the ground of any possible effects from dynamiting. Consequently, if any beneficial results are obtained, they are only for the first year or two, and deep hand cultivation, combined with manure mulch, would do as much and do it cheaper.

GARDEN BORDERED WITH BOX-BARBERRY
Electros of this illustration free with each order for 1000 or more if requested.

Have you seen a garden bordered with

this spring? Every plant bright and green—not a dead one. A strong contrast to the northern Buxus bordered garden, now either dead or sadly winter injured, brown and dejected looking.

Mr. Siebrecht, the veteran plantsman, on seeing the garden the other day shown in accompanying illustration, exclaimed with his characteristic enthusiasm: "Magnificent! There is a fortune in it for the nurserymen."

We offer you well rooted dormant summer frame cuttings ready to set out direct into the nursery without further expense to you at

$65.00 per 1000
All sold out of larger sizes

Many of the leading catalogue firms have already contracted with us for their supply for the ensuing season, and others are buying these frame grown plants for their own planting, preparing for the enormous demand which is sure to follow.

It is a safe statement that BOX-BARBERRY will soon be the plantsman's best seller.

QUARANTINE AGAINST ORIENT.

Affecting All Fruit Stocks.

Quarantine No. 44, effective June 1, 1920, has been announced by the Secretary of Agriculture, prohibiting the importation from Asia, Japan, the Philippine islands and Oceania, including Australia and New Zealand, of stocks, cuttings, scions and buds of fruits for propagation. This step is taken to exclude various diseases and pests known to occur in the orient, including Japanese apple canker, blister blight and rusts, the oriental fruit moth, the pear fruit borer and the apple moth. This quarantine is an amendment to Quarantine No. 37 and, like it, has qualifications which permit a little letting down of the bars. Special permits may be issued for importations needed to keep the country supplied with new varieties and for necessary propagating stock and the entry of stock for immediate export or for immediate transportation and exportation in bond is also allowed.

The chief significance of No. 44 is theoretical, as an extension of the already overextensive No. 37, rather than commercial, since the importations involved are of minor importance and limited quantity. Recently there has been some demand for fruit stock from Japan, but otherwise such importations are comparatively negligible. Asia's chief contributions to American fruit-growing have already been acclimated here.

The text of the new quarantine is as follows:

The fact has been determined by the Secretary of Agriculture, and notice is hereby given, that dangerous plant diseases, including Japanese apple cankers, Valsa mali and Diaporthe mali; blister blight, Taphrina piri, and rusts, Gymnosporangium Koreaense and G. photiniae, and injurious insect pests, including the oriental fruit moth, Laspeyresia molesta; the pear fruit borer, Nephopteryx rubrizonella; the apple moth, Argyresthia conjugella; Psylla pyrisuga, Lecanium glandi and Lecanium kunoensis, new to and not heretofore widely prevalent or distributed within and throughout the United States, occur in Asia, Japan, Philippine islands and Oceania, including Australia and New Zealand.

Now, therefore, I, E. T. Meredith, Secretary

The Market.

By the time these notes reach the readers Mothers' day will be at hand. In this city there is much adverse criticism in the press with reference to profiteering in flowers for this day. Most of these articles find source with Miss Jarvis, because, it is thought, the florists have offended her. Under the conditions the market quotations for Mothers' day may be a little high, but to all appearances everything will be sold out, as in the past.

Roses are fine at present and sell out every day, but prices have advanced considerably. Carnations are quoted at $12 to $15 per hundred, a price which seems a trifle high. Snapdragon is unusually fine. Outdoor Darwin tulips are fine and move quickly. Outdoor valley will soon be ready and will be much sought for Mothers' day. By pushing plants for this day the demand for cut flowers can be met more advantageously.

Various Notes.

H. W. Sheppard's windows are the source of much pleasure to the passers-by. The number of interested flower lovers speaks volumes for the care and art displayed in the arrangement.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Owing to the very great increase in price of all materials used in packing of plants, we find it necessary to make a small charge for same, as follows, much lower than the percentage plan:

Full size cases.....$1.50 each
Three-quarter size cases..... 1.00 each
Small size cases..... .50 each

Would suggest taking plants in paper pots whenever possible. It is a big saving in both packing and express charges.

This photograph was taken November 23, 1919, and will give a good idea of what HAMBURG LATE PINK looks like when grown to single stems and planted six inches each way.

HAMBURG LATE PINK CHRYSANTHEMUM is an improved late pink Maud Dean, having more petals and, if grown for late, will hardly ever show an open center.

The average grower of Chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. Hamburg Late Pink has been grown for the last four years, and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but for late pink is one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November by taking an early bud, but some of the flowers will show open centers. By selecting late buds, after October 1, most of the flowers are cut during December, and would advise to select late buds, as the later buds will hardly ever show an open center, and some flowers can be had even in January.

Keeping qualities are excellent and where a graceful pink flower is wanted, Hamburg Late Pink cannot be surpassed.

THE PARK FLORAL COMPANY
DENVER, COLORADO

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Business was satisfactory last week and now that the railroad strike is over out-of-town orders are arriving fast. During the first part of the week a little scarcity of greens was felt, but the supply has shown a good improvement in the last few days. The rose supply is good in quality as well as in quantity and the prices range from $6 to $20 per hundred. Carnations and sweet peas are still arriving in large quantities. Lilac and exochorda are also in abundance.

The enormous order for the Piggly Wiggly Stores, Inc., has taken all kinds of stock off the streets. This order called for 125,000 blooms and it was handled by several of the local florists. It was the largest cut flower order ever placed in this city. The Piggly Wiggly Stores, Inc., opened Thursday, May 6, and these flowers were distributed to the customers at each of the twenty-five stores. In the neighborhood of 5,000 blooms were given out at each store.

Orders for Mothers' day are piling up and predictions have been made that this will be the largest Mothers' day in the history of the florists' business.

Various Notes.

The florists will remain open Sunday, May 9, in order to supply the public with sufficient flowers for Mothers' day. Several members of the trade are getting together in a movement to donate all of their profit on this day to some charitable institution. This idea was originally advanced by Z. D. Blackistone.

Miss Louise Comley, daughter of George A. Comley, was married to Roy Wilson, of the United States Department of Agriculture, April 28. The decorations and electrical display could not be praised too highly. G. V. S.

SKINNER SYSTEM OF IRRIGATION.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

WHAT'S YOUR EXPERIENCE?

Growers who have had experience with oil as fuel for greenhouse boilers are asked to write to the editor of this department, telling of their experience, whether satisfactory or otherwise. Information is asked also as to the type of boiler, kind of burner and the firm making it, source of oil burned, its cost and comparison of results with coal.

The fuel situation, as regards both soft and hard coal, is a problem that is disturbing many growers. It isn't so much a matter of the price they must pay as it is whether they can get the needed supply when they want it. The labor disturbances, in the coal fields and on the railroads, have had much to do with this. But labor seems as restless as ever and no cheaper. In this situation the minds of many greenhousemen have turned to the consideration of oil as fuel and they wish to know the experiences of those who have tried it. What has been yours?

HOT WATER TO STEAM.

I have two houses, 20⅓x50 feet, and a residence which I heat with hot water. I want to add another house on the south side, 20⅓x100 feet. Can I continue my main and return across to the new house and get the same results from the same boiler? Should I wish to change this plant to steam heat, could I leave my piping as it is? I have a valve on each coil, so that I can shut off as many as necessary. I have eight 2-inch leads and twenty-four 2-inch returns. What size of returns should I use for the new house for hot water and, if steam is used, what size of overheads and returns should I use? How many of the leads and returns could I take out of my present houses if I changed to steam? Could I use these 2-inch pipes in the new house? Fifty feet will be protected at the north end and fifty feet will be open at the east end.

A. E. S.—Ia.

There is nothing in the letter, or in the sketch which accompanies it, that indicates the size of the boiler or the main return pipes now in use. As it is understood, the plan calls for practically doubling the present amount of glass and, although it is certain that the main and return pipes which now suffice for heating the two 50-foot houses will also answer for heating the new 100-foot house as well, if the hot water plant is changed to steam, there is no way of determining whether the boiler will be large enough to heat the additional house.

The temperature desired in the new house is not stated, but if it is the same

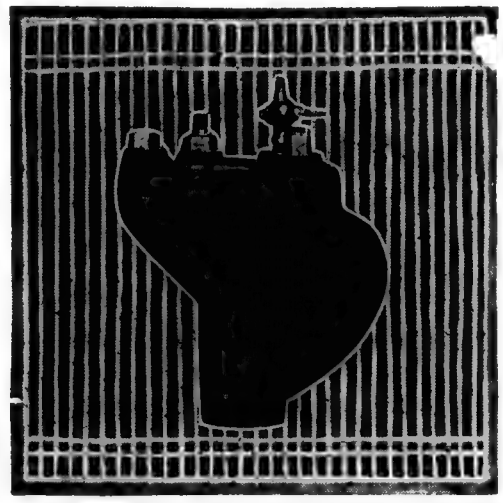
Cheaper Heat For Greenhouses

You florists who use the hot water system of heating know how air in a pipe line retards the free flow of water.



And you know that air in the pipe lines is the usual cause of uneven temperature throughout the houses.

In order to overcome this opposition to proper radiation you generate more heat and, consequently, burn more coal.

But you can avoid this needless waste and insure even heating by using a

Fisher Automatic Air Trap

(TYPE 30)

A Fisher Air Trap installed at the highest point in your pipe lines will relieve freely all air and close tight against the hot water—guaranteeing even heat throughout your houses.

It is a simple device—self-contained—has no outside adjustments that can be tampered with.

Its short, powerful fulcrum insures positive action.

Fisher standard of construction is adhered to throughout.

Forty years of hard, everyday service have proved the superiority of Fisher Specialties. Fisher Air Traps are worthy of the name they bear.

as in the other houses, which now have 500 square feet of radiation each, it will be necessary to have a boiler capable of supplying 2,500 square feet of hot water radiation, including 500 square feet for the residence. The boiler should be fully as large for steam as for hot water; in fact, the grate should be a little larger, unless a night fireman is provided, as steam will require the burning of more coal than hot water. Use a boiler rated at about twenty-five horsepower, with a grate measuring about 30x42 inches, for soft coal.

steam heating, it is preferable to use 1¼-inch pipe for houses from fifty to 100 feet in length. Without knowing more regarding the arrangement of the piping, it cannot be determined whether the flows run downhill and the lower ends of the returns are two feet above the water level in the boiler, but it is probable that about the only changes required will be to disconnect the expansion tank and place automatic air valves near the lower end of each coil, in addition to providing the usual steam trimmings for the boiler. A steam trap or pump will be needed if the returns are not well above the water level.

Even with hot water heat, do not use more than three 2-inch flow pipes and eight 2-inch returns in each of the 50-foot houses, unless there is more than two feet of glass in the side walls. For the 100-foot house, three 2½-inch flow pipes and eleven returns should suffice for 50 degrees of heat.

For heating the houses with steam, using 2-inch pipe, two flows and four returns will answer in any of the houses for 50 degrees and two flows and six returns for 60 degrees. It is preferable, however, to use one 2½-inch overhead flow in the 100-foot house and a 2-inch flow in each of the other houses. It would then be possible to maintain 50 degrees by using six 1¼-inch returns, while 60 degrees would require eight or nine returns in each house.

Big preparations are being made in Duluth this year for Mothers' day and a large amount of business is expected. The market for cut flowers will be much better this year, as there is much more stock being cut locally.

Roses last week were good and sold well. Carnations are arriving fast and, if the bright weather continues, there will be a good cut for Mothers' day. Plants and baskets will be features at some of the stores, which will help to stem the rush on cut flowers.

Various Notes.

The Tower Floral Co., of Superior, Wis., reports business good and is looking forward to a big business for Mothers' day.

MILES CITY, MONT.

Decision was rendered for the plaintiff April 21 in the suit brought by Mrs. Mary E. Gregory, proprietor of the Miles City Greenhouses, in the District court against M. H. Wallace, J. L. Wallace, Fillmore Travis and the Miles City Greenhouses, a corporation, to restrain them from the competitive use of the name, Miles City Greenhouses. The court held that the acts of the defendants amounted to "unfair competition" and, in its verdict, permitted Mrs. Gregory to enjoin and restrain the defendants from using that name in competition with herself in the business of growing and selling flowers in Miles City, eastern Montana and the western parts of North and South Dakota.

The Market.

The supply of flowers has lessened and predictions are that stock will be scarce for Mothers' day. Carnations are going to be off crop and, because of the shortage, the price will range from $12 to $15 per hundred. The present price is $8 to $12 per hundred. Roses are scarce and range from $8 to $25 per hundred. Snapdragons have been arriving in a little better supply, but have been used up daily. Both Easter and calla lilies are abundant. Other offerings include calendula, stocks, candytuft, delphinium, gladioli, pansies and a few tulips and jonquils.

Potted plants for Mothers' day will be limited in both variety and quantity. Hydrangeas, rose bushes, calceolarias, potted pansies, begonias and Easter lilies will be available.

Counter trade has been active and local tradesmen are anticipating unprecedented Mothers' day sales.

Various Notes.

The members of the Indiana State Florists' Association have been notified by letter of the entertainment of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association by them next October. The various committees in charge were named and the plans, as far as they have been completed, were outlined.

Len Elder was in Chicago last week.

Bertermann Bros. Co. is cutting some fine snapdragons.

Clarence Hirth has been ill with rosethorn poisoning.

The Circle Flower Store has been having an unusual demand for corsage bouquets.

Baur & Steinkamp are making beds for their new greenhouse. Their carnations will be planted in these and later the greenhouse built over them. In this way they save transplanting. They will have a fair cut of Rosalia, Matchless, Harvester, Laddie, Merry Xmas and Ruth Baur carnations for Mothers' day.

The Market.

With the advent of spring, florists living near cemeteries are beginning their early decoration of graves. This is followed by more elaborate decorations when the season advances. There is a considerable demand for garden and flower seeds and for hardy bushes and plants for transplanting. Business continues good, but lacks snap.

Various Notes.

A large tin sign, measuring 12x20 feet, was blown by the wind from its frame and off the top of the building at 883 Broad street, occupied by F. P. Wolfinger. It was carried by the wind up Broad street for about fifty feet, when it fell to the sidewalk, barely missing a woman. Mr. Wolfinger said that the sign had been in position about six years and had been rewired and repainted about three months ago.

THE ROSE BUG IS DOOMED

THE FLORO-CHEMICAL CO.

Announces the First and Exclusive Offering of

MELROSINE

(TRADE MARK)

The first real and only effective remedy for the destruction of the rose beetle or chafer

Reprinted from The Florists' Exchange, February 7, 1920.

Is the Rose Bug Doomed?

If there exists anywhere around this section a more cantankerous brute—one that you cannot possibly have a sympathetic feeling for, as in the old way, you drop him into the can of oil—than the Rose bug, we don't know of it, him or her. You go over your Roses in the dewy morn or at nearly twilight and gingerly pick or shake him and her off the Roses until you can't see a last one remaining—but he and his wives and family (or their close relatives) are back again on the job next day about as numerous as before, doing their spiteful best to disfigure and destroy your Roses.

Once we thought we had a remedy. Fifty young chickens one day found their way down to big old Crimson Rambler, just when the bugs were coming to the surface. What a glorious time those chicks had that day! The second day they were not so keen on the Rose bug food. And the third day they absolutely refused to go anywhere near. However, that Summer that particular bush (which was isolated from the Rose beds) was little troubled.

This story is just en passant.

Seriously, any eradicator of the Rose bug pest will be hailed with joy by commercial grower, private gardener and amateur, whatever be the form it may take or the labor it may entail.

We follow with a letter from Mr. Wohlert, an old and esteemed subscriber for The Exchange, and wish only to add our hope that the preparation he mentions will be made known to the commercial man before the Rose bug makes its next appearance.

• • • •

Editor The Florists' Exchange:

Rose bugs are surely difficult creatures to get away with and up to the present it has been almost impossible to eliminate them. Therefore, perhaps, you may be pardoned for your comment in your issue of Jan. 24, upon a remedy for Rose bugs in a manner which cannot but leave the impression that such a remedy or this particular remedy, is of but little value in ridding our Roses of this injurious insect. I hold no brief from the originator or introducer of this remedy, but having known the originator for many years and having watched with great interest his endeavors to perfect his remedy, I feel qualified and justified in stating that his remedy not only is an efficient one from my viewpoint, but know that it has been severely tested by many men well known to the trade who would not vouch for its merits as they have done were the remedy not a most excellent one.

It seems to me that your comment was not exactly proper, at this time, inasmuch as we should encourage any helpful endeavors to assist horticulture, and I am sure Mr. Barclay, the originator, should, by all means, receive a vote of thanks from all horticulturists for doing something for us which has heretofore not been done, particularly as he did not allow the remedy to be marketed until it had been tested out by such authorities as Theodore Wirth, J. Horace McFarland, Bureau of Entomology of Pennsylvania and others—this relieving buyers purchasing a pig in a bag.

I have no financial interest in this preparation, but know it to be of commercial value, also I understand a New York seedsman has thought well enough of it to pay a good price for it

Narbeth, Pa. A. R. WOHLERT.

The product of a private gardener, Mr. Hugh Balfour Barclay, of Merion, Pa., to whom horticulture owes an everlasting debt for his discovery.

Mr. Barclay conducted exactly 872 experiments before he was satisfied that his product was really effective and good enough to be placed on the market, assuring the public of an article which fulfilled every need demanded of it.

In 1919, samples were sent to the most eminent Rosarians and Horticulturists in America for tests, and all have voiced their approval by word and letter. To the skeptical ones, we will gladly mail copies of written testimonials.

MELROSINE while destroying the Rose bug does not leave a blemish or spot on the flower, nor has it any odor.

MELROSINE when used is diluted with twenty times the amount of water. Full directions for use on each can.

MELROSINE is sold as follows: Sample cans, enough to make a gallon of diluted mixture for thorough trial on a number of plants, 50c; per pint, $1.00; per quart, $1.75; per 2 quarts, $3.25; per gallon, $6.00; per 5 gallons, $25.00; per 10 gallons, $45.00.

A special discount of 10 per cent is allowed to florists and growers and a further discount if put in stock for selling over the counter.

HERE IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY to make an extra dollar when trade is dull.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

Stock moved well last week, but there was a shortening up on some lines. There were hardly enough roses to go around, as they are going off crop. Carnations, which have been so plentiful for some weeks, are a little off, but the growers promise a good cut for Mothers' day. Business has been snappy all the month. Funeral work has fallen off in some of the retail stores, while others report good orders every day for the week. The wholesale price of carnations for Mothers' day is $12 per hundred. They will sell in the retail stores for $2.50 and $3 per dozen.

Various Notes.

Samuel Murray is long on lilies, but they are not going to waste. He had an unusually fine crop at Easter and business has held up so well since that he is working them off without loss.

One of the wholesale florists sent out a wedding order marked "Funeral flowers" during the recent railroad strike. "I'd rather miss a funeral than a wedding any time," he said, "and as the chances are the bride did not know how they were marked, it was all right. The florist who ordered them was glad to get them anyway."

S. Bryson Ayres sold sweet peas, carnations and cut spring flowers from his farm at his seed store April 30 for the Chicago Tribune flower fund, which will be used to decorate the graves of American soldiers in France Memorial day. The result was a disappointment, but it is believed to be due to lack of advertising. Mr. Ayres decided on the plan too late to get anything but a local notice in one of the newspapers the evening before and, as he sells cut flowers at retail only on rare occasions, scarcely anyone knew of the offer. To augment the fund, Mr. Ayres will give the day's receipts for flower seeds. The Kansas City Star is coöperating with the Chicago Tribune and will forward subscriptions from here.

The first advertisement for Mothers' day of the associated florists of the two Kansas Cities appeared in the newspapers May 2. It was a quarter-page advertisement headed with "Say It

King GREENHOUSES

Strong, Sunny, Commercial Houses that Pay Dividends.

King Greenhouses have for years had the reputation of being wonderful growing houses.

The reason for this is that we pay as much attention to the development of the details of construction in our commercial greenhouses as in our private estate work.

Strength is the first characteristic of every King Greenhouse and yet our type of construction enables us to build durable light framing members which cast very little shade.

Sway bracing, gable bracing cross ties from eave to eave and yet very little shadow—that's why King Greenhouses produce so many first quality flowers that although their first cost may be a trifle more the returns pay much greater dividends in the long run.

Mrs. T. A. Moseley used jonquils and calendulas to carry out the Kansas color for the annual luncheon of the Council of Women's Clubs in Kansas City, Kan., May 1.

Tucker Smith, president of the Pinehurst Floral Co., who was in the city April 27, said that his men are planting 150,000 carnations at Pleasant Hill, Mo. This firm has lately finished a new propagating house and is planting new stock of Madame Butterfly, Russell and other roses.

Mrs. Koppenhaver has had a good business this spring in planning flower beds and outdoor arrangements for a number of new homes in a suburban addition on the Kansas side. She also has about 100 hanging baskets in the greenhouse to be delivered when the weather warms up.

Mrs. M. E. Irby, of the Flower Shop, Memphis, Tenn., was in the city last week.

E. A. Humfeld will begin planting the flower beds in Electric park about May 10. The park opens May 23. He has had the contract for this landscape work for many years. He has had such a heavy crop of sweet peas that he has been wholesaling them for a month. From now on he will have only enough for his own use.

Two big decorations were among the week's orders for the Muehlebach Flower Shop. One was the annual Rotary club dinner April 29, attended by 250 couples. There were forty-one tables, each with a basket of Columbia, Russell and Ophelia roses. The other was a dinner at the Blue Hills country club May 1.

Miss Dolly Miller has bought the interest of her former partner, Mrs. Jennie Richards. Mrs. L. Laundy is manager of the store.

MISCELLANEOUS

TERMS OF SALE.

Cash with order unless special arrangements are made or orders are from parties that I know are absolutely responsible and reliable. Add 5% to total amount of sale for packing charge unless plants are wanted sent in clay pots, then a charge of 10% is made, however under present conditions, I do not advise nor care to have orders where plants are to be sent in pots. Buyer must be responsible for all stock when same has been accepted from shipper by the carrier and proper receipt issued. I WILL NOT DEVIATE FROM THIS RULE, but where buyer is reasonable, will do all that can be done to help to get proper adjustment. Do not ask for stock to be sent via parcel post unless you are remitting sufficient amount to cover postage. Under the present peculiar conditions you cannot expect the shipper to do more than comply with the wishes of the carriers for I know of many instances where packages were packed and taken to the express office only to be refused, again, where they were accepted one day and returned the next day; therefore if you get impatient, place the blame where it belongs and if you are not broad minded enough to do so then I do not care for your business, for man can do but so much.

I can assure you that I am as anxious to get stock through as quickly as possible but there is an element between the buyer and the seller which neither can control, therefore I am using this space in telling you if you are not aware of the conditions.

If you are located near a large distributing center, it is needless to tell you, but if you are situated farther out, you probably cannot understand the conditions so freely, and really this is a subject that the trade papers ought to tell you more about, but little is said about it except when the condition begins to be felt more keenly in a more personal way.

However let us trust that we shall soon have more normal conditions which will work for greater harmony.
A. M. AUGSPURGER, PEORIA, ILL.

POTS

FLOWER POTS. Clay, red ones, f. o. b. St. Louis, Mo. I can but say that the conditions are such that Flower Pots will be one of the scarce items for the coming season. Do you know that a few years back there were several hundred potteries in the country making Flower Pots? Do you know that there are probably less than 50 today making Flower Pots? Do you know that the two items connected with the delivery have made such an advance that there cannot be any other answer except that Flower Pots will have to sell for more money? Labor and packing material have made such an enormous increase to the expense account and the end is not yet, therefore, I would advise early orders for your next season's wants, it matters not if you buy through me or not, but the conditions are such that you may do without sufficient supply another season if you do not prepare in advance. To protect as far as it is possible to protect for future, I would advise you to make up your list of wants now and specify about date you want shipment made. This is no idle talk, for I am in touch with the markets and may say that I sold two cars of pots a week for several weeks past and to those who are keen to the existing conditions.

These prices are quoted for immediate acceptance and subject to change without notice; can supply smaller sizes now except 4-in., balance later on.

Size	2-in.	2¼-in.	2½-in.	3-in.
Price per 1000	$8.00	$8.55	$10.25	$12.45
Size	3½-in.	3¾-in.	4-in.	5-in.
Price per 1000	$14.45	$15.55	$18.30	$34.55

Size .....5½-in.
Price per 1000..$42.00

Also 5½-in. by 5 in. deep, an ideal Lily pot as the pot is not too high for a short plant and plenty high enough for a tall plant and is wider at the bottom than the standard 5½-in. pot, $42.00 per 1000. Sold a car load to one grower.

Size	6-in.	7-in.	8-in.	9-in.	10-in.
Per 100	$5.50	$9.40	$14.80	$22.35	$30.65

5-in. and up besides standard sizes can also supply the three-quarter, or as sometimes called, Azalea pot; also bulb pans, all at same price as standard size.

If you can use a car load, write me and send your list along and I will quote you special price. In car lots, unless specified, will pack all sizes above the 3-in. loose in car. If wanted crated, mention as they will cost considerable more. A. M. Augspurger, Peoria, Ill.

WOOD LABELS

LABELS FOR NURSERYMEN AND FLORISTS.
Benjamin Chase Co., Derry Village, N. H.

Lake Charles, La.—Brennan Bros. have opened a floral department, called the Garden Shop, in connection with their business in seeds, poultry supplies, etc.

Lancaster, Pa.—Christian B. Groff, who has been growing pansies, gladioli and chrysanthemums for several years, expects to erect a greenhouse this spring.

Harrisburg, Pa.—The florists' shop conducted by Miss Ruth Maeder, 706 North Third street, has been enlarged so that she now occupies the entire first floor of the building.

DISEASED GERANIUM LEAVES.

I am sending a few geranium leaves to find out what is the matter and what can be done for them. We pick off the affected leaves and the next day there are just as many in the same condition.
P. E. R.—Minn.

The condition of the specimen leaves indicates that your geranium plants are affected with some serious trouble with which I am not familiar. Not knowing your cultural methods or the conditions surrounding the plants, it is difficult for me to suggest just what to do for the trouble. The best that I can advise is for you to have one of the prominent growers of your vicinity look over the plants to see if he can help you out in the matter. I should suggest that you show a plant or two to Theodore Wirth, superintendent of the Minneapolis park system, and ask his advice. M. P.

GERANIUM SEEDLING.

I am sending you a specimen of a red geranium, which I have purchased under two different names, and also a variegated one. Can you tell me the correct name of the red one? The other I raised from seed. Is it a known variety or is it a new one? The bloom on it lasts longer than that on any other I have. Y. & S.—Pa.

The geraniums arrived in a badly rotted condition, making it difficult to tell anything about them. The red variety could be either Alphonse Ricard, Decorator or Peter Henderson, three varieties that are alike as regards color and growth, but the specimen was too far gone to tell what it is. If the variegated variety is of your own raising from seed, then it is a seedling, but it is impossible for me to offer any opinion as to its value from the specimen received. M. P.

TOO LIBERAL TREATMENT.

I am sending some geranium leaves, from plants of Buchner and Viaud. The disease on them seems to be a scald or wilt, attacking Buchner chiefly. The plants are strong and healthy, and I cannot see any cause for such a disease.
J. H.—Kan.

Judging from the thick, succulent appearance and heavy ribs of the sample leaves, I would say the indications point to your geranium plants having become bloated from too liberal treatment. In comparison with the foliage of the same varieties of our own stock, the samples submitted show a marked degree of coarseness.

I am of the opinion that the trouble can be traced to some soil or treatment that is producing an abnormal growth, easily affected by disease. I should advise for the plants a lower temperature, with plenty of ventilation as the weather will permit, less water at the roots and drier conditions about the house.

If the plants have not received their final repotting, give them a different soil, one not so rich, for this potting and allow enough space between the plants for a free circulation of air. M. P.

The Rafters in Heacock's House

In our last two Ads, you will recall, we called especial attention to the great width between the two columns in our 78-foot house.

Now let's see how and what our rafters are that such a thing can be done and the house have ample strength and rigidity.

From the column to the ridge we use a rafter 3½ inches deep and ⅛ inch thick, on one side of which is hot riveted a 1½x1½x3-16-inch angle.
See B and C on above illustration.
This angle prevents the rafter bending or buckling sideways.
Compare in your mind the small amount of shade a rafter of that size casts in connection with the trussing necessary in two column houses.

From the column to a point just above the grade line we run one solid rafter and post combined.
It measures 5 inches wide and ½ inch thick. See on above cut.

Bear in mind that there are no welds or splices of the rafter with the post.

They are in one solid piece from column to the heavy cast iron post base; the latter embedded in concrete 12 inches below grade.
Every point is as strong as every other point.

Now look at that column cap and see how rugged it is.
Note how its many bolts bind the rafters and column securely together.
Don't lose sight of the fact that the cap is bolted through and through the column.
No possibility of a slip off with that cap.

Be on the lookout for our next Ad about more of the strong points of this Samson-like construction of ours and remember that we go anywhere for business. Or to talk business.

THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE PASS YOUR GREENHOUSES

Do you give them any suggestion to buy flowers as they pass?

Think! of this opportunity you are passing up every day. GREAT—BIG—WONDERFUL greenhouses full of beautiful flowers. All kinds of good selling suggestion space going to waste, while it should be doing you some good.

PUT UP A "SAY IT WITH FLOWERS" BILLBOARD. Place it in a conspicuous place where it can't help but be seen by everyone who passes (as shown in above illustration). If only ONE out of 1000 passing, acts on the suggestion and buys flowers you'll be money ahead because the sign will cost you less than 25c per week based on its lasting 2 years. It will last longer than 2 years because—the sign is made of metal.

Every floral establishment in the U. S. A. and Canada should consider this billboard. The same type of sign would cost you at least $100.00 if you went outside to buy it. And here the S. A. F. offers it to you at cost—and at a quantity rate, $50.00. Yet some florists fail to grasp the opportunity.

THE S. A. F. CONTRACT WITH SIGN BUILDERS EXPIRES SHORTLY. ORDER NOW—Don't keep putting it off.

BUILDING BIGGEST CHAIN OF STORES

With the rapid expansion of the florists' trade, the chain store idea has taken root in its retail ranks. Small systems have been established in various parts of the country. The biggest so far have appeared in New York's metropolitan districts. One of these is described here.

THE era of coöperative buying and selling, of which the chain store system is an important factor, has arrived to try to meet public opinion in the lowering of the high cost of living. The principles of chain store selling — buying in large quantities, selling cheaper because of the saving in the buying, having systematized office forces and an economical operation throughout —are obvious to all.

The benefits of such a system are many. They are applied, in the first place, to the proprietor through the economical buying, operating and selling and, in the second place, to the public through the opportunity to secure flowers at cheaper prices.

Economical buying, one of the outstanding features of the system, is brought about by having one purchasing department in which all stock, accessories and needs of all the stores are purchased in large quantities. Economical operation, the method in which the stores, or the links of the chain, are operated as a single unit, having the same methods and giving the same service, is a prime factor throughout.

Sales Appeal.

If the chain store can sell flowers, even at times when stock is scarce, at so-called popular prices, there is no question of its importance. Its appeal, which is made to the middle classes primarily, must contain the idea of lower prices and if the saving that is made in the buying and operation is not passed on to the customers, it will fail in its purpose. By this lowering of the price when flowers are plentiful and holding them low at other times, when it is possible, more people can be brought to the realization of a desire for the florists' product and, in that way, the number of steady buyers is increased.

Cash Basis.

An important feature of the chain store is that all sales are made on a cash basis. One could say that the business is operated on the idea that "a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush," or, as applied to the flower business, $1 in the cash register is worth $2 on the books. But, in this selling for cash, the idea of service must not be neglected while giving the customer more for the money. Without service, the saving in dollars and cents by quantity buying would not be sufficient to win success for the system.

Usually a store of the chain system type is located where the transient trade is strong. The wisdom of this is obvious, as the trade, for the most part, relies upon those passing to see something attractive in the window to awaken the desire for flowers. A store of this type could not be located off on a side street and be a success.

There have been started in the last few years chain stores of many kinds. There are more famous chains in other retail trades, but there are several successful ones in this one. One of the largest systems in the florists' trade is that of Joseph Trepel, Brooklyn, N. Y. To Brooklyners the name Joseph Trepel is well known, for Mr. Trepel's system covers Brooklyn like a blanket.

Joseph Trepel.

The history of the business career of Joseph Trepel is interesting. When he was 14 years old he started as an errand boy for a Brooklyn florist at a salary of $3.50 per week. He worked there until the usual slow season arrived and he was released. He was unable to secure another position immediately and decided to act on the knowledge he had gleaned from his short stay in his former position.

Independent.

He went to the wholesale market and bought $5 worth of cut flowers and made them up into bunches. He went on the street and sold them to passers-by and realized a profit of $13 the first day. From then on he did not look for another position, but continued this kind of business for several months, until he had saved enough money to rent a basement at the corner of Fulton and Bond streets.

Starts Chain.

He remained at this place until 1905, when he was forced to vacate, owing to the fact that the building was purchased by a department store. He then located at Lewis avenue and Hancock street and did an enormous business from the start, enabling him in 1908 to purchase a building of his own at Broadway and Reid avenue and open an additional store there.

The business, founded upon the idea of service and an effort to please the customers, was continually increasing and it grew to such an extent that in 1910 he opened his third store, at Broadway and Decatur street.

By this time the business was well established and he had a good working organization built around him and he was inspired with the idea of opening a chain of flower stores, something which had never been attempted by any florist. Accordingly he started work on his idea and in 1911 he opened his fourth store. Right from the start his idea proved practical. He was well satisfied with his effort and opened one more new store each year thereafter until in 1914 he had seven stores operating in his chain. The Review at the time gave an example of his publicity as "Brooklyn's largest florist" when his chain numbered four links. It was a post card, carrying the portrait of his daughter and views of the fronts of "My Daddy's Four Stores."

War Hits Plans.

With 1914 came the world war, unsettled conditions and high prices. Mr. Trepel discontinued adding any more links until after the armistice was signed in 1918. Then he again became active and his chain has been lengthened by the addition of four more stores, making a total of eleven stores now in operation.

In conducting the business Mr. Trepel has five separate departments, each with its own specialty and its own attendants. They are the purchasing department, where four buyers are maintained, two for cut flowers and one each for plants and supplies; the clerical department, which Mr. Trepel believes is the most essential one in the management of chain stores, which is conducted by a head bookkeeper and four assistants; the supply department, which is operated in the building at Broadway and Reid avenue, where wire frames are made, which, after being mossed, are distributed to the various stores ready for use, all other supplies being distributed in the same way; the delivery department, having automobile service as well as special messengers, and the retail department, which, because of its contact with the public, is most important, as service is the predominating feature of the stores. At the present time there are 125 people employed in the various stores and departments.

Uniformity of Appearance.

The uniformity of appearance, which is a feature of nearly all chain stores, is not lacking in the Trepel chain. With most stores of this type all the fronts are painted a like color and have a certain trade-mark prominently displayed. The exteriors of Trepel's stores, although not all alike, owing to different locations and styles of fronts, have large electric signs displaying the name of Joseph Trepel. The interiors of the stores are uniform in being fitted with small French mirrors and purple velour chair cushions, draperies, etc. All of the woodwork and the wicker furniture is white enameled and the floors are of white tile. In one store alone, the Flatbush avenue and Beverly road store, 1,800 French mirrors were used.

Mr. Trepel says that he has by no means reached the end of his chain and he expects to add many more links.

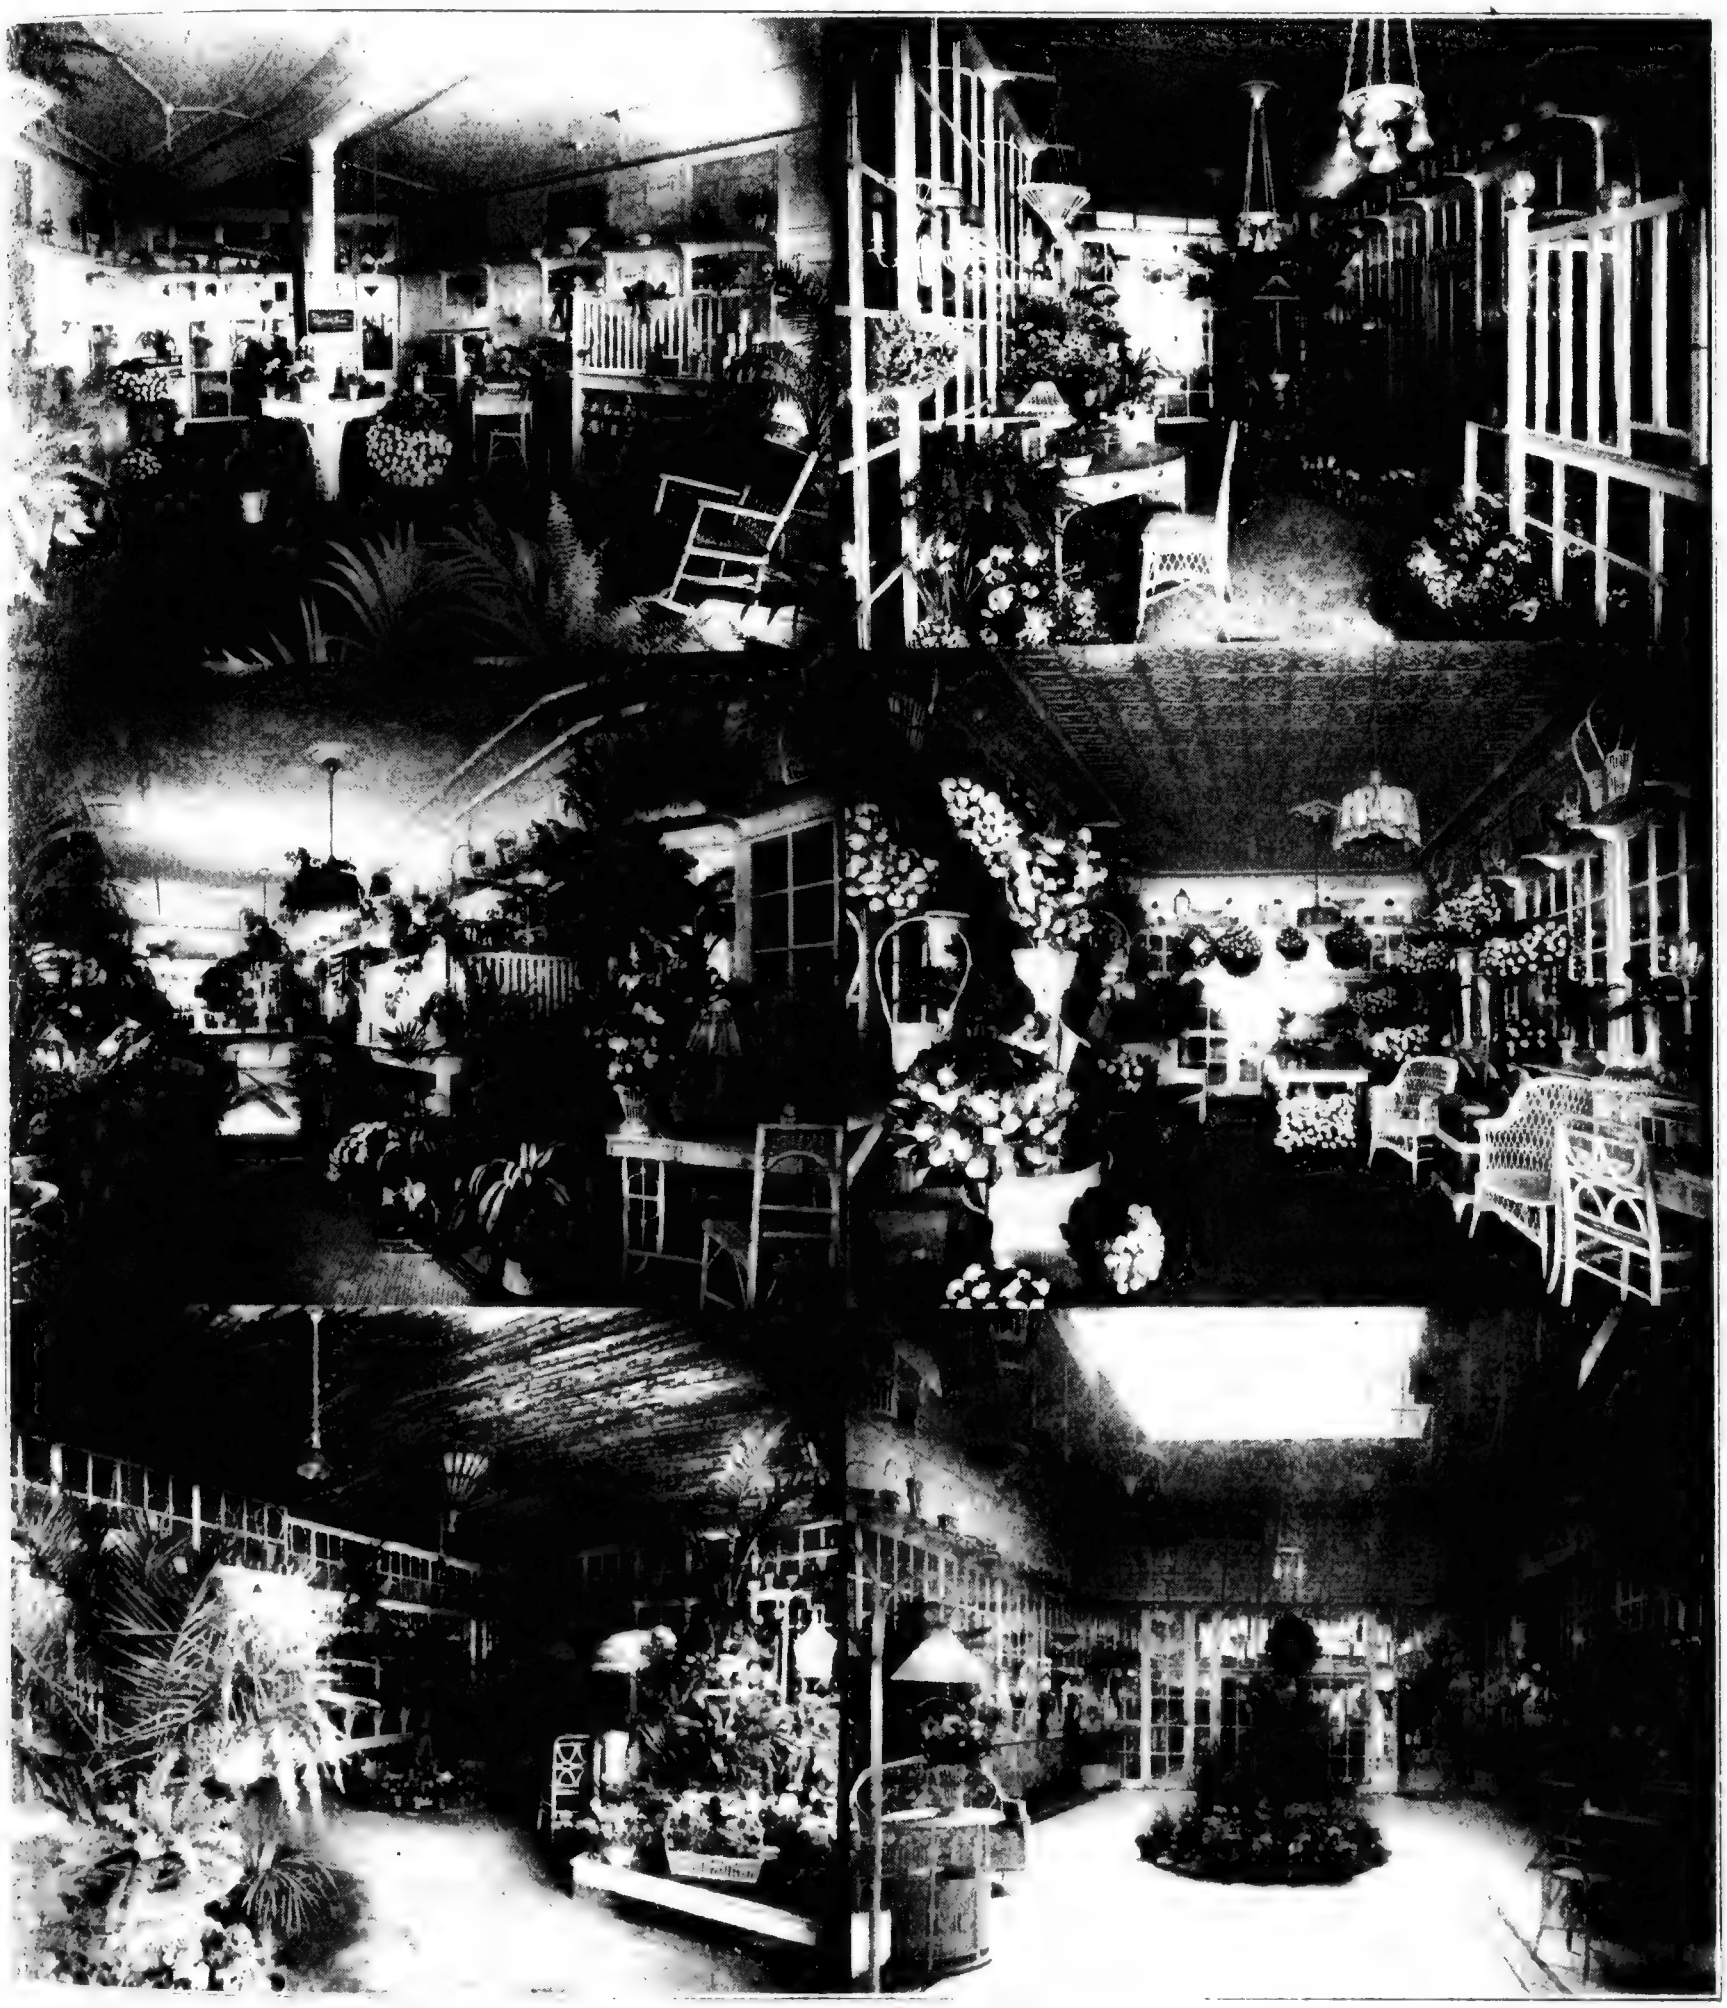
PEONIES AT SARCOXIE RUINED.

Hail Storm Devastates Fields.

Accompanied by exceptionally heavy hail and rain, a hurricane swept across the central and southwestern portions of Jasper county, Missouri, on the afternoon of May 6, causing almost instantaneous floods and doing great damage to growing crops and property. Virtually all of the peony fields near Sarcoxie were devastated, causing a loss that will total thousands of dollars.

According to newspaper reports, hail fell until the ground was covered to a depth of eight to ten inches on level ground and in many places it drifted along the roads to a depth of three feet.

Peony growers report that only a half crop had been grown this year because of the unfavorable weather conditions and two-thirds to three-fourths of this half was destroyed by the storm. Some of the fields were completely demolished, nothing but a few stalks and stems remaining after the storm had passed. A number of farm buildings were wrecked near Sarcoxie.



Berries and small fruits also suffered untold damage. A heavy downpour accompanied the storm, more than an inch of water falling in fifteen minutes.

PROMOTING GARDENS.

Chicago Committee in Action.

The Chicago Florists' Club appointed a garden committee to promote the war-time occupation of gardening in order to bring down the high prices of peace. On the committee are Ralph B. Howe, of the W. W. Barnard Co.; John P. Degnan, of Henderson's Seed Store; Everette R. Peacock, of the Everette R. Peacock Co.; Ed. H. Goldenstein, of Vaughan's Seed Store, and James Morton, chairman. Not content with general urgings in behalf of gardens, the committee set about to produce actual results, to incite action on the part of the public. To this end it is sending out booklets containing cultural information, which were furnished by a Milwaukee insecticide manufacturing company. It is also distributing a folder containing a selected list of helpful garden books for the amateur. With this literature went the following letter, on the Chicago Florists' Club stationery, signed by the committee:

The Chicago Florists' Club, having the good of the city at heart, is, through its garden committee, urging you to grow more flowers, fruits and vegetables. Every garden is a beautiful expression of civilization, intelligence and culture—they foster the refinement of our people. Chicago is the Garden City. The Florists' Club desires to emphasize this fact more this season than ever before.

There is more need for back-yard gardening this year to reduce the high cost of living. More home gardens are needed now than during the war. Every home garden means that one family at least will enjoy the pleasure of fresh home-grown vegetables. If possible, get a garden. Do it now!

More women should take an interest in the production of food, because it is the women who manage the commissary of our homes. The city's children should also take a hand. Their attention should be called to the benefit of home gardening as a means of health, pleasure and profit. If you can't get a garden, get a hoe and help those who have one.

Enclosed is a booklet, "Garden Pests and Their Control." It is illustrated with some interesting colored prints showing the common garden insects that need to be controlled to make the garden a success. The committee has another booklet, "Corona Garden Guide," a very helpful garden manual, containing general cultural instructions. This can be had on request at the leading seed stores of Chicago.

The garden committee will at all times gladly furnish information to all who may seek it on any problems that arise throughout the year in the process of their gardening operations.

DETROIT, MICH.

Detroit is to have another new and up-to-date flower store, one of the largest in the United States. The plan is that of the Pappas brothers, who are identified with the Central Floral Co., of Detroit and Chicago. There may be others interested by the time the opening day arrives, in late summer.

The location is at the intersection of Woodward avenue and Parsons street, there being entrances on both thoroughfares. The room is "T" shaped, the main store, thirty-two feet wide, running back from Woodward avenue seventy-two feet, to the point where it cuts into the middle of the side of the store 39x80 which faces on Parsons street. While the Parsons street frontage will have fine show windows, the cross arm of the "T" will be the workroom. In the main salesroom there will be two large display refrigerators and in the work space there will be a large storage refrigerator, affording facilities for carrying a large stock of flowers. In the basement space has been obtained for a Kroeschell ice machine to operate the cooling system. The A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, has been given a contract for the complete outfitting of the store, said to be the largest fixture contract in the history of this trade.

S. A. F. CONVENTION PLAN.

For Trade's Display at Cleveland.

The trade exhibits at the S. A. F. convention in Cleveland, August 17 to 19, will be staged on the third floor of the Ninth Avenue Garage, at St. Clair avenue and East Sixth street. The price of space this year will be 60 cents per square foot, not including accessories of staging. The arrangement of the displays may be seen from the floor plan reproduced on this page. The exhibits will be grouped according to the following classification:

Plants—Spaces Nos. 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96.

The advisory committee regarding the trade's display is composed of F. C. W. Brown, Herman P. Knoble and Carl Hagenburger. Reservations for space should be addressed to Secretary Young.

NEW ALBUM OF DESIGNS.

"All right, boys, let her roll," called the pressman. And the big press started to turn out the first form of the new edition of the Album of Designs. The fifth edition did not last many months, so heavy have the orders been for this popular aid of retail florists; so now the Sixth Edition is being printed and will be ready within a short time.

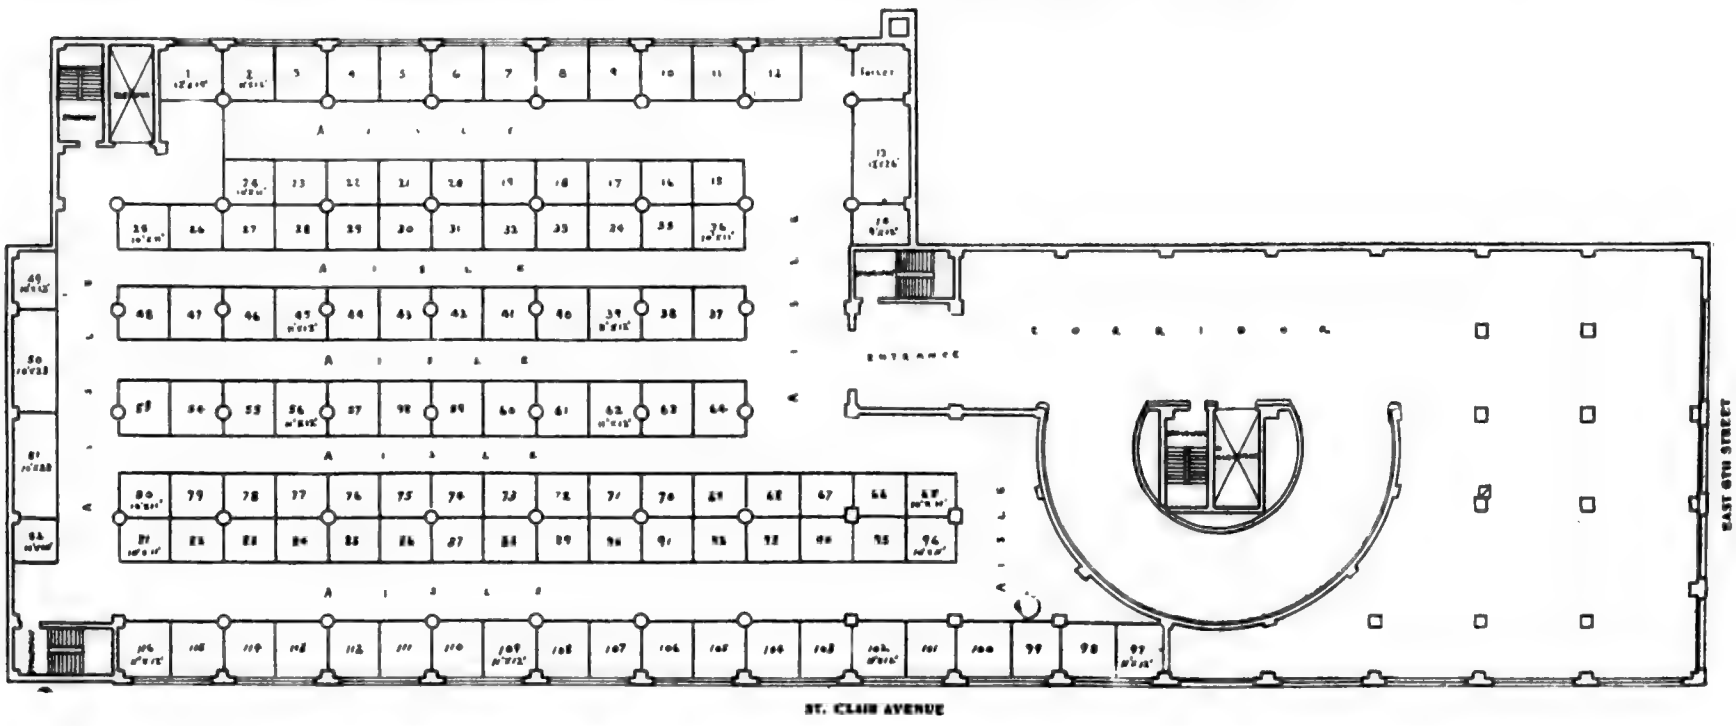
The new edition is maintained at the same standards of paper and binding as the old, although, in spite of the greatly increased cost of both, the price of the Album of Designs is raised only a small amount. Some changes in the nature of improvements have been made, enabling this volume to be of even greater service to retailers than was the last one. As the past sales have shown, there is nothing that serves the retail florist so well in showing funeral pieces, brides' bouquets and other forms of florists' art to customers at so low a cost as the Album of Designs prepared for the trade by the publishers of The Review.

TERRE HAUTE CLOSES SUNDAY.

The Terre Haute Florists' Club, Terre Haute, Ind., at a special meeting held Monday, May 3, passed a resolution to the effect that all places of business in the trade should close Sunday, holidays excepted, on and after June 6, 1920.

The secretary of the club is N. B. Stover and his firm, N. B. & C. E. Stover, has issued a neatly printed notice announcing the change in its hours and adding the following explanation: "For forty-five years we have been serving the public seven days a week and we feel that we are entitled to a day of rest. We also feel that our employees should have the opportunity of observing Sunday."

LAWRENCE, KAN.



Ralph W. Ward, of Cameron, Mo., has bought the Flower Shop, which was successfully managed for the last ten years by Mr. and Mrs. George Ecke, who will take a needed rest. Mr. Ward is now building two Lord & Burnham Co. iron-frame houses, each 40x200 feet, which he will devote to roses, chrysanthemums and carnations. Business at the shop is brisk. Mr. Ward is a life member of the S. A. F. and is joining the F. T. D.

The Whitcomb Greenhouse is having a heavy demand for bedding plants just now, after a busy season of funeral work.

A. Van Horbeek, of the Lawrence Floral Co., is on the sick list, suffering from an abscess in the throat, an aftermath of the flu. This of course leaves Mr. Vawter with his hands full from early morning until late at night in taking care of his orders.

Mrs. Brooks, of the Oread Greenhouses, has had a busy season all winter and had a nice crop of carnations for Mothers' day.

The Buch Floral Co. has about 50,000 pansy plants finding a way to market.

MOTHERS' DAY MATTERS

THANKS TO MISS JARVIS.

From all over the country come reports of record-breaking Mothers' day sales. Though the weather man was against florists inasmuch as he hindered crops so that the supply of cut stock was far from adequate, he favored the retailers with a balmy summer day May 9. Everything in cut flowers sold out and plants went well. So strong was the demand that the wholesale markets were cleared out. Carnations responded in price to the excessive demand and even then were sold at prices below what some florists say they might have got. Despite the trade's efforts to turn the call for carnations into other channels, the demand for it as the day's flower was overwhelmingly strong. When they were sold out, other flowers followed and most retailers closed their doors with empty iceboxes. Many turned away buyers.

That they did not have to turn away more, thanks are due to Miss Anna Jarvis, now so well known, if not endeared, to the florists' trade, that she does not need to be introduced as the head, if not all the rest of the anatomy as well, of the Mothers' Day International Association. Her propaganda against the use of flowers in the observance of Mothers' day this year was so widespread that no florist, it would seem, need be enlightened as to her efforts.

The Review's history of the making of Mothers' day in its issue of April 29 made it sufficiently clear that florists and not Miss Jarvis are responsible for its national observance today. At this stage, however, no individual or association can dictate to the American public its mode of observing the holiday. Flowers have been and will continue to be universally associated with Mothers' day. How little this sentiment was affected by Miss Jarvis's press-agentry was demonstrated last Sunday. The florist may feel that the only thanks he owes Miss Jarvis are that, as a result of her efforts, he did not have to turn away more buyers than he did May 9.

FLOWERS OR FLAGS?

S. A. F. vs. Miss Jarvis.

The members of the trade throughout the country were much surprised, judging from the correspondence reaching the S. A. F. promotion bureau, at a dispatch, dated at Washington and emanating from the Mothers' Day International Association, of which Miss Anna Jarvis is the head, to the effect that flags should be used rather than flowers on Mothers' day, owing to the high prices charged by florists for flowers on the occasion. Charges were made that the florists were profiteering.

One of the New York papers went further, quoting an interview with a misinformed prelate, at which it was declared that so many carnations had already been bought up as to make it impossible to purchase them except at exorbitant prices, $1 per flower being the amount named.

The Mothers' Day International Association also sent propaganda to newspapers individually, of which the following, received from a prominent metropolitan newspaper in Massachusetts, is a copy:

City Editor,
Dear Sir:—

One of our slogans this year is, "Do not buy flowers for Mothers' day, but help us to stop florists' Mothers' day profiteering."

Will you help us to stop this graft?

Mothers' Day International Association.

Charge of Infringement.

In addition to all this, the following letter was received by the secretary of the S. A. F. from the Mothers' Day International Association by registered mail, so that a personal receipt was demanded:

Gentlemen:—

This is notice to the Society of American Florists and all concerned that you are infringing on the trade-marks and copyrights of the Mothers' Day International Association, Inc., and Anna Jarvis, both of Philadelphia, through the use and sale of florists' supplies and printed matter bearing the words, "Mothers' Day," and the white carnation, etc.

It is also notice to each and all of you to at once discontinue these infringements, or we shall proceed against you to the full limit.

You have been effecting sales through misrepresentations to the public as to our emblem and through infringements, and now, in addition to the profiteering of years past, you have entered upon a new line of trade for the purpose of further profiteering and free advertising.

It is not believed that florists generally understand facts as they exist against Mothers' day, through the propaganda of some persons at the head of your society. We do not believe many florists have contributed to the S. A. F. money to be used to misrepresent facts regarding Mothers' day, or to annoy the Mothers' day association and interfere with the welfare of its work, or for litigation, or for other expenses for which their money has been spent in some ways. It is our purpose to investigate if contributions to your bureau were for these purposes and for infringements upon moral and legal trade rights, which are recognized as dishonorable in all lines of business.

To us it seems a small matter for your society to have proceeded against Mothers' day welfare in the way it has through some of its representatives in order to sell a parcel of posterettes and posters and similar matter through infringements. We asked you to have a better understanding, but you refused.

It is hoped that any other movement considering the use of flowers will profit by our unfortunate experience, annoyance and expense. We shall certainly not hesitate to protect any we can.

Trusting that we may have a prompt assurance of your discontinuance of your infringements, we are,

Respectfully,
ANNA JARVIS (Signed) and MOTHERS' DAY INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION., INC.

Charges Are Baseless.

The secretary then wrote the following letter to the Associated Press, addressing it to their general office in New York:

Referring to the item in the enclosed clipping, which evidently is from a press report sent out from Washington, also in the more extended form copied in the advertisement also enclosed, I take the liberty, in behalf of the florists of this country, of declaring the charges to be without foundation and the statements as absolutely untrue and injurious to those engaged in the florists' industry.

I am also enclosing a copy of a letter purporting to be issued by Miss Jarvis and the Mothers' Day International Association, which may be considered as bearing on the case. A copy of the poster complained of is enclosed in addition.

First of all, Miss Jarvis is justly recognized as the founder of Mothers' day, or at least as one who has revived an old English custom, recorded by Chambers as "a practice of going to see parents, especially the female one, on the mid-Sunday of Lent, taking for them some little present, such as a cake or a trinket." A youth engaged in this amiable act of duty was said to "go a-mothering," and the day itself came to be called "Mothering Sunday."

Public Resolution No. 25, Sixty-third Congress, is a joint resolution designating the second Sunday in May as Mothers' day and for other purposes. Governors of states and mayors of cities have, by proclamations, endorsed the action of Congress and the day is now generally observed by the American public as one on which homage is to be paid to mothers living and honor accorded to the memory of mothers dead.

So much for Miss Jarvis' claim of proprietorship in Mothers' day. As a little inside history, it may be mentioned that Miss Jarvis solicited the aid of different florists' organizations at the outset of her efforts to create interest in the day. As a result, the Society of American Florists gave her a check for $100 to be used in any way she saw fit in the promotion of her ideas. The society further collected subscriptions from individual florists throughout the country amounting altogether to $1,000, which sum was also turned over to her.

As to the charge that florists have been profiteering, I should say that this is baseless; $1 apiece for carnations is absurd. If such a price ever was received, it certainly was not at a florists' establishment. At a charity fair, perhaps, $5 apiece might willingly be paid. White carnations are never sufficient for the demand on Mothers' day, for the reason that florists who grow them must necessarily take the remaining 364 days in the year into consideration, days on which white flowers are in small demand. Miss Jarvis never could seem to understand this and her misunderstanding was the cause of an abatement in the support given her by the florists. With the exception of white carnations, governed by the law of supply and demand, just as other commodities are, flowers for Mothers' day are just as reasonable in price as on other days at the same season and there is not the slightest justification for Miss Jarvis' message, the publication of which she has foisted on the evidently unsuspecting press.

If you can help to contradict the statement complained of, your assistance will be highly appreciated by our society.

The Associated Press courteously took action in the matter, as will be seen by their letter in reply to the secretary by Harold Martin, superintendent of the Associated Press.

I enclose a copy of an Associated Press dispatch from Washington today which gives a denial by W. F. Gude of the statement of Miss Anna Jarvis, concerning which you wrote under date of May 6. This meets the point raised in your letter.

Denial By Gude.

The dispatch referred to was as follows:

Washington, May 7.—Acting for the Society of American Florists, W. F. Gude, its Washington representative, has issued a denial of the statement by Miss Anna Jarvis, president of the Mothers' Day International Association, that florists profiteered in white carnations, the symbol of observance of Mothers' day, last year. Miss Jarvis had called on observers of the day this year to abandon the carnation and display American flags.

All members of the society throughout the country, Mr. Gude said, have been urged to sell white carnations at the usual market rate on Mothers' day, Sunday, May 9.

As to the charges of infringement of copyrights, they may safely be ignored. Mothers' day is a public day and so declared by Congress; therefore our publicity committee does not feel that it need have any further concern in the matter. John Young, Sec'y.

BOOSTING IN BUFFALO.

Telegraph Company's Aid.

One of the best aids to Mothers' day business in the city of Buffalo was given by the Western Union Telegraph Co. at the suggestion of a florist. About two weeks before Mothers' day Mark Palmer, of W. J. Palmer & Son, stepped into the office of the manager of the Western Union Telegraph Co. and told Mr. Smith that he knew how the telegraph company could make itself a good deal of business. He then suggested that the company print some small stickers reading, "Next Sunday Is Mothers' Day," and attach them to every telegram sent out locally during the week. The manager thanked Mr. Palmer greatly for the suggestion and immediately had printed 15,000 stickers at his own expense. During the week before Mothers' day every telegraph blank used in that office carried the little sticker reminding the recipient of the approaching day. The value of the reminder cannot be estimated.

"Consider," says Mr. Palmer, "the number of people who step into a telegraph office in a large city in one day. Perhaps fifty per cent of them are from out of town. Imagine them writing their telegrams, perhaps to their own home, and at the same time reading the little slip pasted on the telegraph blank, 'Next Sunday Is Mothers' Day.' Don't you think if one has any red blood in his veins at all that he will look up the nearest florist and send some flowers via F. T. D. to his mother? If the florists in all cities and towns would go after their local telegraph offices in this manner, they would find the local managers glad to coöperate with the florists, because it means business for them."

Active Advertising.

After securing the aid of the telegraph company in behalf of the florists, Mr. Palmer put much effort into pushing the day himself. Altogether he used about 300 inches of newspaper space, costing approximately $600, for Mothers' day advertising. He believes so strongly in this day that he spent more money on Mothers' day than for any other holiday in the year.

"I firmly believe," states Mr. Palmer, "that Mothers' day will be the biggest day on the florists' calendar in the years to come, because there is certainly more sentiment connected with this day than with either Easter or Christmas. When we consider that Easter and Christmas have been catered to for hundreds of years and that Mothers' day is only in its infancy and yet is calling for almost as many flowers, we cannot but see its tremendous future. Flowers are usually plentiful at this time, deliveries are easy to make and flowers can be sold to the public at more reasonable prices than during the winter, when they are scarcer."

DOUBLE SNAP TO MAKE DEBUT.

A new, light pink, double snapdragon will make its appearance in the trade before long, according to T. D. Hefko, of Marshfield, Wis., who has raised it. This variety, a specimen of which is shown in the accompanying illustration, was originated two years ago. Mr. Hefko had a double sport of a white snapdragon; he crossed this with a Nelrose and found among the seedlings this one, which is perfectly double and of the same color and habit of growth as Nelrose, except that it is, Mr. Hefko says, practically everblooming. He tried planting this variety beside other kinds and found that this one came into bloom at least three weeks earlier than the others.

He has found it to be a splendid keeper and quite seedless. The blooms as they grow old will dry up like a carnation, instead of falling off, as the ordinary snapdragon does. Blooms frequently have stayed open four to six weeks on the plants before drying up. The blooms are distinctly double and solid and can thus be shipped with less danger of bruising than is the case with the single snapdragon. Mr. Hefko has also found that the lower blooms will not drop off in the shipping box, as they have done frequently with snapdragons which he has received from the wholesale market.

This new flower Mr. Hefko intends to name after his little daughter, June Hefko. He expects to disseminate rooted cuttings next fall, when they can be planted after the chrysanthemums are out.

T. D. Hefko's Double Snapdragon, Named for Daughter, June Hefko.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

The Market.

Business, both local and shipping, for Mothers' day was unusually heavy. The new feature about the day was the heavy demand for plants. The market had a large stock of hydrangeas and rambler roses, which sold out clean. The demand for geraniums in bloom, especially Ricard and Poitevine, was notably heavy. The trade bought large quantities of these and arranged them in baskets; they brought good returns to the growers.

The supply of sweet peas and snapdragons was particularly heavy. In carnations, good colored stock was short. There was a scarcity also of short and medium roses; many more could have been sold if they had been on the market.

Altogether, the business of last week compares favorably with that of any other holiday in the year. P.

Various Notes.

Early Saturday night, May 8, William Zimmermann had nothing but a few sweet peas left. The business was the best ever and Mr. Zimmermann says that Mothers' day is a bigger day than either Christmas or Easter. All his cut flowers were sold out early in the afternoon and every plant was gone soon after. The amount of telegraph business was large.

Sunday morning, May 9, the front of Baumgarten's resembled the regular Easter morning scene. The sidewalk was lined with boxes to be delivered to mothers. Every flower was sold.

Up until a late hour Saturday night buyers crowded into the store of William Lubliner, clearing it of an exceedingly large stock.

CHESTER, PA.

There was no Mothers' day profiteering in this section. Carnations brought $2.50 per dozen at retail, which people seemed to consider cheaper than silk flags at 50 cents apiece.

The Lorgus Co., of West Chester, had a fine display of geraniums at the branch store in Media; they were moderately priced, too.

Peonies in this section look as though there would be a good cut for Memorial day.

Jerome Harley, of North Media, who has specialized in potted plants, is adding cut flowers to his business.

Peter J. Vervaecke, of Providence road, Media, is about to erect two more greenhouses. These will double his space for carnations.

Mr. Bartow, who has a fine store next to the Edgemont theater, had an attractive seasonable display for Mothers' day. J. B. B.

CLUB MEETINGS

CHICAGO CLUB MEETS.

And Again Sees Movies.

At the meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club in the Hotel Randolph, Thursday evening, May 6, two of the five men proposed for membership played prominent parts in the evening's entertainment, in a way that was educational as well as entertaining. The five new names were as follows: Frank Psenicka, Gross Point; Aram Mestjian, 1006 Ridge avenue, Wilmette; E. D. Burton, 900 Masonic Temple; H. E. Larson, 431 South Dearborn street, and R. P. Bohlander, Melrose Park. Eric Paselk, office manager of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., Morton Grove, and L. A. Woodward, sales engineer of the Lord & Burnham Co., Continental Bank building, were elected to membership.

How Greenhouses Grow.

Mr. Burton, who is sales manager of the American Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., reintroduced to the members of the club the 2-reel movie, "Wonderland Under Glass," which had received its world premiere at the previous meeting of the club and which P. L. McKee, president of the company, had kindly consented to have shown again, so that more members of the club might see it. Mr. Burton said that these films were made as an educational adjunct to the sales work and that they had already fully justified themselves through the vividness with which they brought to any prospective customer the strong points of the company's products. The pictures for this movie were taken in three days and were shown on the screen ten days later. The company is having more pictures made, Mr. Burton said, to include the conservatory on top of the Pennsylvania hotel, New York, and also pictorial studies of plants and plant diseases.

Dealers' Helps That Delight.

The movie novelty of the evening was sponsored by another prospective member, H. E. Larson, who is associated with H. V. Swenson in the Florists' Publicity Service Bureau of the S. A. F. The film was short, about fifty feet, but effective, and was entitled "Her Birthday." It showed the business man rushing off to his office, where, however, he is reminded by his calendar that it is "her birthday." He thinks hard a moment, registers inspiration, telephones a florist to go the limit and, after the florist's preparations and the messenger boy's hot-footing it to the home, we see "her" dazzling countenance gazing at us over some roses, which she joyfully takes as proof that "he remembered." The film ends with a heart enclosing the question, "Whose Birthday Is It this Month?" and the trade slogan below. This film is the first of a series of three, which will be rented to members of the trade for two or three weeks at a time, to be shown in motion picture houses in their vicinity. Mr. Larson said that between $700 and $800 had already been turned in to the national publicity campaign fund from the sale of various dealers' helps, such as flash signs, stickers and electrotypes.

Guides for Gardeners.

Guy French, chairman of the good of the club committee, reported that the committee was having some difficulty in securing a suitable hotel room for the ladies' night, because of strike conditions, but President Waters shed his optimism over the problem and the committee's report was accepted as progress. The report of James Morton for the garden committee was illustrated, not by movies, but by copies of two pamphlets which the committee had widely distributed to schools, trade clubs and trade papers. These pamphlets, which were published by an insecticide company in Milwaukee, Wis., were entitled "Garden Pests and Their Control," and "The Corona Garden Guide"; with them the committee included a selected list of books on flower and vegetable culture and related subjects. Several hundred, out of a total of 2,000, of these pamphlets remain to be distributed. The committee is coöperating with the United States Garden Bureau and the Chicago Board of Education. Ralph B. Howe, of the committee, spoke briefly on the value of these pamphlets and the committee's good fortune in securing them.

Last Call for Members in Arrears.

The report of the treasurer, Paul Weiss, showed a balance in the treasury May 1 of $1,064.24 and Secretary Lautenschlager reported that the receipts for the evening were $120. The secretary was authorized to send out letters notifying members more than one year in arrears that they would be dropped from membership unless they paid up back dues. Among the communications which he read was one from Harold A. Pratt, instructor in floriculture at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., asking the club for information about itself in connection with a study which he was making of horticultural organizations.

Mr. Lautenschlager announced that the Allied Florists' Association of Illinois had invited the club to attend a meeting to be held in the same room Thursday evening, May 13, when Major O'Keefe, of Boston, who has charge of the S. A. F. publicity, would be the principal speaker. The members voted unanimously to accept the invitation and attend in a body.

NEW YORK CLUB MEETS.

Lecture on Iris.

The monthly meeting of the New York Florists' Club was held in the club's rooms, in the Engineering Societies' building, Monday evening, May 10. Threatening weather cut the expected attendance down somewhat, but a considerable number of members were present. Members from a distance were Richard Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md., and George L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I. President A. M. Henshaw presided.

After the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, the chairman introduced Arthur Herrington, Madison, N. J., who delivered his most interesting lecture on "The Iris" and showed his large collection of lantern slides, most of them beautifully colored. The lecturer stated that it was not necessary to discuss cultural matters, as he did not believe he could tell such a professional gathering anything they did not already know. He confined himself to a running description of the various iris types and the conditions under which they grew in their natural habitats. Some of the slides showed some magnificent hybrids originated by European enthusiasts, including some varieties never before pictured in America, which showed promise as good varieties for cut flower purposes, all the flowers on a stem opening at once and the stem well branched. At the close of the lecture a rising vote of thanks was given to the lecturer.

Committee Reports.

T. B. De Forest, chairman of the transportation committee, reported that the committee had decided favorably upon the D. L. & W. route for the party going to the S. A. F. convention in Cleveland. It was expected that arrangements would be completed whereby a one and one-third rate on the railroad would be secured, which would be equivalent to about $33 for the round trip, including the night boat trip from Buffalo to Cleveland, berths extra. It was arranged that a pamphlet for distribution to members be published early in July, giving all particulars.

H. O. May, chairman of the exhibition committee, stated that this was to have been iris night, but the backwardness of the season had prevented a display. The next meeting would, however, be peony night, and it was possible irises could also be exhibited then.

C. H. Totty, for the flower show committee, reported that the committee had been in session that afternoon, when ways and means for making a complete change in the layout of next spring's flower show were discussed and special features considered.

New Members.

The following were elected to membership: Samuel J. Clark, Mount Vernon, N. Y.; W. S. Murtfeldt, Newburgh, N. Y.; Alonzo J. Bryan, Washington, N. J.; A. C. Palm, Portchester, N. Y.; T. A. Weston, New York; T. E. King, Irvington-on-Hudson, N. Y.; Wm. A. Finger, Jr., Hicksville, N. Y.; J. P. Mossmann, Hackensack, N. J.

Eight candidates were nominated for election at the next meeting, as follows: A. Lehman, of the Quality Brands Co., New York; Richard W. Young, Clifton, N. J.; Louis Bacos, Fulton and Hoyt streets, Brooklyn; William Farrell, 82 East Two Hundred Thirty-sixth street, New York; George J. Okkerse, 65 Fifth avenue, New York; Richard T. Nanse, Prince Bay, N. Y.; Carl Donhauser, Flushing avenue, Astoria, N. Y., and Lawrence C. Knapp, East Orange, N. J. T. A. Weston, newly elected member, being present, was formally introduced to the members.

A. T. De La Mare presented resolutions on the death of Mrs. Hammond, wife of Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y., which were, on motion, adopted and ordered to be spread upon the minutes of the club and a copy sent to Mr. Hammond.

Richard Vincent, Jr., and E. C. Vick spoke of the forthcoming exhibition, September 27 to 29, of the American Dahlia Society, and asked the assistance of the club and the members individually in making it a success.

After recess, the gathering was entertained by a series of conjuring tricks performed by an expert in this line.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"White for the departed; pink for those with us," was the wording of the advertisement of the Rosendale Flower Shop, Schenectady, N. Y., for Mothers' day. It was followed up with a special notice that a fine grade of roses was offered of the same value as carnations at normal prices. The result was highly satisfactory. "We prepared for the run and reached the goal," observed Henry Eberhardt, who is, by the way, a confirmed publicist.

• • • •

George Dobbs, of Dobbs & Sons, Auburn, N. Y., commenting upon the extraordinary conditions in the trade, mentioned that as his boys show no desire to succeed him, he advertised the business for sale and had but two replies. As the terms were stated, this result is looked upon as being the more remarkable and it is attributed to one of two things, either no one is in the market to buy, or, if anyone is and has the wherewithal, he is not seeking an established business or an old range, however well it may have been kept up. Mr. Dobbs is of the opinion that the advertising department of the trade papers is a most reliable business barometer.

• • • •

W. & T. Cass, Geneva, N. Y., had their usual demand for Mothers' day, selling more plants in proportion to cut flowers. They have a first-class stock of bedding plants, headed with geraniums. William Cass observed that a recent ten per cent advance in the price of pots will help reduce profits.

• • • •

Mrs. Alfred Patrick, Auburn, N. Y., called attention to the fact that although the business had been quite extensively advertised for sale, only one reply had been received. Since the death of her son, Percy, it has been decided either to sell or rent what has been a lucrative greenhouse range, doing retail trade entirely.

• • • •

"Tell me, have you met anyone who can trace big business through the medium of special drives at low prices?" queried Robert H. C. Bard, Syracuse, N. Y., who is well known as an advocate of high prices for top-grade stock; in other words, equal values. He has built up a lucrative business in the midst of keen competition by sticking close to this policy.

• • • •

C. F. Baker, Utica, N. Y., observed that it seemed appropriate to have a large amount of funeral work around Mothers' day. They were exceptionally busy and found no ill effects from the adverse propaganda circulated from New York through the daily press.

• • • •

Some twenty years ago Bernard Myers, manager of the range of W. J. Palmer & Son, Lancaster, N. Y., planned a range of eleven houses to be erected at the Dr. Jackson sanatorium, Dansville, N. Y. That they were built wisely and well is evidenced by their being in excellent condition today. In addition there are ten acres of fruit land and a handsome dwelling on the property, which Mr. Myers recently acquired with the intention of "retiring upon," using his own expression. But, upon the suggestion of Mr. Palmer, these plans were changed so that "Barney," who has had charge of the Palmer establishment since 1890, will retain his old post and will make his second son, Leo, who has had charge of a carnation range at Palmer's, manager of the Dansville range. The new firm will be known as the B. S. Myers Floral Co. Commenting upon his purchase, the Enterprise, Lancaster's daily newspaper, paid high tribute to its active townsman.

• • • •

Fred G. Lewis, Lockport, N. Y., has the usual quantity and quality of geraniums and other bedding plants which have made his place famous.

• • • •

A. L. Stroh, of L. C. Stroh & Sons, Batavia, N. Y., feels proud of a house of Columbia, Ophelia and Evelyn roses. From 1,100 plants 30,000 blooms have been cut between July 15, 1919, and May 1, 1920, and he wants to know if expert growers consider this a fair return. The quality is the best and not one goes to waste. Walter Stroh dropped in and mentioned that funeral work more than kept them busy. S. W. Morgan, Le Roy, N. Y., happened along for stock to help out on funeral work and incidentally mentioned that it was the small town florist who most appreciated The Review. "Without it we should be lost," he said, and Mr. Morgan has been so successful as to be coupled with his namesake of Wall street fame.

• • • •

"There is a shortage of nothing but ferns," observed H. B. Stringer, of George B. Hart's wholesale house, Rochester, N. Y., "but freight is playing havoc with things generally."

• • • •

Hart & Vick, located under the same roof as George B. Hart, had a similar story, plenty of seed stocks and good orders, but they cannot ship them.

WORCESTER, MASS.

The Market.

In spite of an editorial in a Worcester newspaper, stating that, owing to the high price of flowers, people should wear flags in honor of Mothers' day, a big business was done. Thursday morning, May 6, a half-page advertisement was placed in the newspapers by the retail florists. Carnations retailed at $3 per dozen and roses from $3 per dozen up. All plants were plentiful. Hydrangeas, lilies and begonias were sold at $1.50 and up.

Cut lilies have been selling well lately and one retailer, who grows his own and always has them in bloom, has been cutting an average of 200 per day.

Various Notes.

A few large weddings have kept some of the florists busy this spring. The wedding of Councilman Parker Trowbridge and Lydia Dyke was a big event. The church was decorated with palms, rambler roses and lilies. At the home pink rambler roses, Darwin tulips and iris were used. All the lights were covered with asparagus.

The largest wedding decoration this spring was that at the marriage of Miss Nancy Smith, a well known society girl. The church was banked with lilies and the pews along the aisle each had a bunch of lilies. The reception was held in the art gallery of the late Buckley Smith. The side of the gallery was covered with southern smilax and at each end was a large arch entirely covered with lilies. Vases of lilies, Darwin tulips and white snapdragons were also used. H. F. A. Lange had the decorations and Fred B. Madaus had the bouquets.

Harry Randall is going to rebuild his home, which was destroyed by fire a short time ago. Although it was fully covered by insurance, it will cost considerably more to build it now. H. L.

HIGH COST HITS LONDON.

Because of the high prices of flowers and plants, the homes in the Mayfair and Belgravia districts of London, where flowers are usually to be seen in profusion, are said to be comparatively bare. Many women have grown bulbs in their drawing-rooms this season.

Geraniums

DISEASED GERANIUM LEAVES.

I am sending you specimens of geranium leaves. One is marked with disease around the edges and the others have spots of either disease or burns. What is the cause and what is the cure?

F. O.—Minn.

The trouble with the geranium leaves is caused by either some water or soil condition, or it may be both. The leaves plainly show that something which acts on the tissues of the leaves is affecting them, causing the edges to dry up and turn brown. The trouble is so marked and serious that if the leaves sent are a fair specimen of the rest of the stock, every effort should be put forth to find out where the trouble lies, and I should suggest that you take the matter up with your state experimental station.

M. P.

FAULTY GERANIUM CULTURE.

I am sending you two diseased geraniums. Can you tell me what the trouble is and how to control it?

C. H. K.—Mich.

My opinion of the cause of the condition of the geraniums is that you have been too hasty in pushing the plants along, not giving them a fair opportunity to establish themselves and get strength in the various stages of their growth. If my judgment is correct, the plants appear to have been shifted from small-sized pots to those which were entirely too large for them; consequently the soil turned sour before the plants attained size enough to get thorough control of it. I should suggest that you give the plants careful watering and endeavor in every way to assist them to make root growth.

M. P.

GERANIUM TROUBLE AT ROOTS.

We are sending you some diseased geranium plants. What is the disease, the cause and the remedy?

M. B.—Kan.

It is difficult to tell what is wrong with the geranium plants unless the whole plant with the roots attached is sent, because there is bound to be some discoloration of the foliage after being enclosed in the mail package. When the whole plant is sent for examination a better opinion can be formed as to whether the trouble is caused by conditions of soil at the roots of the plant or whether cultural treatment and temperature conditions are the cause of it. There did not appear to be anything wrong with the stem of the shoot, which leads the writer to believe that the trouble is caused by similar conditions to those referred to on page 22 of the April 29 issue of The Review. For my own personal satisfaction as to the correctness of my judgment on these plants, we stripped the leaves from the plants sent for examination, potted them and, under our methods of culture, they have entirely grown out of any trouble.

MISSOURI FREE SOIL TEST.

Many Missouri soils are strikingly in need of lime, according to the investigations of the department of soils of the University of Missouri. The exact extent of this acidity, however, is not well known. As a test of the soil is essential before one should go into the matter of liming the soil, it is proposed to make an extended survey of the acid soils existing in the state. The department of soils will make tests for acidity on samples sent in and report the result of these tests at once, provided the samples are taken in the following manner:

Select a place representing an average of the soil to be sampled. Clear the surface of trash and with a spade dig a hole seven inches deep. From the smooth side cut a slice a half-inch thick to the full depth of the hole. Place this on a clean newspaper with two other samples taken in exactly the same way in other average places of the soil. Mix these samples thoroughly and send one pint of the mixture in a clean box or can, bearing the name and address of the sender, to the Department of Soils, University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo. For the present each person will be limited to six samples and these should be in before August 1.

MAYBE THEY ARE.

If prices are coming down there will be a sigh of relief from many people, among them florists and the large proportion of florists' customers or erstwhile customers. So we are inclined to lend an attentive ear when someone thinks they are. This is the way a bank circular sizes up the situation in that regard:

For more than a year business has been conducted in the United States as if the purchasing power of the American people were limitless. An extravagant use of advanced wages, the spending of savings accumulated in Liberty bonds and a liberal use of bank credit have contributed to this. Many persons, having sold their Liberty bonds or reached the end of their credit facilities and now finding their income below expenditure, have been compelled to curtail. In addition, the growing protest and resistance on the part of a large part of the public generally against high prices and a widespread belief that lower prices instead of higher prices are due have acted materially to alter the situation. Bradstreet's index number shows that since the general level of prices reached its peak in February there has been a decline. February 1 the figure was 20.869; March 1, 20.795; April 1, 20.712.

Mackinac Island, Mich.—F. R. Wiggin Dyde has just returned from a trip to Europe.

Jackson, Miss.—R. E. Langley has sold the Pleasant Ridge Greenhouses to the Capitol Floral Co., of which L. Cabaniss is manager.

Bay City, Mich.—John Irvine met with an accident March 6 which laid him up for six weeks and business suffered. Since getting well, Mr. Irvine has been busy catching up with back work and patching up the things that went wrong.

Bethayres, Pa.—N. A. Stockton, Jr., who before the war was employed first by H. A. Dreer, Inc., at Riverton, N. J., and then for two years as private gardener for Mrs. W. P. Worth, at Coatesville, Pa., will start in business for himself here as a florist and market gardener sometime in May or June.

Cleveland, O.—As part of its advertising for Mothers' day, the Park Floral Co. distributed cards of an attractive shade of green, reminding the public that "a few cut flowers tastefully arranged or a pretty plant attractively trimmed" would be "appreciated by Mother, the one person who notices every detail no matter how seemingly unimportant."

Cortland, N. Y.—A. Frost says that despite Miss Jarvis's public request, few flags were seen Mothers' day, but the florists in this vicinity were all sold out.

Atlanta, Ga.—Ralph Deans, who for five years was manager of the West View Florist's establishment, has opened a retail store at 28 North Broad street, with the firm name of Ralph Deans, Florist.

Nashville, Tenn.—The Joy Floral Co. reports an increase in Mothers' day business of approximately forty-five per cent over last year. All plants and flowers sold well. News items in the local papers offset the propaganda of Washington dispatches against the use of flowers.

Canton, Ill.—George W. Jacobs spent two unhappy days at Springfield, Ill., when the growers of central and southern Illinois were organizing a local of the national organization April 20, and then came home suffering with a carbuncle. This was still troubling him Wednesday, May 12, when he, his wife and the nurse whose attendance the carbuncle made necessary went to Excelsior Springs, Mo., in the hope that he might find some relief there.

MEMORIAL day next, and soon.

ONE can scarcely realize that a dozen years ago Mothers' day was unknown.

THE trade's holiday-making ability is demonstrated a success by Mothers' day.

FEW holidays in the trade's history exceeded May 9 in making a clean sweep of stock.

IF white carnations are high at Mothers' day, Miss Jarvis has no one but herself to blame.

THE florist who carries a liberal surplus in the bank need not fear any clouds in the financial offing.

NEW announcements of Sunday closing are made every week. And one day less seems not to reduce the week's profits.

ALL organizations and trades contain both lifters and leaners, but the number of the latter among florists is rapidly becoming less.

MANY reports make special comment of the large number of telegraph orders for Mothers' day. Memorial day will bring another harvest.

SUPPLIES of cut flowers for Memorial day are not likely to be large. Outdoor crops are late and indoor stock needs warm, bright weather to push it along.

SUMMER is not necessarily a dull season; it is principally a state of mind. Forget the worn-out ideas and this trade can do business twelve months of the year.

THERE is a general feeling that wage increases have about reached their limit. The indications of a recession in prices have subdued the demands of the workers.

SOME people pay 50 cents extra to go to the theater Saturday night and double prices on New Year's eve, but want flowers at the same price at holidays as at other times.

THE attempt by Miss Jarvis to discourage the use of flowers at Mothers' day, although fruitless, may serve to show that the trade has overpaid any debt it owed for the idea of such a day. As a matter of cold fact, had it not been for the publicity provided by florists the "founder" of Mothers' day would still be unknown to fame.

FRANK H. HENRY, cosmopolite, spent May 10 in Chicago.

Do you guess that you are making money, or do you know what your margin of profit is?

THE best way of meeting a tight money situation is to turn the accounts payable into cash at the bank.

IN some lines delivery can be had if one will pay the price; in others, among them paper, neither love nor money will a supply.

IF a customer cannot meet his bills under present conditions, he will not be in better position a few months hence. Now is the time to clear up the accounts past due.

NEW life members of the S. A. F. are assured of the economical management of the secretary's office by receiving their framed life membership certificates with the express charges, about 40 cents, collect.

THE volume of proceedings of the twenty-ninth annual meeting of the American Carnation Society, held in Chicago last January, which has just been issued, bears the marks of the care and diligence of the secretary which have been such an aid to the upbuilding of this organization.

COULD YOU TIME A CROP?

The white carnation was no good as a symbol for Mothers' day—it was impossible to supply the demand. But here is another idea. It is from the "josh" column of a Chicago daily:

"May 9 being Mothers' day, the florists are urging one to 'Say It with Flowers.' Milkweed, is a correspondent's frivolous suggestion."

WAITING FOR THE CENSUS.

The figures regarding the greenhouse industry which will be yielded by this year's census will be scrutinized by the trade with keen interest. Opinion varies as to whether the shortage of stock, more general and continuous than in any previous season, is the result of an increased demand or a decreased supply.

Optimists lay emphasis on the former, saying that abundant advertising on the part of the trade and greater prosperity and liberal spending on the part of the public have combined to make the call for flowers so much larger than ever before that it can be met only at infrequent intervals. Except in those intervals, the same factors that have pushed up the price of sugar, flour, clothing and rent have operated in raising the price of flowers to unusual levels. Thus the flower business is keeping step with other lines and moving constantly forward.

Another view is presented by those with a pessimistic inclination. Production, they say, has not recovered from the shut-down caused by the war; many small establishments have never been reopened and the labor shortage has held down the output of the bigger places. Therefore, in their opinion, fewer flowers are today available to meet a demand which is heavy only in comparison with the supply. The result is aviating prices, causing the use of a word not liked.

Yet the construction companies have never been so busy, propagators have never been so heavily booked and the trade in general has never been so prosperous. Bills are paid more promptly than ever before and failures are a rarity. Though the trade may have its difficulties, they are not financial. The urge is constantly to expansion and high costs of materials and scarcity of labor do not deter the placing of orders for new glass months in advance.

Whether the figures presented by the government's census are in favor of the optimists or the pessimists will be a matter of much interest when they appear. Both sides are so fixed in their opinions, it appears, that wagers might be laid.

THE NATION'S PRIDE.

Out of the 12,000 copies of The Review mailed to subscribers each week, all but a few hundred are carted in mail bags from the mailing room at the printers' to the railroad stations, where they are immediately put upon outgoing trains Thursday night. Only a few hundred, going to scattered points, are sent out through the Chicago postoffice. In the case of ninety-five per cent, at least, of the papers mailed, no sorting is required at the postoffice in Chicago. They immediately start by rail for their destination upon mailing Thursday evening.

Such delays as occur, therefore, are in practically all cases at the postoffice of destination, a place remote from the publisher. There the subscriber can get quicker action, if he will make the effort. A chat with the postmaster, accompanied perhaps by a cigar or some flowers, according to his tastes, are almost invariably accompanied by results. Last week's issue is discovered in a bin and a promise is made of better service next week. While the publishers are continuing their efforts to speed the delivery of The Review to its readers, the coöperation of subscribers will aid in getting immediate results. Try this suggestion if your paper is late.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

X. Y. Z., N. Y.—The Review can not reply to anonymous inquiries; send a stamped and self-addressed envelope if a reply by mail is wanted.

S. M. R., Pa.—Bait the snails with poisoned bran or catch them under pieces of board laid on the soil, where the snails will be found in the morning.

W. A. H., Ga.—Concrete, if properly used, is better than wood.

S. S. & S., La.—We never have heard of dipping caladium bulbs when harvesting, because of scab.

WANT A LANTERN?

You may have heard of the old Greek named Diogenes, who went around looking for an honest man. He carried a lantern, even in broad daylight. One has to, looking for an honest man.

Perhaps you are looking for an honest man. You want him for a foreman, or to have charge of a greenhouse section, or to work as a designer in your retail store, or for some other kind of service. The man you want is surely somewhere. He may be already within easy telephoning distance—if you only knew it. But how to find him? There is one lantern that is sure to bring results, like this:

Kindly omit our Help Wanted inquiry for a grower. We got a man who was located within fourteen miles of us. I guess maybe The Review doesn't bring results.—Adgate & Son, Warren, O., May 3, 1920.

No wonder The Review's Want Ad department has nearly tripled in size since January 1 of this year.

Frank L. Gay.

Frank L. Gay, known throughout Rhode Island and New England as the "gladiolus king," died at his home in Providence, R. I., May 4. He was 89 years of age. Mr. Gay was prominent as a judge and assistant at the exhibitions of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society. He is survived by his wife and one son. At the funeral Friday, May 7, there were a number of the old-time florists, greenhouse men and members of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society.

Charles Emil Frankenbach.

Charles Emil Frankenbach, of the firm of C. E. Frankenbach & Son, Southampton, L. I., N. Y., died Sunday, April 25, at the age of 60 years. Before going into the nursery business, he was for twenty-one years the superintendent of the Meadow Club at Southampton.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

Mothers' Day.

Mothers' day business was splendid. Flowers were by no means in the supply that they were at Easter time, but the trade did a wonderful business and practically everything was cleaned up. Carnations were scarce. Roses were in fair supply, but because of the extremely high price they were not in heavy demand.

As usual, carnations were in the greatest demand. Plants sold readily, hydrangeas and rose bushes being the leaders in this line. Sweet peas were good property and brought from $2 to $3 per hundred. However, these were not to be had in any great number. Gladioli, snapdragons, candytuft, pansies and lilies were included in the offerings. Lilies were in large supply, but sold poorly. With the exception of lilies, everything that was available was utilized.

The Market.

Warm weather has finally come and it is certainly welcome. With the bright days has come a demand for bedding stock, which is exceedingly late this year. As yet, little planting out has been done.

Cut flowers are scarce. A few miniature gladioli have put in an appearance, but the large varieties are arriving slowly. Early candytuft is pretty well cut out. Sweet peas are none too plentiful. Daisies are available and cut pansies also. Lilies are in large supply, but calendulas are dwindling. Potted plants, other than bedding stock, are scarce. Green goods are scarce, high-priced and of inferior quality.

Club Meeting.

The May meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association was held at the Florists' Supply House Tuesday evening, May 4. In the absence of all the officers, Len Elder presided.

Mention was made of the death of J. D. Carmody, of Evansville, who was the first president of the association. The secretary was instructed to write a note of condolence to the relatives.

The June meeting is suspended, but there will be a meeting in July, probably out in the state. Little business was transacted, other than a discussion of the fall show. The meeting was well attended and a splendid social evening was enjoyed, which was greatly aided by a fine buffet luncheon.

Various Notes.

William Roepke recently had his pleasure car stolen and as yet has been unable to locate it.

Baur & Steinkamp have started to build their new greenhouse. This firm is cutting some fine Halley gladioli.

Frank Liebking, recently of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, is now in business for himself in window decorations.

Clarence R. Greene has sent out notice that Greene's Flower Shop will be closed Sundays after June 1 except when a holiday falls on that day. The hours Saturday will be extended to 8:30 p. m.

CINCINNATI.

Mothers' Day.

Perfect weather conditions made Mothers' day business a record-breaker. Newspaper dispatches from Washington, D. C., advocated refraining from purchasing flowers of any sort on account of the high prices. One paper even went so far as to enlist the Federation of Mothers in the antagonistic agitation. H. W. Sheppard, president of the Cincinnati Florists' Club, and H. E. Klunder took it upon themselves to answer for the florists of this city. As fast as the statements appeared in each of the papers, the articles were answered without mincing of words. All the answers were printed in their entirety and, being the last word in the matter, made an impression on the public that acted more in the way of publicity than any page advertisement purchased at big outlay. Much comment was heard everywhere. The sentiment imbued in the holiday from its beginning was enough to keep the public to its original intention of using flowers on Mothers' day.

The uncertainty brought about by newspaper agitation caused the market to waver the first few days of the week and a sudden piling up of stock was immediately attributed to this cause. Friday and Saturday, however, saw a general clean-up at the originally advertised prices, and Sunday morning saw carnations at a premium. Many orders had to be filled with other flowers of equal value. The top price of $15 was not asked in this market, and most retailers were able to sell high-grade stock at $2.50 to $3 per dozen.

Roses were in big demand and advanced twenty-five per cent Saturday, although earlier quotations had not shown any inclination in that direction.

Sweet peas were in big crop and the demand still greater. Outdoor-grown valley made its appearance just in time to help out values in other lines. Extra fine stock sold at $4 per hundred, while good blooms could be had as low as $2 per hundred. Greenhouse-grown valley, quoted at $6 to $8 per hundred in Mothers' day price lists, invariably was found to have been billed at $12 per hundred when the boxes were opened. For this reason the outdoor-grown valley was a boon to retailers in corsage work and helped to balance matters. Snapdragon was never better and was a great seller; $8 to $12 per hundred was the prevailing quotation. Outdoor lilac was only fair and in a great many instances had been cut too green to be of much value.

The retailers nearly all state that business was ahead of last year, but assert that the greatly advanced prices are unwarranted at this time of year.

Various Notes.

The Wm. Murphy Co. was heavily supplied on all good lines of stock and did a remarkable business.

Julius Baer is one of the retailers who believe there is a limit to price fixing. "We must cater to the general public if we want to grow," says Mr. Baer.

Robert D. Ruttle, Covington, Ky., was busy far into Saturday night and did a business away beyond expectations.

C. E. Critchell made extra preparations to handle the last-minute rush and had all he could do to find sufficient stock to satisfy all customers.

Joseph Hill was a welcome visitor last week from Richmond, Ind.

H. W. Sheppard was fully prepared to meet the rush, an extra office assistant being necessary to handle the telegraph and mail orders, which have reached wonderful proportions with this house. With the additional two delivery cars, everything was sent out on time.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Mothers' day made another wonderful new record for the trade in Chicago. It was the antithesis of Easter, opposite in every essential feature. The demand, if it did not exceed the supply, was sufficiently strong to cause high prices to be firmly maintained, the market for the holiday closing higher than it started. To the growers and wholesalers the results for Mothers' day were much more satisfactory than at Easter. There was not so much stock, but there was enough so that with the higher average prices it produced a greater money total. Not all houses equaled Easter in sales, because they lacked the lilies, but many did so and some say Mothers' day even reached a higher total than Christmas.

Carnations were in chief request. The supply, while called short, was just about equal to the demand at the prices. The week opened with carnations selling at 10 cents and closed with the price firm at 15 cents. A good many advance orders had been taken at 12 cents. While some orders were cut, the higher price was a great factor in reducing the demand. More carnations no doubt could have been sold without affecting the price, but 15 cents was the limit; it was not possible to get buyers to pay more and a moderate increase in the supply would have resulted in lower prices. Most of the stock was fine and, unlike the Easter experience, there were few complaints.

Roses, next to carnations, were in chief request. There were not nearly enough short roses to go around. The supply of medium lengths also cleaned up each day, but there were enough of the long grades so that they were at all times available. There were some left, or else they were sold below their anticipated value. The quality of most of the roses was excellent and the business done was highly satisfactory.

Sweet peas were the most plentiful of flowers. Weather conditions were favorable and the picks were enormous. The price was from $4 per hundred downward according to the quality of the peas, but hundreds of thousands of long-stemmed peas sold at from $3 to $4 and only a small part of the week's receipts were let go at less than $2. Some of the houses carried over a few peas, but nothing by comparison with the huge quantities handled. It was the most profitable week most of the sweet pea growers ever have experienced.

Passing the three leaders, carnations, roses and sweet peas, the other items were comparatively insignificant. The Tennessee peony crop began coming in just in time. One wholesaler had quite a few and several had small quantities. They sold extremely well, good stock bringing 15 cents and lower grades not going under 10 cents, selling as fast as received until May 10. This week the supply exceeds the demand. There were considerable quantities of Darwin tulips and smaller supplies of jonquils, which sold splendidly. Easter lilies did not clean up, nor did callas, although many were sold. Snapdragons sold well if good, but there were rather many too poor to find favor. Pansies were popular. There were unusual quantities of yellow daisies, but none too many. Cattleyas were scarce. Valley cleaned up.

The wholesalers one and all say that it was a wonderful week, breaking records right and left. The shipping was tremendous. Thursday and Friday, May 6 and 7, were the big days. Flowers were shipped literally by the carload. The flowers went everywhere, but mainly to the larger cities; prices were too high for the country towns to buy heavily.

The retailers also are well pleased with the business—it eclipsed all previous Mothers' days. Plants were missed. Dependence had to be placed on cut flowers and prices were too high to please some of the retailers, but most of them prefer it that way rather than to have the market oversupplied and flowers sold cheaply in other places than flower stores.

The express company gave full service for three days to handle the huge volume of shipments May 5, 6 and 7, but as soon as the rush was over dropped back to 2 p. m. for the last pickup.

The present week opened strong. Stock had been cut so close for Mothers' day that there were comparatively light receipts May 10. Retailers had enjoyed so good a trade that practically every regular buyer needed to replenish his stock and the market condition was eminently satisfactory. But there were many signs that flowers will be much more abundant and prices considerably lower.

Sarcoxie Peony Crop Destroyed.

Word comes from the big shippers of peonies at Sarcoxie, Mo., of the almost total loss of the crop through hail May 6. The prospective supply had already been greatly reduced by the cold, backward season and the hail completed the disaster. While some of the Sarcoxie growers still send considerable quantities of peonies to this market each year, others have built up a trade of their own, shipping direct. Their inability to fill orders this year should affect this market fully as much as will the loss of the consignments—it means an increase in the demand as well as a decrease in the supply.

Bohannon Goes to Kansas City.

A. L. Randall and Frank M. Johnson have bought the interest of T. J. Noll in T. J. Noll & Co., Kansas City. The silent partner in the concern ever since its organization has been L. R. Bohannon, of the Bohannon Floral Co., who now has gone to Kansas City to take over the active management. Mr. Bohannon is moving his family to the southwestern gateway. The management of the Bohannon Floral Co., which has one of the best of downtown retail stores, will remain with Mr. Bohannon's partners there, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart.

Introducing Miss Enge.

The duplex type of wholesale house is not new, as Joseph Foerster Co. and the Chicago Flower Growers' Association use two floors for their stores, but with the addition of the basement space Manager Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., has started something heretofore untried by employing a young woman to grade roses. Miss Enge, in her rubber apron, presents an appearance of competence which seems to confirm Mr. Michelsen's view that, while she is the first woman to do this kind of work in a Chicago wholesale house, she will not long be alone. In fact, Mr. Michelsen expects soon to have several girls grading roses, so that the salesmen will receive the stock in the best of condition and have nothing to do but sell.

Miss Enge is a Chicago girl, who had gone home to Norway for a visit and was detained there during the war. She found employment in a greenhouse during the years of her detention and came back a trained florist.

tory of the cut flower department of the A. L. Randall Co., next to the oldest wholesale house in the Chicago market. And the day following, Friday, May 7, beat all records except that of the day before. Not only were the Easter sales eclipsed, but Christmas also was reduced to second place. The big records were due principally to the Halls, Tenn., crop of peonies consigned by the Gould Nursery, about 10,000 dozens, which sold at from $1.25 to $2 per dozen, mostly at 15 cents per flower.

I. Rosnosky, who came home for the busy interval before Mothers' day, left May 9 for a trip which will take him to Washington, Philadelphia, New York and Boston. He says there is no trouble to take orders, unless the florist is too busy to talk; the trouble lies only in getting goods to sell.

Bernard Sherman, who has been around quite a little and who now is at W. J. Smyth's, remarked the other day, as he opened a telegram: "I bet you this store gets more out-of-town orders than any other in Chicago." That surely would be quite a few, but it is to be remembered that Mr. Smyth employs all the best means of obtaining orders. He is a member of the F. T. D., a regular user of the Pink Part of The Review and develops a large volume of outgoing orders.

Jegen, Florist, 1149 North State street, enjoyed the largest Mothers' day business in the firm's history and, in fact, a larger business this season than ever before. Many telegraph delivery orders were handled for the special day.

A. Miller spent Mothers' day, also the days preceding and after, visiting A. B. C. customers in Detroit.

There was no doubt of the popularity of Mothers' day, whether flowers are high-priced or not, at the store of Paul Blome & Co., 1361 North Clark street. During the two days previous, all the available force was busily occupied. This firm reports excellent business for the entire season. Although there does not seem to be much space for grass in the neighborhood, the seed is selling fast.

W. W. Adams, 1169 North State street, had orders for flowers amounting to $600 for the funeral of W. C. Niblack, noted as the retriever of broken banks' fortunes.

W. F. Schofield, 738 North State street, located in the "gold coast" district, has F. V. Young as active manager. For the funeral of Roger Sullivan this store reports making five pieces amounting to $2,000. This firm had the decorations for the opening of the new Lake Shore bank, on the new Michigan avenue link.

M. J. Douglass, proprietor of the firm of Wille-Douglass, 3954 Harrison street, reported Mothers' day business excellent. Miss Douglass, who was formerly with Schiller's, has built up a good business in a short time.

Praise for the quality of stock arriving from growers of late is voiced by Miss Anna Grace Sawyer, the Pansy Florist, at 4044 Madison street. She expressed herself as well satisfied with Mothers' day business. Her window display of cut flowers and plants was excellent.

L. D. Eastman & Son, whose principal place of business is on Seventy-seventh street, have removed their branch retail store, known as Eastman's Floral Shop, from 1168 East Sixty-third street to 1322. They have larger and better quarters, in the same block with Keenan's.

The Allied Florists' Association has been receiving good publicity through assisting in the collection of funds for the May 30 floral decoration of soldiers' graves in France. An advertisement of quite another character was given the trade May 9 and 10 by newspapers which told of the famine in carnations and Mothers' day retail prices, said to be as much as $5 and $6 per dozen.

Visitors.

There were many visitors in the buying period just preceding Mothers' day, but probably the banner delegation came from Cleveland. It consisted of Albert Barber, of the Park Flower Shops; Charles Russell, of the Jones-Russell Co., and Charles Graham, of A. Graham & Son. While the buying power of those three makes their simultaneous presence notable, the feature of this visit was that they were accompanied by a representative of the American Railway Express Co., who came to see that th

A. L. Randall Co., COMPLETE FLORISTS' OUTFITTERS Chicago, Ill.

Cleveland shipments went through as per schedule; he personally escorted the shipments which went to Cleveland on the night of May 6. That's a new idea for you—personally conducted shipments, conducted, moreover, by an official who knows the ropes.

Nixon H. Gano, of Martinsville, Ind., took a day off last week to attend to a business matter here and to look around. Years ago he was a section foreman for Peter Reinberg, but now he is a leading business man in the prosperous Indiana town he calls home.

John A. Evans, who was a frequent visitor before he sold the ventilator business and retired to enjoy the fruits of his long and active career, was here from Richmond, Ind., last week. Many old friends were glad to see him again and to note that he looked well.

Thomas Heaven, of Benton Harbor, Mich., while still a florist, does most of his talking about the wonderful little tractor in which he owns a one-third interest. While in the market last week he showed a model and told of plans for manufacture and sale.

Among others who came to town to purchase Mothers' day stock were Edward Amerpohl, of Janesville, Wis.; Willis Kinyon, of South Bend, Ind.; Carey the Florist, Detroit.

J. Liddon Pennock, of Pennock Bros., Philadelphia, was among last week's visitors.

W. A. Elliott, of Gary, Ind., circulated in the market May 10 with last week's Review sticking out of his pocket.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

John Wanamaker captured the city, or at least that portion of the population that is interested in business matters, by his remarkable sale at twenty per centum off the prices listed a week ago. It did not hurt us any; it showed us the possibilities, but the other department stores were troubled.

It was a good week. To know just how good, it must be compared with the opening week of May ten or twelve years ago. Then there was no cut flower activity; it was all in porch boxes and preparations for outdoor planting. Cut flowers were active throughout the week, closing with a rush on the day before Mothers' day. Despite Miss Jarvis, who advised wearing a little American flag instead of a flower, and of the weather—it rained nearly all day Saturday—Mothers' day was observed by the use of flowers. Good judges said that business was light, that the activity was caused by a small supply. This was undoubtedly true, yet there must have been a lot of business or prices would not have advanced as they did. Carnations, as before reported, advanced from $6 to $8 per hundred April 29. They went from $8 to $10 May 3. Here there was a division, white going to $12, while the colored varieties remained stationary. May 6 white carnations went to $15 per hundred and colored to $12. These prices, which were only for fine stock, were maintained until the close of business May 8, excepting that some white brought $20.

Sweet peas were unexpectedly plentiful. They brought from 75 cents to $2, the surplus and culls being sold as low as a nickel a bunch to clean them up.

Roses advanced a little. This was most noticeable in white and in Ophelia, the shorter grades being preferred. The general average price on roses was better than it was a week ago and much better than it was two weeks ago.

There was a real demand for lilies. They did not have to be pushed; they crowded, both Easter lilies and callas. The asking price is more nearly the average price than at any time since Easter.

An encouraging feature of the Mothers' day business was that it included all kinds of flowers. White carnations were undoubtedly the favorites, but all varieties of flowers were used and blooming plants were included. There was an excellent out-of-town demand that kept the market in good shape. The local demand was fair; it was marred by Saturday's rain. The attitude of the retailers varied widely. Some encouraged the sale of white carnations; others discouraged it, feeling that prices were too high. The cool weather decreased the supply while it improved the quality.

The Delay in Deliveries.

Harry Bayersdorfer, head of the firm of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., wishes his friends and patrons all over the country to know why it is that their orders for florists' supplies have not always been delivered on time. Mr. Bayersdorfer thinks from the letters and telegrams that he has received that there is sometimes a doubt as to whether his firm really has the goods.

"Our friends do not understand,"

It is to be expected that the business for Memorial Day
Will be the best on record. This day will probably be more observed this year than ever before.

Good Roses
Will be the best item on our list. We expect a large supply of all the best varieties on our list. With the large supply at our disposal, you have a much better chance here to have your order filled to your satisfaction.

Peonies
We have always given special attention to our Peony orders. The stock we sell you is carefully selected and in a condition to be used without loss. You will find our Peonies in a uniform condition, and not partly tight buds and others wide open. As the supply is very uncertain, you should place your order early.

Our Miscellaneous List
Contains many items that can be used to good advantage. We will have snapdragon in assorted colors, and in quantity. It is one of the best items for bouquet work. Yellow Daisies, inexpensive and they make a good showing. Candytuft, Feverfew, Cornflowers, Easter and Calla Lilies you should include with your order.

Don't delay placing your order. Order in sufficient quantity, so that you can supply the large demand for flowers that is sure to exist this year.

Mr. Bayersdorfer said, "the unusual difficulties to be overcome in getting shipments of goods to them. We can do it, but it takes hard work and time."

To make the matter clear, Mr. Bayersdorfer led the way to the shipping department, where a large number of cases were piled up on two floors awaiting shipment. Mr. Bayersdorfer then introduced the representative of The Review to his traffic manager, a bright, energetic young man, who had just achieved the rescue of an importation of Porto Rican mats long snowed under on an unexpected pier in New York. The traffic manager explained that, owing to car shortage and to strikers, both the express companies and the freight lines were making daily, nay hourly, changes in their embargoes. He said that at 9 o'clock in the morning he would be notified that shipments for a certain point would be accepted, that he would hustle a truck off at once with a load of cases for that point and that when the truck reached the freight yard or express office, the load would be refused on the ground that an embargo had just been declared owing to the congestion. The driver of one of the firm's trucks was called in to tell of the early morning start and the long wait in line he had experienced in order to have his loads accepted, and of how he had seen many of those behind him in the line sent back with their loads still on after a long wait.

Mr. Bayersdorfer then explained some of the measures he was taking to get shipments started promptly and said that, given a little time, he felt confident that his friends would receive their orders.

The Market.

Considering the cold and rainy weather which is still with us, the cut flower trade remains good and prices are, on the whole, somewhat improved over those of a week ago. Mothers' day business proved satisfactory and there were heavier calls for flowers than ever before for this special day. Advice to use flags in lieu of flowers was utterly ignored and the day was better kept than in any former year. Carnations, as usual, led in the demand, and all flowers were easily sold at $12 to $15 per hundred, colored and white varieties selling equally well. Roses were also in heavy demand, short-stemmed stock selling at $8 to $12 per hundred, with other grades running up to $35 and some fancy Hadley and Russell a little higher. Sweet peas, which are at their height, made no special advance, selling mostly at $1 to $4 per hundred. Daffodils, yellow marguerites and Spanish irises sold well.

May 10 carnations made $6 to $8 per hundred and roses, while they showed a substantial decline from Mothers' day prices, sold well. Lilies have shortened up and prices average $12 per hundred, double the quotation of a week ago. Callas also show some improvement. Snapdragons continue in the doldrums and sell poorly. It is surprising that these flowers, among the most satisfactory keepers in the home and giving better value for the price than almost any other flowers, should prove so hard to move. There would seem to be a fine chance for some wide-awake retailer to give snaps a boost. Gladioli are much more abundant and splendid spikes of America, Mrs. F. King and other sorts are offered. Prices are rather low. A good number of the small-flowered Peach Blossom are also coming in. Narcissi sell well. They realized as much as $8 to $10 per hundred for Mothers' day and still clean up nicely. The indoor supply is about over, but a good outdoor crop is now available.

Cattleya Mossiæ is bringing $50 to $100 per hundred, according to quality. White bouvardia on short stems sells quickly at $6 to $8 per hundred. Roses, hydrangeas and other pot plants sell moderately well. The continued cold weather is preventing early sales of bedding plants.

Various Notes.

The National Association of Gardeners held a conference of New England members in Horticultural hall May 6; it was well attended. Robert Cameron acted as presiding officer and many problems pertaining to the profession were fully discussed. Resolutions supporting the action of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in calling a conference to devise ways and means of securing modifications of Quarantine 37 were unanimously adopted. Some of the speakers were M. C. Ebel, Madison, N. J.; B. Hammond Tracy, James Methven, W. N. Craig, A. K. Rogers, Duncan Finlayson, George F. Stewart and James Donald.

The extremely wet and cool season is seriously delaying plowing and seed sowing operations. This, added to the acute shortage of workers on farms, market gardens and private estates, is going to reduce food production mate-

Maurice M. Saunders, for a number of years decorator for Wax Bros., has taken the store formerly operated by J. M. Petros, on Huntington avenue, opposite Horticultural hall. This is an excellent location for a store, being close to the junction of Massachusetts and Huntington avenues, and Mr. Saunders, who has a fine, roomy store, will undoubtedly make good here.

The executive committee of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club has decided to hold a field day in the Arnold Arboretum June 12, to have a concert, collation and ladies' night in Horticultural hall June 15 and to hold the annual picnic at Cunningham park, East Milton, July 22. At the club meeting May 18 Professor De Chant will lecture on "Service."

Everyone seems well pleased with Mothers' day business and flowers were more generally worn May 9 than ever. A cold, drenching rain fell through the whole afternoon of May 8 and somewhat hurt retail trade. Penn, as usual, was about the only retailer to use large, bold Mothers' day advertisements in the daily press.

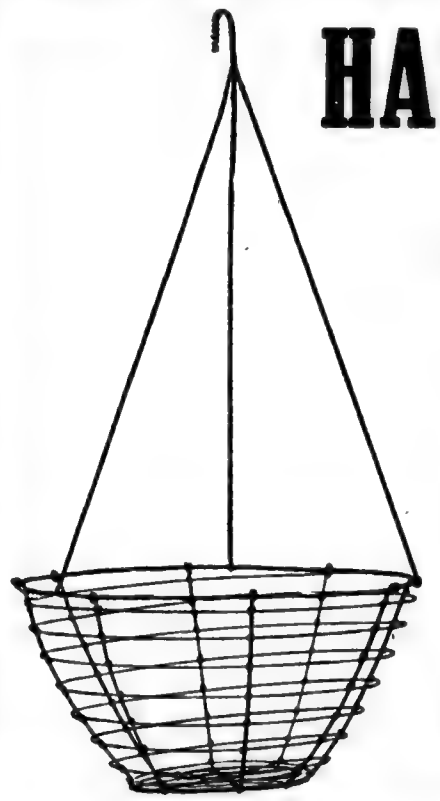
The Boston Floral Supply & Snyder Co. reports a splendid Mothers' day business. It is doing a large trade also in Memorial day supplies.

J. T. Butterworth, of South Framingham, has a fine show of Cattleya Mossiæ at present. His large batch of Miltonia vexillaria is also coming into flower and will soon make a goodly showing.

From present indications, flowers will be in undersupply for Memorial day. The extreme lateness of the season will prevent much outdoor material being available and crops of candytuft, stocks, double feverfew and gladioli need some clear, warm weather badly to hurry them up.



The tables at the last dinner of the Boston Florists' Association were charmingly decorated by Sidney Hoffman, Ophelia roses being used.

The new branch of the National Flower Growers' Association is making excellent headway and from present indications will soon comprise all the leading growers in this part of New England. W. N. C.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Business in the cut flower market last week was fairly good. The supply of flowers in all lines was good and the demand, although a little irregular in the early part of the week, was on the whole satisfactory. Mothers' day business was quite heavy, the discouraging notice sent out by a Philadelphia organization appearing to have little effect. A second press item put out by the Associated Press, through action by the S. A. F., did much to offset the Philadelphia propaganda. The supply of carnations for Mothers' day was not so large as might have been expected. White varieties were in great demand and brought $15 per hundred, with selected flowers bringing as much as $18 per hundred in a few transactions. All shipments cleaned up easily by Saturday night and few arrivals were in evidence Sunday morning. The day seemed to be observed by the public as much as ever, with no signs of its failing in popularity.

At the beginning of this week the market was fairly well supplied and the demand was as good as usual at this time of year on the opening day of the week. Tulips and daffodils are still arriving in quantity, although outdoor stock is now in bloom.

There is a good supply of American Beauty roses, but clearances are a little slow. The best of the special grades bring about $50 per hundred. Hybrid teas are plentiful and of excellent quality for the time of year. The weather recently has been quite favorable for roses and, indeed, for all flowers grown under glass. A change seems to have come now, however, since the temperature has for two days reached into the seventies. Premier and Columbia are favorite varieties and growers have planted heavily. The new Dunlop rose is also being planted freely. Hadley specials are bringing $30 to $40 per hundred, with Premier and Jonkheer J. L. Mock $25 to $30 per hundred. For other grades and varieties the range of price is about $3 to $15 per hundred, except Ophelia, for which $12 is about the top price.

The supply of carnations is rather short, owing to the heavy cut at the end of last week. The price range is $8 to $12 per hundred.

Cattleyas are in good supply, although not quite so plentiful as in the previous week, but the demand for them is poor. Much stock arriving is off in quality and hard to move except for funeral work. The best bring $50 per hundred and the others move at prices down to $25 per hundred, with less for culls. Gardenias are arriving in a quantity sufficient to supply a rather small demand, but the quality is nothing to boast of. After the best flowers are moved the remainder go at any price down to 25 cents per dozen. The top price is $2 per dozen.

There is an abundance of Easter lilies and their movement is slow, within a price range of $5 to $8 per hundred. There is a fairly good supply of lilies of the valley and they move well at $2 to $6 per hundred sprays. Much cold-frame stock is in the market, tending to hold down the price of indoor flowers.

The supply of miscellaneous flowers is heavy. Some fine snapdragons are available and move at $1 to $2 per bunch; lower grades bring 25 to 75 cents per bunch. Both outdoor and indoor lilac is arriving and the price is 10 cents to $1 per bunch. Daisies, calendulas, mignonette, delphiniums, callas, myosotis, pansies, stocks, irises and gladioli are included in the offerings.

Various Notes.

Max Schling certainly did his best to belittle the propaganda put out against the use of flowers Mothers' day. He reproduced the dispatch sent to the press and in derision he appended the following: "Fiddlesticks! We will give you a carnation free or will sell you a dozen for $3." He used liberal literature sent out denouncing flowers for Mothers' day, but this year's business was the largest on record and, in most cases, members of the trade reported a 100 per cent increase over other years. Spring flowers are still arriving in large quantities, including tulips and narcissi. Some nice irises are arriving and many good potted hydrangeas were on the market last week. The greens situation is much better, due to the arrival of fine plumosus and dagger ferns.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club held the regular meeting at Schmidt's hall, May 4. Many important matters were discussed, including the articles which have recently been appearing in the press in regard to the prices charged for carnations in this city on Mothers' day last year. A resolution was adopted decrying these erroneous statements, believing them due to a misunderstanding on the part of the sponsors thereof.

J. Harper Hetherington, president, presided at the meeting.

Z. D. Blackistone, former president of the club, was presented with a fine cut glass set by the members in appreciation of his faithful service as president for the last two years. William F. Gude made the presentation with a timely and befitting speech. He told of how Mr. Blackistone performed his duties with untiring energy and of the progress which the club had made during his successful administration. Mr Blackistone was unaware of the honor that was in store for him and, upon receiving the gift, he expressed his hearty appreciation for the pleasant surprise. Mr. Blackistone is now financial secretary of the club.

William F. Gude gave an interesting talk on his recent trip to Bermuda. He told of the different varieties of flowers grown there and of the different pests with which the growers have to contend. While on the islands he was entertained by the governor at a party in his honor. His talk included a fine description of the Crystal caves. He was

Various Notes.

O. A. C. Oehmler spent several days out of town last week.

Sam Maston is with the Oehmler Floral Co.

After a spell of serious illness, Fred Leapley has returned to his place of business.

A. J. Schiller, of the Leo Niessen Co., went to New York on a business trip last week.

The rotogravure section of the Sunday Star, May 2, contained a page of views of the United States Botanic Gardens, with a portrait of Director George W. Hess, in celebration of its one-hundredth anniversary.

Miss Bessie Stuart Campbell gave her play entitled "Roses" at the Playhouse, May 7. Many local florists and growers were in the audience and everyone complimented Miss Campbell highly. The hall was elaborately decorated. The flowers for this occasion were donated by the local members of the trade. Two especially beautiful baskets were those presented by Gude Bros. Co. and George C. Shaffer. Miss Campbell spoke of her visits among the local florists and especially emphasized the fine house of Mock roses grown by Gude Bros. Co. at the greenhouses on Bladensburg road. After the play, Miss Campbell presented every lady in the audience with an American Beauty rose. G. V. S.

NEWARK, N. J.

Mothers' Day.

Because on previous Mothers' days the price of carnations and other flowers had taken a big jump in price, there was considerable opposition in this vicinity to the use of flowers on Mothers' day this year; this opposition cut into the sales of the florists somewhat, especially in the Oranges. Several churches there recommended the use of flags instead of flowers as the Mothers' day emblem. If this opposition continues, growers and retailers will lose thousands of dollars of trade annually, as Mothers' day has come to be considered one of the harvest days of the year. Prices charged for carnations for Mothers' day ranged from $2.50 to $3.50 per dozen retail. Large numbers of people feel that 25 cents is too much for a single carnation. However, notwithstanding the opposition, large quantities of flowers were sold.

Various Notes.

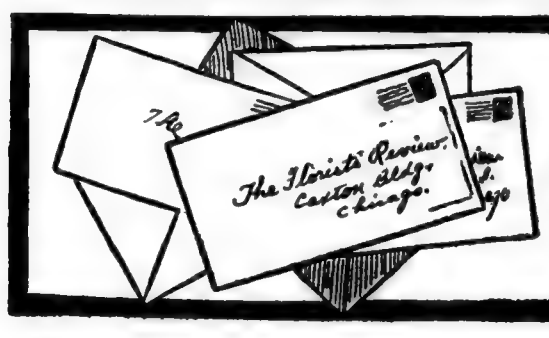
The Washington Florists, 577 Broad street, report that they have had a considerable amount of funeral work of late. General business is reported good, but less in volume than before Easter.

Charles H. Witheridge, 532 Broad street, reports that business has been a little quieter since Easter. The large amount of cloudy and stormy weather has made the sale of seeds slow.

R. B. M.

TOLEDO, O.

Mothers' Day.



"It pays to advertise 'Say It with Flowers,'" says Frank Schramm. "It is this that gave me my rushing business for Mothers' day."

"All sold out, thank you," was the sign seen on the door of Metz & Bateman's store early Sunday morning. Their many floral orders prevented them from cleaning up their stock.

The appropriately decorated window was the biggest advertisement of the Navarre Flower Shop. The work was done by the young but skilled artist, Mr. Drouillard.

"This was the best Mothers' day I have ever had," says Miss Helen Patten, who is well pleased with the season's business.

At the Freeman Flower Shop Miss Volk said: "It was the best Mothers' day I have ever had during my twenty-eight years in business."

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

ONE BIT OF NATURE.

Makes the Whole World Kin.

The progress of the national publicity campaign has already proved that people need only to be waked up to their real desire for flowers in order to become steady flower buyers. They need to realize what a large share flowers or flowering plants may have in their home life. They need to appreciate anew the refreshing restfulness of some bit of living nature in a world so largely artificial.

Consequently the successful florist's store must be much more than a place where flowers are kept and sold and floral designs prepared and displayed. It must show the natural aspects of flowers definitely in relation with their possible uses and leave not too much to be supplied by the imagination of the possible buyer. It is in this connection that various side lines, such as goldfish and canaries, have their best right to appear in the florists' store; they all work together to stimulate people's desire for something alive, something attractive, even beautiful.

Flower Store Interiors Should Attract the Attention of Those Who Enter.

Meinhart's Method.

That this has been done in the American Floral Shop, Joplin, Mo., the accompanying illustration fully indicates. J. E. Meinhart, the proprietor, has been in the business for fifteen years, growing as well as selling flowers, and has thus had plenty of time to learn the value of that appeal to the imagination which has been suggested. The fountain in the center, with its delicate spray of water, its rough stonework, its quietly moving goldfish, though the latter are invisible in the picture, and its border of potted plants, strikes the keynote of the store's equipment. The flowering plants in pots of various sizes, the window box behind the fountain, the baskets of flowers, the bird cages, whether inhabited or not, all help to suggest to anyone entering the store definite ways in which those particular articles might be of immediate use. When the customer's mind has been thus brought to what may be called the purchasing point, the sale follows at once.

In addition to operating the American Floral Shop, which is at 216 West Fourth street, Joplin, Mo., J. E. Meinhart does business under his own name at 416 South Pennsylvania avenue, Webb City, Mo., in the same county.

SPECIAL SALES NOTICES.

A novel system of special sales which has brought much business to Jegen, Florist, 1149 North State street, Chicago, is effected by sending out cards to addresses on a regular mailing list. This firm has a card printed, about the size of a post card, and among other things on it is a space for the name of the flower to form the special sale. These cards are all addressed weeks ahead of time. When Saturday comes and the sale on any special kind of flowers or plants is decided upon, it is marked on the card and sent out. This system, which has been in use for some time, has brought pleasing results. During the bargain sale of carnations recently held by the members of the Allied Florists' Association, this firm sold nearly 3,000 carnations through this system of cards.

FREE TO FLORISTS' CLUBS.

We are lending gratis our collection of lantern slides taken from newspaper advertisements, which are of special interest to florists and give a general idea of retail advertising.

This makes an unusually interesting lecture if the club will request any of the advertising associations in its city to send a member who will criticise the copy as it appears. A great deal of constructive good is usually the outcome.

The following clubs have already used them: Buffalo Florists' Club, Philadelphia Florists' Club and the Baltimore Florists' Club. Better results may be obtained from this slide exhibit by consulting Robert Kift, secretary of the Philadelphia Florists' Club, 4044 Haverford avenue, Philadelphia, Pa., who found them instructive, and he will be glad to assist any secretary who may want to use them. As retail advertising is one of the chief topics in clubs, this makes a timely subject and their use may be had gratis. Henry Penn.

DESIGNS AT LOW PRICES.

Demand Ingenuity.

In the last few issues of The Review we have been speaking of funeral designs and the qualifications of a designer. In this article I want to emphasize a fact that is more important. There was a time, not so long ago, when, in any of our large cities, if a funeral offering came from some particular establishment it was never questioned. But that day is forever gone. Today every offering has to stand on its own merits; the reputation of a firm is no longer sufficient. Now, the point I wish to impress on the floral artist is that in every funeral offering he may be called upon to design he is doing one of two things, making a reputation or sustaining one.

There are new establishments starting every day and, to quote a scriptural phrase, "by their fruits ye shall know them." In these days of modern methods the first thing a shrewd business man is going to do is to procure the services of someone who is a master of the art. Don't try to live on past performances; keep abreast of the times. Any one of us can remember, in any of the retail lines, stores which at one time had the cream of the trade of our city but are never heard of today. These are the people who thought it was vulgar to advertise or to mix with their neighbors and exchange ideas. In other words, while they consoled themselves with the idea that they were exclusive, they were merely selfish. I have heard this idea often expressed with regard to advertising and F. T. D. orders. In these days of competition no man can afford to live unto himself.

Each Order an Opportunity.

But we are getting away from our subject. The point I wish to make is this: If a florist takes an order for a funeral design, no matter how small the price he receives for it, he is morally bound to give the customer his best thought in filling it. Better far, from a business standpoint, would it be to refuse the order than to slight it in any way. Make that offering in such a manner that when it appears in the company of others, which it is sure to do, the reputation of your establishment will stand out distinctly.

It is not uncommon, when flowers are scarce and high in price, for a customer to come into your store and say, "I have just so much for a funeral offering and am going to leave the selection entirely to you. Do the best you can for me for that amount." Here is where the florist must use his brains. It may be a subscription of fellow clerks. In such a case something striking should be decided upon; for instance, a horse collar or oval wreath. This may be placed on an easel or flat. Make your wreath of magnolia leaves. Then on the bottom or thick part of the wreath use anywhere from one to two dozen small sago leaves, with as many flowers as the price will permit. Magnolia leaves and cycas leaves are seldom if ever scarce, and there is nothing to equal them in making a reasonably priced design. But the point I wish to urge is: Put as much thought into such a design as though it were high-priced and for one of your best customers.

When the East Isn't West

At Lawrence, Mass., one A. H. Wagland holds forth with an attractive flower shop with a Hitchings greenhouse attached.

You know the Westerners have a way of saying that "New Englanders are so conservative, they never start anything until everything is already started."

Now you and I know better. They may be a bit cautious, but one thing sure, they never go off half cocked.

Last summer I traveled some eight thousand miles through the West and don't remember seeing any particularly brilliant ideas at work to take the slump out of the dull season.

Still, when I drop around in Lawrence I find Mr. Wagland has converted part of his flower shop, during the warm months, into an ice cream parlor and doing a thriving business.

Not only selling lots of ice cream, but more flowers than he ever did.

Of course all of us could not turn to selling ice cream, but we could do a lot more than we do to keep business levels up.

The trouble with you and me is, it don't trouble us enough so we will hustle enough to make things happen. The bear sucks his paw and goes to sleep in the Winter. You and I have been snoring all through the summer.

For my part, I have sworn off.

How about you?

Spring Suggestions.

In this article we are talking of artistic designs to cost a minimum price. Spring is here. Have you ever made a wreath of fresh oak foliage? If you have not, try one at your first opportunity; your fern man can get you the foliage, or you may be in a position to get it yourself. Get pin oak foliage. Stem this in small sprays, not single leaves, for your wreath. After such a design is ready for the flowers it has cost you nothing save the frame, moss

The Market.

The market last week was on a firmer basis than it has been since Easter. The demand was, in most cases, equal to the supply, and everything cleaned up fairly well. Roses continue to be fine in quality and the supply is good. Carnations are fine and the supply all that could be desired. Sweet peas are still in fair supply and for this late in the season the quality is excellent. There is plenty of frame-grown valley to be had, making this an opportune time for everyone to push valley, while it can be had at a reasonable price. We all know that during the scarcity and high price

Lilacs were at their height last week and sold well. Never were there so many seen in the Lexington market; the street fakers plunged on them and did well. There is plenty of miscellaneous stock of all sorts. The only thing that is really scarce is green goods. Asparagus and smilax are kept cut so closely that they do not get a chance to catch up.

The plant market will be opening up by the time this reaches readers. From the stock of bedding plants in sight, the season bids fair to be short. This means that there will be a new precedent set in prices. For example, at Easter good geraniums in 4-inch pots were sold in Lexington market for 50 cents that could have been bought in the same place at one time for 10 cents.

Coöperative Advertising.

The Associated Florists are pushing their campaign for all it is worth. Tuesday, May 4, in the Evening Sun, they had a fine Mothers' day advertisement, which appeared again Thursday, May 6. Then Saturday, May 8, the $2 box advertisement was devoted to Mothers' day. The committee felt that this would be a good way to combat the white carnation idea.

The box idea is growing in good shape. Remember, the $2 box is simply a leader. One florist told me that he showed one to a customer, and the customer replied that it was beautiful, but that he wanted about twice that much. Wherever it has been featured, results have been seen. For instance, at Mary Johnston's a $2 box was featured in the window, and here is where the true spirit of this campaign was shown. Mr. Johnston says that there is no use in going into a thing unless you do it right. At this store everything in the boxes was counted and they averaged in cost $2.45 each. Now, I can hear the critics asking what is the sense in going into anything to lose money. Mr. Johnston has enough business sense to realize that the 45 cents is not lost. New customers are going to be made and they are going to keep that much stock off the streets, thereby helping the entire trade. If every florist in Baltimore would follow

Mr. Johnston's example for a few weeks, the street fakers would be driven to seek new pastures.

Another man deserving of mention in this campaign is Joseph W. Merritt, the chairman of the committee. He is not only in on the percentage plan, but he devotes time to this work which cannot be reckoned in dollars and cents. It is just such unselfish acts as those mentioned above that are bound to make this campaign a success. But every man on the committee is a busy man, and they are all giving their time without a murmur. Everyone is becoming enthusiastic and a get-together luncheon is now being planned to put even more pep into the campaign.

The Flower Mart.

As I am writing this the florists are getting together to help the ladies of the Civic League to make this year's the greatest Flower Mart ever held. The florists of the city have awakened to the fact that the object which these ladies are trying to achieve is to teach the entire public the love of flowers, and their idea is that this is one of the best methods of Americanizing the foreign element that is within our gates. Now, what is this but "Saying It with Flowers"? When Wm. F. Ekas, president of the Florists' Club, was approached for help, he made the proviso that the club be permitted to display the slogan. He was assured that that was just the idea of their organization. So the advertising committee will be busy; their work will be to see that "Say It with Flowers" is in every available place. Then there will be under Robert Halliday such young live wires as Robert Graham, Jr., Robert Johnston, Harry Wagner, George J. Muhly, Clarence W. Ritter, William J. Keys, Jr., George Eberly and others, to do the decorating. One needs only to look over that list of names to know that the Flower Mart is going to be a success.

I have been connected with the florists' business a good number of years and I believe there is a new spirit that can be felt, one that is growing stronger every day. It is a spirit of unselfishness, a pull-all-together spirit for the common cause, and the stronger this spirit becomes, the better this old town will be to live in. Tate.

The Market.

The market was short on almost everything for Mothers' day and almost devoid of carnations, owing to the storm which cut down the supply that had been counted on. Plant baskets and potted plants were favorites with most buyers and trade was heavy. It is believed that when the day's business is checked up it will surpass previous years by a heavy margin, even with the shortage. Prices for roses were from $12 to $50 per hundred. Carnations were $15 per hundred, sweet peas $3 and $4 per hundred and gar-

The Hail Storm.

One of the most destructive hail storms which have ever visited this vicinity swept over the southeastern edge of the city between Raytown and Swope park about 1 o'clock the morning of May 2. No complete estimate of the damage has yet been made, but it will run well over $100,000 in the aggregate. Among the heaviest losers were several florists in that neighborhood. Greenhouses and stock were complete losses in each case. The path of the storm was about a mile wide and about six miles in length, but it was irregular and skipped something like a mile and one-half near Independence. Preceding the hail there was a terrific rumbling, according to persons who were awakened by the storm. Then the hail fell with such force for fifteen minutes that it was impossible to make anyone hear even by shouting. After the hail stopped there was a downpour of rain for half an hour.

John Stevens, Fifty-eighth street and Bennington avenue, was the heaviest loser. His 75,000 feet of glass and the stock within were wrecked completely. He had eleven houses and eight of these were carnation houses. The plants were beaten down to the benches and scarcely a trace of them could be found several hours after the storm. The hail smashed the glass into such bits that it cut the plants and blooms and these were then driven into the ground by the rain. He had a fine crop of sweet peas, which would have been ready for cutting this month, and a crop of gladioli for June; both of these crops were ruined. Mr. Stevens will probably be able to save about twenty per cent of his outside stock. His orchard of cherries, peaches and apples was stripped clean. Hailstones went through the roof of his boiler room. The roofs of two residences and the windows on the east side of both houses were complete losses. The damage to his range is between $20,000 and $25,000, with about $4,800 insurance.

While all the sufferers from this storm deserve the sympathy of the trade, Mr. and Mrs. Stevens have the chief share. Both of them had worked earnestly for the last seven or eight years, had denied themselves many comforts which they might have had, in order to put their business on the paying basis which it had attained, and then almost the entire result of their efforts was wiped out in one-quarter of an hour. Mr. Stevens has not yet made any plans for the future.

Swope park were badly damaged in the storm. T. C. Harrington, secretary of the park board, estimated the damage at $2,500. In one small greenhouse 1,500 lights of glass were broken.

Fruit trees and truck gardens in the part of the city visited by the storm were almost total losses.

Several persons in widely separated parts of the district said that the hailstones were as large as door knobs and hens' eggs and this can be no exaggeration, as the roofs of houses were peppered with holes fully as large as that and holes were dug in the ground where the hail embedded itself.

One of the men at Rock's Gardens said that the hail fell in irregular shapes like great chunks of ice. Wooden flower boxes, half an inch thick, were split in two where the hail hit the edges squarely.

T. J. Noll and L. H. Noll, owners of the South Side Floral Co., Sixty-eighth street and College avenue, lost about $5,000 in the storm, including 10,000 young carnation plants, chrysanthemums, sweet peas and cut flowers. They had insurance on about 11,475 feet of glass, but 2,000 feet were not insured. Outside the greenhouses was a pile of sashes about two feet high. The hail went through this from top to ground.

Edward D. Lewis, Fifty-eighth street and Bennington avenue, lost $8,000 in bedding stock and glass, including two greenhouses.

Jacob Hepting, near Fifty-eighth street and Bennington avenue, lost $8,000 in three carnation houses and stock and damage to two residences.

At Rock's Gardens, near Independence, 200 flats of asters, about 35,000 plants, were wiped out entirely and about twenty-five per cent of the perennials lately set out were destroyed. The greenhouses of the W. L. Rock Flower Co., on South Troost avenue, were barely touched by the storm, being on the edge of the affected area. Between seventy-five and 100 lights of glass were broken.

The range of S. Bryson Ayres escaped with practically no damage, being in the part which the storm skipped.

Various Notes.

Mothers' day brought more than three times the number of advance orders that it did last year and it is believed that the advertising campaign put on a week before by the florists of Greater Kansas City was largely responsible for the early business.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. had no carnations Saturday, May 8. This company cut about 8,000 for the week and these were sold out by Friday, except a few held for telegraph orders. The company sent out more than three truck loads of flowers for the C. L. Merry funeral May 7. Among the large pieces was a casket cover of lilies, orchids and roses and a 6-foot wreath of white carnations, snapdragons and lilies.

Samuel Murray was oversold on carnations. He started Mothers' day with a few, but soon cleaned up.

Otto Koenig, of St. Louis, was a recent visitor.

Henry Kusik & Co. were without carnations for Mothers' day. They had bought John Stevens' crop for $5,000 and were out this amount as well as the sales for the day.

T. J. Noll has sold his interest in T.

The Market.

The local wholesale market was in a splendid condition every day last week and showed a big improvement in demand. The demand for Mothers' day started May 6 with the local trade, while the wholesalers had many advance orders for shipping to outside points. All stock made decided advances in price, especially carnations and sweet peas; in these the advance was so great that the local trade objected greatly, saying that the advance was too much and that the public would refuse to buy. Consequently a great many of them advertised plants for Mothers' day.

Carnations, which were selling a week previous at from $1 to $3 per hundred, advanced to $8, $10 and $12 per hundred for all grades. These prices equaled Christmas and Easter prices. The supply was not so large as was expected and everything cleaned up nicely. Sweet peas had the same experience, with an advance from 50 cents and $1 per hundred to as high as from $2 to $4 per hundred. The supply was not so great as was expected. Roses cleaned up well throughout the week; they advanced somewhat in price, but the advance was not so great as in the case of carnations and sweet peas.

Quality as well as quantity is falling in Dutch bulbous flowers. Snapdragons, white and yellow marguerites and double white lilac were among the good sellers last week. Lilies and callas, while quite plentiful, advanced to $12

No doubt there will be considerable recessions in prices this week, as the week opened with warmer weather, which will keep the plantsmen especially busy, since planting out time has arrived.

Greens all last week were exceedingly scarce, as all the markets were out of flat ferns, and anything in greens cleaned up at sight.

for several months, owing to the election of officers and many other interesting features. Charles Meier, the president, was in the chair and all the other officers were present. After the usual opening business had been disposed of, a discussion occurred as to the place and the date for the big growers' meeting, at which J. F. Ammann will give an interesting talk. It was decided to hold this meeting the same day as the Florists' Club meeting and at the same place.

The election took place next, resulting in the election of the following officers for the ensuing year: President, Martin Ude; vice-president, C. E. De Wever; secretary, Joseph Deutschmann, and treasurer, August Hartmann. The last two were reëlected. For a 3-year term as trustee there was will be held as usual this year and all arrangements are in the hands of the officers.

Various Notes.

The officers of the St. Louis Florists' Club met for their regular conference May 6 at the home of W. C. Smith, the treasurer, with all in attendance, and arranged for several interesting features for this week's club meeting. They selected the salesroom of the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. as the place of the meeting.

Frank A. Windler, vice-president of the Missouri State Florists' Association, has issued a call for the annual meeting of the association, to be held May 14 to 16 in St. Louis. The meeting will be held in the students' hall at the Missouri Botanical Garden. All florists in the state are invited to attend. The City Garden Club's flower show will be held during those days at the Botanical Garden.

Nat Kingsley, of the Mullanphy Florists, is highly enthusiastic over a new baseball team, which will play in the city league. Across the players' shirts the slogan "Say It with Flowers" will appear and the team will be known by that name. Leonard Baumann is manager of the team.

W. A. Rowe, of Kirkwood, consigned the first home-grown gladiolus spikes of the season. According to Mr. Rowe, it is a new variety, called Loveliness,

W. J. Pilcher, state vice-president of the S. A. F. for eastern Missouri, is shaping plans for a general round-up among the trade to bring in the few who are not members of the society. business was exceedingly good. Plants sold well this year.

In the west end the Sanders Nursery Co., Joseph Witek, F. H. Weber and Fred C. Weber had a fine demand for Mothers' day. The high cost of cut flowers, they say, pushed the sale of plants. Many telegraph orders were filled by them.

All the south and north end florists say that Mothers' day was as good as any in previous years. This year showed an increase of sales in plants for this day. J. J. B.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Further Help Needed.

The publicity campaign is swinging along, and our slogan, "Say It with Flowers," is daily becoming stronger in its effect on the public. Arrangements have been completed whereby a series of advertisements will be run in the national magazines during June, July, August and September, to keep the slogan before as many people as possible in a continuous manner. The copy to be used is most attractive and should achieve the result aimed for. Among the magazines selected are the following: Literary Digest, Collier's Weekly, Outlook, Independent, Life, Judge, Scientific American, Leslie's and Argosy.

The committee is still much hampered in its work by the want of proper financial support. It is regrettable that so much the committee would like to do is impossible because the necessary amount of money is not forthcoming. The committee is obliged to work on the installment plan, which impairs maximum results. Mothers' day was productive of a splendid business, much of which undoubtedly was due to splendid campaign work. Would it not be a good idea, Mr. Nonsubscriber, to show a little appreciation of what has been accomplished for you and the trade by sending in that long-delayed subscription to the fund that makes the benefit we all enjoy possible? John Young, Sec'y.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

Stock in seasonable lines is about in keeping with the demand. The season of coast daffodils is over, but a few are to be had from the local growers, though the stock is not so good as the coast daffodils, which were unusually fine this year. Stocks and snapdragons are welcomed as a change. Bedding stock is starting to move and the prospects for big planting in all garden truck and window boxes never was better.

Carnations were scarce for Mothers' day. Most of the growers were reported as being off crop, but there was a good rose cut and plenty of seasonable plants. Prices were not raised to any great extent, as the florists do not want the people to start wearing flags.

Funeral work has been heavy. A large number of out-of-town calls have kept most of the establishments busy.

Various Notes.

The Spokane Greenhouses are cutting some fine stocks, which find a ready sale.

Mrs. Day, of Overman's Nursery, reports business good in spite of the fact that prices are much higher than usual.

Among the floral designs shipped to Helena, Mont., for Senator Kennedy's funeral was a large flag made almost entirely of carnations, and sent from A. J. Burt's with a number of other pieces.

The Spokane Seed Co. reports business good. The people are trying to beat the high cost of living by planting gardens.

H. H.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

The week before Mothers' day the market was in the worst condition it had been in for many months, owing to insect trouble. The indoor carnations were practically all ruined, while the rose growers were about off crop, the flowers coming from some of the growers being so badly infested with thrips that they were unfit to ship. But, with all their troubles, both wholesalers and retailers were especially busy and it its evident that Mothers' day is rapidly becoming one of the best flower days of the year. Other stock was in fair supply.

Various Notes.

Paul J. Howard opened a new store May 1 at Seventh street and Union avenue and it is one of the finest in the city. The floor has been sunk below the street level, so that, for one looking through the windows, a sunken garden effect is obtained, with a fountain and pool in the center. The store is 35x65 feet, with lath houses in the rear to take care of plants, ferns and palms. E. Vogel, formerly of Chicago, is with Mr. Howard.

Robert Miller, of the Miller Floral Co., Salt Lake City, Utah, and Farmington, Utah, has been visiting the trade in this city. He says that he is on a vacation, but he keeps pretty busy visiting the growing establishments and other places of interest. Of the Bassett & Washburn palm growing establishment, at Sierra Madre, he says that it is the cleanest and most up-to-date place that he has seen in the United States and probably everyone else will agree with him. He intends to return by way of San Francisco and Portland.

The Redondo Floral Co. did a good business in spring baskets and funeral work last week. One funeral, for a prominent oil man, kept the whole force busy all night. Philip Hester, of the staff, left this week for a three months' vacation. He will take an extended trip in his new car, going as far as Vancouver before returning. Will Linsenbart spent a few days at Catalina fishing and reported a good time. A. F. Borden, having been missed from the store a few days ago, was discovered hoeing between those wonderful rows of sweet corn at Hollywood.

P. Matraia, of the Art Floral Co., San Francisco, is a visitor in the city this week.

The L. A. Floral Co. is handling a good crop of early America gladioli.

to local requirements. Cold weather, following several days of high temperature, is held responsible for the decreased receipts just when a heavy supply of flowers would have been particularly welcome. The uneasiness of the week before in regard to where business was coming from for Mothers' day, owing to shipping being curtailed, resolved itself into a question of where to get stock to fill orders within the restricted territory where shipments could be made. It is conceded here that more business could have been done on Mothers' day had stock been more plentiful and the wholesalers been able to fill all their orders. Some firms spent a good many dollars on telegrams advising florists in Minneapolis, Kansas City and other distant points that the express companies would not accept shipments for delivery beyond Ogden and Denver.

Carnations, especially the white varieties, were at a premium. Good carnations were bringing $1.50 and $2 a bunch of two dozen wholesale, or $1.50 and $2 per dozen retail, which is about as high as this particular flower ever goes in this market. Lilies were in strong demand. Easter lilies had the preference, but callas cleaned up also. Even sweet peas have been scarce. It is the staple flower for this time of the year and is usually plentiful and cheap.

While in heavier supply than any other flowers, roses have gained strength as a result of the general shortage. They have not advanced in price quite so much in proportion as have carnations and lilies, still their level last week was above that of the week before. The quality of roses continues to maintain a high average.

There is a large assortment of outside flowers, such as marigolds, gypsophilas, daisies, etc., but even they are not so plentiful as they were a week ago. In fact, there does not seem to be anything to fill the gap caused by the sudden ending of the season on tulips and lilacs. While they lasted, these two items had a big call and tended to detract attention from other stock.

Various Notes.

Mrs. A. J. Gooch, who is associated with her husband in the wholesale and shipping business, says that the principal difficulty last week was to fill orders, either on account of not being able to get stock or not being able to ship into the territory whence the orders came. However, they had a fine Mothers' day business, after making due allowance for these handicaps. Vacation is the next thing in order. General and Mrs. Gooch are going on a 10-day trip; then after Memorial day they plan a long automobile tour into Oregon, which will take a good part of the summer.

S. Enomoto, of Enomoto & Co., says that they received many Mothers' day orders which they could fill, as well as many which they could not. They sent out large quantities of carnations and spring flowers as far east as Ogden.

The United Flower & Supply Co. concentrated on lilies for the day's business. They contracted for a cut of 10,000 lilies and had no difficulty in disposing of the entire crop at a good price.

Domoto Bros. report a heavy business, it being impossible to fill all orders on carnations. Roses fell a little short and lilies cleaned up easily. They had a fine cut of Easter lilies and handled a good many callas besides.

Henry Avansino, manager of the E. W. McLellan Co., says that they could have sold a good deal more stock last week if it had been available, notwithstanding the curtailment in shipping business. The crop of roses is still heavy, he says, but not so large as it has been recently. While prices have advanced a little, they are reasonable compared with most other flowers just now, which helps them to clean up better than they have for some time.

C. C. Kooyman says that stock is scarce and business good.

J. A. Axell reports all the business he could handle for Mothers' day.

W. Meldrum, of Sacramento, Cal., visited the local market a few days ago, bringing a good report on spring business in that city.

The plans for the spring flower show of the Alameda County Floral Society were concluded at a special meeting held at the Oakland Chamber of Commerce on the evening of May 3.

Extensive preparations have been made for the rose show to be given under the auspices of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society in this city and much interest is being shown in the event. M. M.

were no cases where the demand failed to take care of the supply. The most active demand has come for bedding stock, with the potted plants second in favor among the buyers. Dealers say that this is undoubtedly made more noticeable by the comparative scarcity of a number of potted lines, especially primroses, hawthorns and hydrangeas. The local cut of roses has been holding up in volume and there has been a distinct increase in the cut of Russell roses offered by local greenhouses. The supply of Ophelia and Columbia has been good, with a lull in deliveries of Ward and Premier.

The demand for potted plants has taxed the supply of the growers and more could easily have been moved had the stock been immediately available. The bedding stock sales ran largely to primroses, asters and geraniums, with the local supply of the latter cleaned up nearly every evening. There would have been a greater demand for dahlia bulbs, but the northwestern growers reported rather severe losses as the result of last fall's freeze and they have been able to supply only a small part of their orders.

All of the retailers featured flowers other than carnations in their windows and sales efforts, since the growers were holding back their stock for Mothers' day and brought only such flowers to market as they could not possibly hold back.

The first fuchsias of the season came in from California last week and the list of fruit blossoms available was increased by the arrival of pink Japanese cherry blossoms. These fruit blossoms have apparently struck a popular note with window decorators and other large buyers who can use large baskets, so that good sales have been recorded. Scattering deliveries of California iris have been seen, but this did not carry particularly well and there was not the call for it that might have been expected. Narcissi have been arriving in fine shape and color and have been a regular standby with the trade. The deliveries of snapdragons have been quite heavy also and only intensive sales efforts kept the floors cleaned at all times.

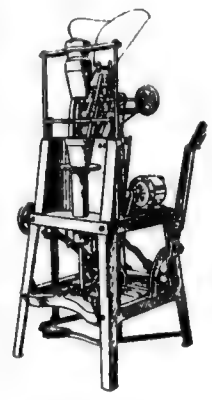
Several local greenhouses have been sending in larger cuts of sweet peas, including some fine stock in the orchid shades, and the deep reds have been standing up better also. Gardenias are in heavier supply; orchids are plentiful enough and lily of the valley is just as hard to get as ever.

Various Notes.

The Hollywood Gardens have been featuring baskets lately, using a novel shade of blue on the baskets and filling them with snapdragons and Ophelia roses. An entire window of these was shown last week and repeat orders on this combination have been frequent. Some fine snapdragons are being handled from the firm's greenhouses, along with some especially colorful sweet peas.

William Goldsbary, of Kenney's Home of Flowers, was in Northbend part of last week on business. He reports a growing interest in seed culture in southwestern Washington, with the acreage increased materially.

Rosaia Bros. showed two novelties last week in the double De Moto hydrangeas and a peculiar, deep red-flowering cactus. The hydrangea is absolutely double throughout, each full-grown flower four inches in diameter, is of an orchid lavender shade and shows an unusually strong stem. The cactus has over 250 blooms and attracted a great deal of attention when shown in the window.



Henry Day, manager of the Orpheum Floral Co., reports a nice sale of all types of bedding stock lately and an especial shortage of Puget Sound-grown dahlias. He says double calceolarias have sold especially well.

The Woodlawn Flower Shop showed an attractive May day window, the baskets being formed of soft straw garden hats, filled with a varied assortment of spring flowers. Narcissi, anenomes and snapdragons proved a popular combination.

Fred H. Rowe, of McCoy's, was showing some excellent narcissi last week. The stems were firm and more than forty inches long and the cut averaged four blooms to the stalk. These naturally commanded a premium over the open market prices paid on narcissi.

holds its second meeting of the season this week, when the matter of securing the forestry building of the University Washington for the annual show of society is to be taken up. This ar's event will be the most pretentious show yet held and it is expected that last year's attendance record of 20,000 persons will be excelled. M.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

Mothers' Day.

The market during the week had the true holiday earmarks. It started with a falling off in the supply and about the middle of the week it seemed there was no supply to be expected. The shortage appeared so pronounced that the wholesale houses began to turn down orders for carnations and to limit orders for other stock. Friday, May 7, carnations began to arrive in large quantities. Saturday's weather was ideal and it was the same for Sunday; so everybody bought heavily. Even Narcissus poeticus sold at $3 per hundred and jonquils at $6 per hundred. Roses advanced materially, but carnations held firm at $12 per hundred for the best.

A feature of Mothers' day was that demand was not centered on carnations. It took in everything in cut flowers and plants; in fact, there was a shortage of plants. This will be a great encouragement to plant growers. It will mark the beginning of a plant demand which can well be expected to equal that of Easter. F. P. A.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

Throughout last week and up to the rush period for Mothers' day, business was satisfactory. While the demand has been unusually good for this season, the supply has been limited. Carnations have been scarce and the advanced prices went into effect May 6. Roses ranged from $10 to $30 per hundred. Lilies, sweet peas, etc., remained about the same as they have been since Easter.

Various Notes.

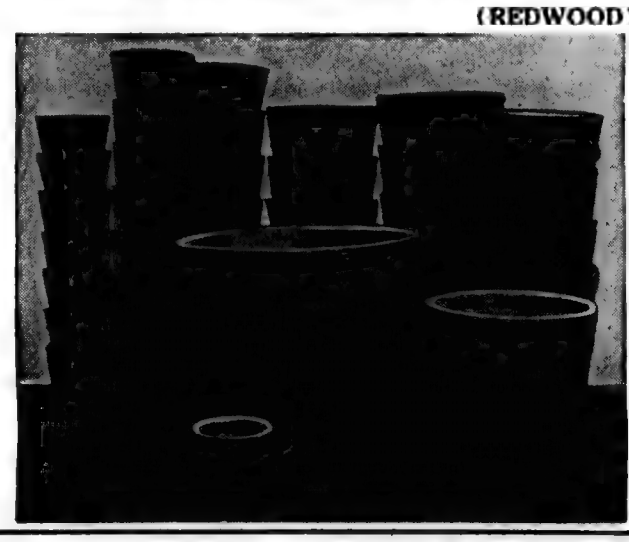
The Wilkinsburg Flower Shop is the name of a new enterprise conducted by William H. Richardson and H. R. Schriver at 1011 Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg, Pa. Mr. Richardson was employed for nine years by William M. Turner, while Mr. Schriver was in the hardware business.

After spending fifty-two days in the Mayo Brothers' hospital, Rochester, Minn., Spiro Kaps has gone to his home in Minneapolis, where he expects to spend about six months before returning to his position as manager of the East Liberty station flower shop.

Edward J. McCallum left Thursday, May 6, to spend a week among his firm's western branches. A few days before Memorial day Mr. McCallum expects to make an automobile trip to Maryland to personally supervise the loading of a car of peonies. He will be accompanied by his family and will go to Atlantic City for a short vacation after leaving Maryland.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Edgar arrived in Pittsburgh Wednesday, May 5, for a two weeks' stay.

Abraham Kleinberg, who has been spending the last six months in New York as salesman for Frank E. Campbell, has returned to Pittsburgh and is at his old place in the Alpha Flower Shop.



George Nixon, of the Alpha Flower Shop, has been visiting in Canton and Akron, O.

Mr. McMillen, manager in the Braddock, Pa., shop of Johnston the Florist, reports business exceptionally good all along the line, including McKeesport, Braddock, Homestead and Duquesne. Mr. Johnston is still looking after his greenhouses near McKeesport, in the absence of a permanent foreman.

Gentlemen---It may interest you to know the results from the few Freesias that we had from you August, 1919--3000 5-8 inch and 2000 3-4 inch--5000 in all. From the 5000 bulbs we cut and sold practically 24,000 blooms. We think this is a wonderful result, and whether our methods of culture were different or not, we give great credit to the quality of the bulbs.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

WALTER MOTT will join the traveling sales force of W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, June 1.

ONION seed for sets has gone rapidly into the ground at Chicago. The quantity of seed placed by growers, if it all is planted, will mean increased acreage.

THE stock of onion sets at Chicago has cleaned up rapidly in the last few days, following the lifting of embargo by the express company. There would have been no surplus had not some orders been canceled because of delayed delivery.

THE Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, is all sold out on onion sets and is turning down orders. The spring rush of business is practically over—and it has been some rush. Since this is a wholesale house, the lateness of the season has had, Albert Smith says, little effect on the volume of business.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, Chicago, last week removed its west side store and warehouse to 615 West Randolph street, where larger and better quarters were obtained. The main store, for twenty-five years at 31 and 33 West Randolph street, was removed on Sunday, May 9, across the street, to No. 10.

THE demand for cowpeas and soy beans has been affected by the unusually high prices that have been prevailing. Seedsmen believe that farmers have been delaying their purchases with the hope that prices will decline. The trend of prices, however, has not shown any perceptible upward or downward movement.

MOST reports indicate that there will be a good demand for seed corn. In general, the germination is not considered so good as that of last year. Considerable moisture in the corn at husking time last fall and cold weather before the corn could dry properly are given as the principal reasons for the impaired germination in a few of the important seed-corn growing sections.

ALLEN WOODRUFF, of the Woodruff-Boyce Seed Co., Seattle, Wash., recently took an option on the Denny building, on Second avenue between Union and Pike streets. The price reported is $275,000. This is the third piece of downtown property in which Mr. Woodruff has become interested. The present tenants of the Denny building include the Woodlawn Flower Shop.

OUT-OF-TOWN buyers are slow to place orders now, because transportation conditions are such that they cannot be certain whether they will get their consignments when they want them, according to Thomas J. E. Kemp, manager of the Illinois Seed Co., Chicago. Since this company deals in grass and field seeds, its shipments are generally too bulky to go by express.

THE W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, according to R. B. Howe, is having an increased demand for perennials, seeds and bulbs. Much of the general increase in demand is attributed to the horticultural exhibition which the company will hold September 9 to 11. The schedule gives 100 classes for flowers, fruits and veg-

Two New Snapdragons

From the originator of Nelrose, Enchantress, Bronze Beauty and other standard greenhouse varieties.

GOLDEN DELIGHT. During the past 15 years I have grown thousands of Yellow Seedlings from all manner of crosses, but this is the first I have deemed worthy of introduction to the trade. Pure deep golden yellow, very large flower and fine habit. If it does not prove the best yellow for greenhouse culture I shall be disappointed.

ORLANDO. Better than Bronze Beauty. Cleaner colors, flowers as large and has a better habit. It is the one variety for a fastidious trade.

the firm has had to move into the entire second floor of the new address, in order to have adequate room.

Almost the whole business of the firm is done with the market gardeners in the vicinity of Chicago, including the great majority of the 3,000 gardeners who supply Chicago with fresh vegetables. Mr. Sluis expects that the summer trade will continue fairly steady. He believes that, especially in the case of farmers who are planting much oats and corn, the lateness of the season has delayed the planting of the oats until time for the corn and that the two have to go into the ground at about the same time; this, with the scarcity of farm labor, will bring it about that not enough care can be given to the corn or to the other crops. Where weeding or cultivating has been inadequately done, the ground will have to be plowed over and a fresh demand for seeds will result. And Mr. Sluis has other reasons for viewing the future complacently.

As to the farm labor market, however, he sees little ground for immediate hope. The city can offer higher wages than the country and, in reputation if not in fact, has other attractions for young people. So that the consumers of seeds are finding their activities seriously handicapped, a difficulty likely to continue for some time.

FACTORS IN CANNERS' FIELD.

Factors affecting seedsmen this season through the canners' industry are outlined in the monthly review of the Chicago Federal Reserve Bank, which puts the situation thus:

"Careful investigation among the leading canners in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin reveals considerable recovery by the canning industry, which felt seriously the competition caused by the dumping of the surplus stocks of the War Department on the market at much less than the cost of production, especially tomatoes. Not an unusually large stock is being carried over in most instances, but the present demand for spot delivery is far below the normal for this season.

"The chief difficulty in this industry, as far as the future is concerned, is the decrease in acreage in all states excepting Wisconsin, and more especially in Michigan and Indiana, devoted to the

Sweet Pea Seed

For July and Early August to December Delivery

Liggit's Special Winter-Flowering Orchids and Spencers

Hand Rogued—Hand Picked—Hand Threshed

For Greenhouse Use

If you have been troubled with badly mixed Pea seeds, or immatured seed that does not grow, try our hand-picked seed. Each pod is picked when ripe and matured, instead of pulling up the vines and stacking them to cure, then threshing them in a machine, as most growers do. While picking by hand the fields get rogued almost daily, not only for off colors but Winter flowering plants only are permitted to remain. Our system of hand-picking and hand-hulling does away with rogues and immatured seed. This seed is worth much more than others—but our prices are about the same:

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE death April 25 of Charles Emil Frankenbach, of the firm of C. E. Frankenbach & Son, Southampton, L. I., N. Y., is recorded in this week's obituary column.

HARDY roses seem to have suffered more than any other plants from winter killing. Deciduous trees and shrubs have come through well and evergreens have rarely come through in better shape.

TOWARDS the end of May the Wing Seed Co., at Mechanicsburg, O., is to entertain the local branch of the American Iris Society for a day, when the company's fields of blooming iris will be inspected by the society's members from Ohio and adjoining states. The exact date has not yet been announced.

THAT the price of nursery stock on the Pacific coast is about to double again in price, although now selling for 500 per cent more than was the case four years ago, is the statement of August Guignard, Oregon nurseryman, with holdings at Hood River. Recently he received a shipment of 10,000 seedlings in a box weighing 200 pounds; this could have been secured for $25 to $30, he says, before the war, but this year it cost $536.

ROSES KILLED BY COLD.

Although shrubs were not greatly damaged by the severe winter in the northern part of Ohio, according to C. Betscher, Dover, O., roses suffered a good deal. Hybrid teas and hybrid perennials felt the effects of the cold most. Killarneys and Ward were killed by freezing. At Mr. Betscher's place a number of Cynthia Forde, Killarney Brilliant and some other varieties on multiflora were killed. Some varieties on Manetti were ruined also. Own-root Gruss an Teplitz, Radiance, Ophelia and Columbia came through in better shape, although the smaller plants froze badly at 5 degrees below zero. For eight to ten weeks the ground in this vicinity was frozen with a covering of ice. Climbers and ramblers were only lightly damaged.

QUARANTINE FOR MOTHS.

Revision Proposal Draws Protests.

As a result of the remonstrances and criticisms which the trade sent in to the office of the Federal Horticultural Board upon receiving the notice of a hearing which was to be held May 7 to consider the revision of the quarantine of New England because of the gypsy and brown-tailed moths, C. L. Marlatt, the chairman of the board, has sent out a statement replying to these protestations. In it he says:

"The issuance May 1 of the notice of a public hearing called for May 7 for the purpose of revising the existing quarantine in New England on account of the gypsy and brown-tailed moths has, through a misunderstanding of the purport of this notice, occasioned some alarm on the part of nurserymen, florists and others who jumped to the conclusion that some new and drastic quarantine was about to be placed, which would seriously affect the sale for interstate movement of ornamental and other plants from the states covered in the proposed quarantine. In explanation, it may be stated that this quarantine is a mere revision of the quarantine which has been in force since 1912. It is, therefore, not a new quarantine and will impose no new restrictions on the territory which has hitherto been covered by the quarantine. This territory includes approximately the coastal half this spring? Every plant bright and green—not a dead one. A strong contrast to the northern Buxus bordered garden, now either dead or sadly winter injured, brown and dejected looking.

Mr. Siebrecht, the veteran plantsman, on seeing the garden the other day shown in accompanying illustration, exclaimed with his characteristic enthusiasm: "Magnificent! There is a fortune in it for the nurserymen."

We offer you well rooted dormant summer frame cuttings ready to set out direct into the nursery without further expense to you at

All sold out of larger sizes

Many of the leading catalogue firms have already contracted with us for their supply for the ensuing season, and others are buying these frame grown plants for their own planting, preparing for the enormous demand which is sure to follow.

It is a safe statement that BOX-BARBERRY will soon be the plantsman's best seller.

of New England and involves practically all of the large nursery and floral establishments of that district. The purpose of this quarantine is merely to make such changes of the exterior border line as the spread of the moth during the year has necessitated. Such changes, either in the form of extensions or reductions, have been made annually.

No Prohibition of Shipment.

"It may be pointed out, furthermore, that this quarantine does not prohibit the movement of nursery stock, florists' stock and other products covered, but that movement of all such products is provided for under inspection and certification. Nurserymen, florists and others interested have been working under this quarantine for about eight years and the efficiency of the inspection and certification under this quarantine has permitted the interstate trade in ornamental and florists' stock to proceed without restriction—trade which, without the endorsement of such inspection and certification, would probably have been brought to an abrupt termination by drastic quarantine action on the part of surrounding states.

"The only serious effect of any extension of this quarantine is to cause a greater expense of supervision and certification to the Department of Agriculture and the states concerned.

"To avoid the necessity of these annual revisions and the notices of public hearings which these revisions require, together with the misinterpretation of these notices which is likely to follow, it is now proposed, in connection with the revision of this year, to so word the quarantine as to make it possible to effect the additions or reductions in the quarantined territory from time to time without the necessity of annual public hearings. In conclusion, it may be reported that the existence of this quarantine and the guarantee which is given by the inspection and certification of nursery and other ornamental stock as well as other products leaving the territory is the very condition which makes possible interstate movement of Quarantine Covers Much.

The text of the notice, which is dated May 1, follows:

The Secretary of Agriculture has information that the gypsy moth, Porthetria dispar, and the brown-tailed moth, Euproctis chrysorrhea, two dangerous insects not heretofore widely prevalent or distributed within and throughout the United States, exist at various points in the states of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

It appears necessary, therefore, to consider the advisability of extending the quarantine now in force on account of these two insects and to quarantine the states above named in accordance with the Plant Quarantine Act of August 20, 1912 (37 Stat., 315), as amended by the act of Congress approved March 4, 1917 (39 Stat., 1134, 1165), and of restricting the movement from these states, or from any infested districts determined therein, into other states and territories of (1) coniferous trees, such as spruce, fir, hemlock, pine, juniper (cedar), and arbor vitæ (white cedar), known and described as "Christmas trees," and parts thereof, and decorative plants, such as holly and laurel, known and described as "Christmas greens or greenery"; (2) forest plant products, including logs, tan bark, posts, poles, railroad ties, cord wood and lumber; (3) field-grown florists' stock, trees, shrubs, vines, cuttings, and other plants and plant products, except fruit pits, seeds of fruits and ornamental trees and shrubs, field vegetable, and flower seeds, bedding plants, and other herbaceous plants and roots; and (4) stone or quarry products.

Notice is therefore hereby given that a public hearing will be held at the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., room 11, Federal Horticultural Board, at 10 o'clock a. m., May 7, 1920, in order that any person interested in the proposed quarantine may appear and be heard, either in person or by attorney.

IT IS ROBINIA HISPIDA.

I am sending you a leaf and bloom of a shrub. Can you tell me the botanical name for it? Where can I obtain Oxytropis hybrida grandiflora plants?

N. G. Mc.—Miss.

The name of the plant is Robinia hispida, or hairy locust, also sometimes called the false acacia.

To obtain plants of Oxytropis hybrida grandiflora I should suggest that you try any of the prominent southern nurserymen.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

A long period of dark weather, together with the fact that roses and carnations are off crop, is responsible for the shortage of flowers. This shortage is accentuated by the more than usual demand for numerous small weddings, several large funerals and the occurrence of Mothers' day.

Commenting on the accusation that the florists profiteered in white carnations, local florists call attention to the fact that there was no increase in prices for the occasion, the same schedule having been in force here for nearly a month. At one of the big department stores, 5,000 roses were distributed free to the customers Saturday afternoon, May 8.

An evidence of the shortage was the cancellation of Providence flower day for the benefit of one of the leading public philanthropies of the city, which was to have been held Friday, May 7. This year the committee asked for 50,000 flowers for that day, but could only obtain 20,000 and these at such a high price as to make the scheme impracticable, the average price per flower quoted being 7 cents, and as 10 cents is about the average received per flower, it was decided that the margin was too small.

Valuable Aid in Transplanting

Following is an extract from a letter from Hull Brothers, of Waymart, Pa.:

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

HEATING ENLARGED HOUSE.

I intend to add twenty-two feet to my present greenhouse, which is 22x30 feet and runs east and west, making a house fifty-two feet long. Across fourteen feet of the east end of the house there is a lean-to, which extends out twelve feet, making the eventual length over-all of house and lean-to sixty-four feet. The lean-to on its north side rests against the boiler shed, which extends along the remainder of the east end of the greenhouse. The walls are four feet, with no glass on the north side and twenty inches of glass on the south side. It is ten feet to the ridge. The glass is 16x18 inches. I have a W. 15-16 Ideal boiler, with a 5-inch flow pipe eleven feet long coming off the boiler. There are three 2-inch flows in the house, all under benches, and twelve 1½-inch returns. Will this boiler heat the house, including the addition, to 60 degrees in zero weather? I plan to extend the pipes right on into the addition. C. F. P.—Kan.

I do not recall the rating of the W. 15-16 Ideal boiler, but if it has a grate twenty-five inches in diameter, as I believe it has, it will be quite large enough to heat the house described.

While it will require a little forcing of the fire in extremely cold weather to keep the temperature up to 60 degrees, there would be no difficulty in ordinary winter weather and, at the most, two additional returns are all that would be required.

PIPING FOR SMALL HOUSE.

I have an 18x24 house, running north and south, with the walls on three sides consisting of three and one-half feet of wood and one and one-half feet of glass; on the north side is a shed nine feet long and eleven feet to the ridge, used to house the heater. The greenhouse is given partial protection on the east side by a tight board fence and trees twenty feet away and on the south side by a 1-story building thirty feet away; the west side is unprotected. The heater fire box is 18x20 inches, with an 18-inch grate. The flow and the return are 1½-inch. The boiler is rated for 300 square feet.

I have 1-inch and 1½-inch pipe. Please tell me where to place the pipe, what size to use and how many lines of each, in order to heat this house to a night temperature of 50 degrees.

T. H. K.—Ind.

The inquiry does not state whether steam or hot water is to be used as the heating medium. For a house of the size described hot water would be preferable, but if the pipe mentioned is to be used it is better adapted for steam heating, especially if there is only one 1½-inch flow and one return of the same size.

To heat the house with steam, run one 1½-inch main through the house two or three feet below the ridge. With this main connect three coils of 1-inch pipe, two of which should be on the walls and the third under the middle bench, or in the walk if beds are used.

The wall coils should contain three pipes each and, starting at the south end of the house, should run in either direction to the corners and then along the side walls back to the north end of the house. There should be two 1-inch pipes in the middle coil.

For hot water heating it would be better to use 1½-inch pipe for houses of this length, unless the top of the boiler is well below the level of the returns or unless the system is under pressure, although 1-inch pipe may be used. If the supply of 1½-inch pipe is sufficient, run one flow pipe on each plate and a third three feet below the ridge. There should be three 1½-inch return pipes on each of the side walls and four under the middle bench, or in the walks if solid beds are used. If it is necessary to substitute 1-inch returns, three will be required to take the place of two 1½-inch returns.

Whether steam or hot water is used, the flows as well as the returns should have a fall of about one inch in ten feet.

Even with hot water heat, not over 160 square feet of radiation will be required; consequently, it is evident that a boiler with an 18-inch grate, rated for 300 square feet of radiation, will be amply large.

TORONTO, ONT.

Coöperation Brings Results.

Toronto florists are enthusiastic over the results of the coöperative advertising carried in the newspapers last week, in which both the growers and retailers participated. On account of the sentiment attached to Mothers' day, the prices were not raised and, as a result, the demand was enormous and stocks were completely cleared out early Saturday night. The retailers were unanimous in that it was one of the best days they have had. The retailers put in all the stock they could get in anticipation of a great day's sales, but it is doubtful if there were enough flowers around Toronto to supply the demand. Both the growers and the retailers feel that the results were such as to warrant other similar coöperative plans being carried on.

The demand did not center on carnations alone, for sweet peas, roses, snapdragons, etc., were also sold out. Many baskets were made up by different florists and sold.

Many of the florists stated that the demand for flowers for Mothers' day eclipsed that for Christmas and this demonstrates the hold the observance of Mothers' day has taken on the people.

A feature of the week was the number of telegraph orders received and sent to many points in both the United States and Canada. Another feature was the manner in which the newspapers coöperated by publishing stories about Mothers' day, a history of the movement, references to flowers, etc. It was one of the most successful days in the whole calendar, so far as it affected Toronto. Mothers' Day.

Mothers' day was a record-breaker this year. Roses were somewhat scarce, but a crop of short American Beauties made up in a large degree for quantities lacking in the other varieties. Carnations arrived in good supply and, at $8 to $12 per hundred, met with a great demand and there was scarcely a flower left in the greenhouses Saturday night.

Replanting has already begun and fine, warm weather seems to have set in.

Various Notes.

Gus Lagerquist, formerly of the Dale Estate, has built two small greenhouses and is going into the business of market gardening.

The case of I. Hewetson vs. A. A. Elliott, which has been before the courts for two years, was settled last week in favor of the former. This was a case where the water, running through the former's garden, backed up on the latter's property and spoiled his greenhouse crop. Mr. Elliott appealed the decision, but the appeal was not upheld.

Among recent visitors to Brampton were Miss Eileen Low, London, England; A. C. Burrage, Boston, Mass.; J. T. Butterworth, Framingham, Mass.; R. Allen, New York; A. Jackman, North Bay, Ont.; G. W. Lowe, Hamilton, Ont., and J. T. Harrison, Toronto, Ont.

Better Than Putty

—and Why?

Federal Greenhouse Cements are proving so wonderfully efficient because they possess to a superlative degree just those essentials which provide the greatest service to the greenhouse owner.

A greenhouse cement, first of all, must be absolutely watertight and airtight; it must work readily with glass and metal or wood, adhering tenaciously under all weather conditions; it must possess enough elasticity to take up all strains, due to windstorms, etc., as well as the normal contraction and expansion of the glass, wood or metal; it must possess resistance against sudden blows, such as hailstones; it must, above all, possess endurance, that quality which makes it last over a period of years without deterioration.

Federal Greenhouse Cements perform these functions, as well as many others, better than any materials you have ever used; if you once try them you will never be satisfied with any other brand.

We recommend the black as most efficient and, by the way, 90% of the greenhouse owners use our Federal Greenhouse Cement No. 2, which is the black in a consistency suitable for use in the putty bulb.

The reason we recommend the black is because it is possible for us to use it as the primary base to certain pitches and gums, which possess marked elasticity and waterproofing qualities. Combining these gums and pitches, as we do, with suitable oils and reducing agents, and with high-grade asbestos fiber, produces cements which have an inherent strength absolutely defying weather and other conditions.

In making colored and white cements, which are more expensive than the blacks, it is necessary to use as pigments such materials as white lead, zinc, lithopone, barytes and similar materials. These pigments in themselves possess no waterproofing or other value except as metal and wood protectives. Cements made from them depend for their efficiency as greenhouse cements solely on the oils and other materials combined with them. Now, the oils which we use, together with asbestos fiber, which is a part of every one of our cements, enable us to make white and colored cements which are far better than the putties and other materials which you have hitherto used, and a good many of the greenhouse owners use them in preference to the black cement. We, however, urge you to use the black.

For repairing broken lights, no matter how badly they may be broken, we recommend our black paste Federal Elastic Cement. For roofing work and for covering the brick work of boiler settings we also recommend the paste consistency. In fact, the paste consistency is most advisable except where a thinner material is required in order to do work quickly and effectively.

Federal Greenhouse Cements are sold at very reasonable prices. Their great success has brought numerous imitations on the market.

Now is the time to start using Federal Greenhouse Cements. Glass is high and every other essential has risen to a degree making economies and conservation not only desirable but necessary. The use of Federal Greenhouse Cements will prove a step in the right direction and in a short time you will express your approval, as so many hundreds of others have done.

Mothers' Day.

Big business came to all the trade for Mothers' day. Plants and cut flowers of all kinds were sold at good prices. The cut flowers were sold out early, especially carnations. The day was ideal, as was also Saturday, May 8.

Various Notes.

Theodore Kuebler had a large stock of plants and cut flowers. He also had a large cut of extra fine snapdragon.

Royston & Fenton report the best business they ever had. E. L. Fenton has moved into his new residence and will move the greenhouses from their present location to the new one in about six weeks.

Niednagel & Sons had a large cut of roses and carnations. Their peony field is looking fine and will be just right for Memorial day.

The Blackman Floral Co. had large cuts of roses, carnations and other flowers and plants.

Karl Zeidler was especially strong on geraniums and Easter Greeting pelargoniums.

O. S. Smith did a big business both at the greenhouse and at his market stand.

The Lockyear Floral Co. cut extra fine carnations and roses and had a fine stock of plants.

Otto Kuebler was kept busy at his stand in the Kresge 5 and 10-cent store.

Mrs. J. C. Elspermann sold large quantities of cut flowers and plants at good prices. E. L. F.

CYCLAMEN

A CHOICE STRAIN OF
Cyclamen seed, will create the greatest pleasure for the grower, when they make that beautiful show of large well colored, long heavy stemmed flowers, standing erect above such silvery lined foliage as our choice strain will produce and is the only way to avoid disappointments, when they come to bloom.
We have that strain of which I am sure there is no better, and can not be surpassed, at least that is the conviction of our many customers.
Scarcity of such extra good seed, will put price much higher the coming season, for early sowing, purchase now so to have it on hand.
The following colors are now available: Christmas Red, Defiance, dark blood and bright red, dark and light salmon, $2.00 per 100, $18.00 per 1000. Our cultural directions go with all orders, in them you will find a life-time experience. Cash please.
C. Winterich, Cyclamen Specialist, St. Petersburg, The Sunshine City of Florida.

"As to your gutter, I have not yet seen any gutter made that will duplicate it. Your gutter I have in use shows no sign of a leak. I have two styles of gutters made by other firms and they are now leaking bad and no way to remedy them."

We are the patentees and sole manufacturers of this LEAK-PROOF gutter which is giving so much satisfaction.

NO UNCOMMON THING.

No, it's not uncommon, as you will agree, for letters and telegrams that come into the office of The Review discontinuing Classified ads to bear the commendation and thanks of the advertiser for moving his surplus stock quickly. The reason for this is that it's not uncommon for Classified ads to move a florist's surplus stock with one insertion. The service given by The Review draws such letters every day. Here's one of them:

Please discontinue our ad for alternantheras in Classified and mail bill. Sold out, thanks to The Review.—Dan Ruttle & Son, Covington, Ky., May 7, 1920.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

DISEASED TOMATO PLANTS.

Can you tell us what is the matter with our tomato plants? We have been successful in producing good tomato crops for over twenty years, but last season our plants were attacked by some kind of disease. We had planted 3,000 plants in the greenhouses and they appeared to be strong and healthy and grew vigorously until two or three clusters of blooms were produced, when the plants began to die without any apparent cause. First a leaf, generally near the ground, would wilt, and then leaf by leaf the plant would wither and die. We lost almost every plant. Some would not be attacked until they had grown to a height of four or five feet and were loaded with tomatoes, but they would then quickly die.

We got new seed, new pots, new soil and started the plants in a different greenhouse this year and now the disease has appeared again and from over 3,000 plants we have not over 100 good plants. We have used Bordeaux mixture and all other remedies we have heard of, but without any success. What can we do to prevent this disease? We plant the seed early in December and plant the tomato plants in the lettuce house in the solid ground from the last part of February to the first part of March. P. E. F. C.—Wyo.

I am unable to state what the disease is from which your tomatoes are suffering, and cannot suggest any remedy for the affected plants. The attack seems to be so virulent that I would suggest calling in an official of your state agricultural college, provided your state maintains one, and getting his opinion and advice. There is evidently something wrong in the soil. It may suit lettuce, but not tomatoes. Probably a thorough sterilization of the soil by the use of steam would cure your trouble and it would certainly pay to do this while your house is empty, if you have the facilities for doing so. C. W.

How much does it cost to care for your lawn?

During the past two years labor conditions have reached a state where many have found it almost impossible to keep their fine lawn in the desired condition.

Not only have labor costs increased to a large extent but in many cases it has been impossible to get good help at any price.

Hence up-keep costs have doubled and trebled. Because help could not be obtained many fine lawns have had to suffer.

This year you can give your lawn the attention it requires and have the work done better and at less cost than was ever possible with hand mowers. The Ideal Power Lawn Mower will solve your grass cutting problems the same as it has for hundreds of others.

Advantages of the Ideal

The Ideal is a power mower and roller in one and the sod is rolled every time the grass is cut. This keeps it smooth, firm and free from bumps. The Ideal is scientifically designed to keep lawns in fine condition. The weight is just right for steady year around work.

The Mower has a thirty-inch cut and one man can easily mow four or five acres of grass per day at an operating expense of about fifty cents for fuel and oil.

Cuts Close to Walks, Trees and Shrubbery

Machine turns easily and will cut close up to walks, trees, flower beds and shrubbery.

When running over walks, driveways, pavements, etc., the operator simply lifts the cutting mower from the ground by means of a conveniently placed lever. This feature is also important in the early spring when it is desired to use the machine for rolling only. Simply lift up the cutting mower, add more weight if required and you have the most convenient power roller imaginable.

The success of the Ideal is due to its sturdy and powerful, yet simple, construction. No clutches or complicated parts to wear and get out of order. The Motor is built in our own shop and designed especially for the work.

Owners of large estates, public parks, golf clubs, country clubs, cemeteries, etc., are all using the Ideal Tractor Lawn Mower with great success.

Special Cutting Mower for Putting Greens

For work on golf courses we furnish, at slight additional cost, a special set of cutting blades for use on the putting greens. In less than five minutes the regular 30" blade can be substituted for cutting the fairway.

When desired, we also furnish, as an extra, a riding trailer which fastens to the frame and permits the operator to ride and at the same time have the same easy control as when walking.

You can secure the Ideal through your dealer direct or from our factory. Write today for catalogue and further details.

IDEAL POWER LAWN MOWER

Here's AGMCO Service In a New Field—

ON account of the great scarcity of greenhouse material of AGMCO grade, we are unable to supply some of our friends who are in a hurry. Still, they want AGMCO service, knowledge and skill in getting what they want. Hence, the new field of service.

This is the way it works*—

You may be one of those who have an extra supply of glass, pipe or heating fittings that they're not going to use. Of course this material must be of good grade and in A-1 order. You write us about it, and if it is what we are looking for we will sell it for you at a reasonable, fair and just price.

Then, again*—

You may be tearing down some old greenhouses that contain really good material. And if you are not going to use it, we can sell it for you to your advantage.

But*—

BEAR IN MIND—

We are not buying this material for our own use.
We are buying it as a part of the AGMCO service to its customers, who, in obedience to a force of habit, turn to AGMCO service to help them. By the use of some of the AGMCO special fittings, we can work up this material and create for these customers really serviceable houses that, while not as satisfactory as AGMCO houses, will save the day for them in this emergency.

It means nothing to us, but it accommodates an old friend by securing for him something that he wants, and at the same time helps you to unload something that you do not want.

WHAT HAVE YOU?

Attention Mr. Johnson

Gentlemen: We bought one of your small electric fountains last December. We have used this fountain continuously on an average of 14 hours every day and it has given absolute satisfaction in every respect, not only as an asset in beautifying our store, but as a profitable investment for table decorations.

We find it very simple and very dependable and something that we can get numerous effects out of for various occasions.

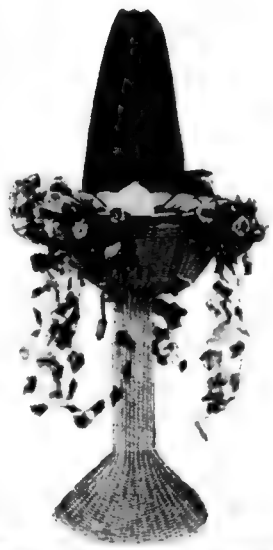
We would like you to send us two more of the same style fountain at once.

Yours truly,

Muehlebach Flower Shop

Hugo R. Neff

HRN:K



THE motor in the Randall Electric Fountain must be of the highest grade to drive the water continuously through the spray ring back into the splash pan and back into the spray ring again.

During the war, the difficulty of obtaining a sufficient number of motors rugged enough to stand this wear made it advisable for us to discontinue the extensive production of electric fountains until such a time as we were able to insure our custom a high-grade motor.

This time has now arrived and we are now installing in our fountains a motor even better and more powerful than the one used before the war.

The letter from the Muehlebach Flower Shop, shown above, is adequate proof of the ability of our fountain to stand up under hard service.

We suggest that you write us today for information and prices.

Would suggest taking plants in paper pots whenever possible. It is a big saving in both packing and express charges.

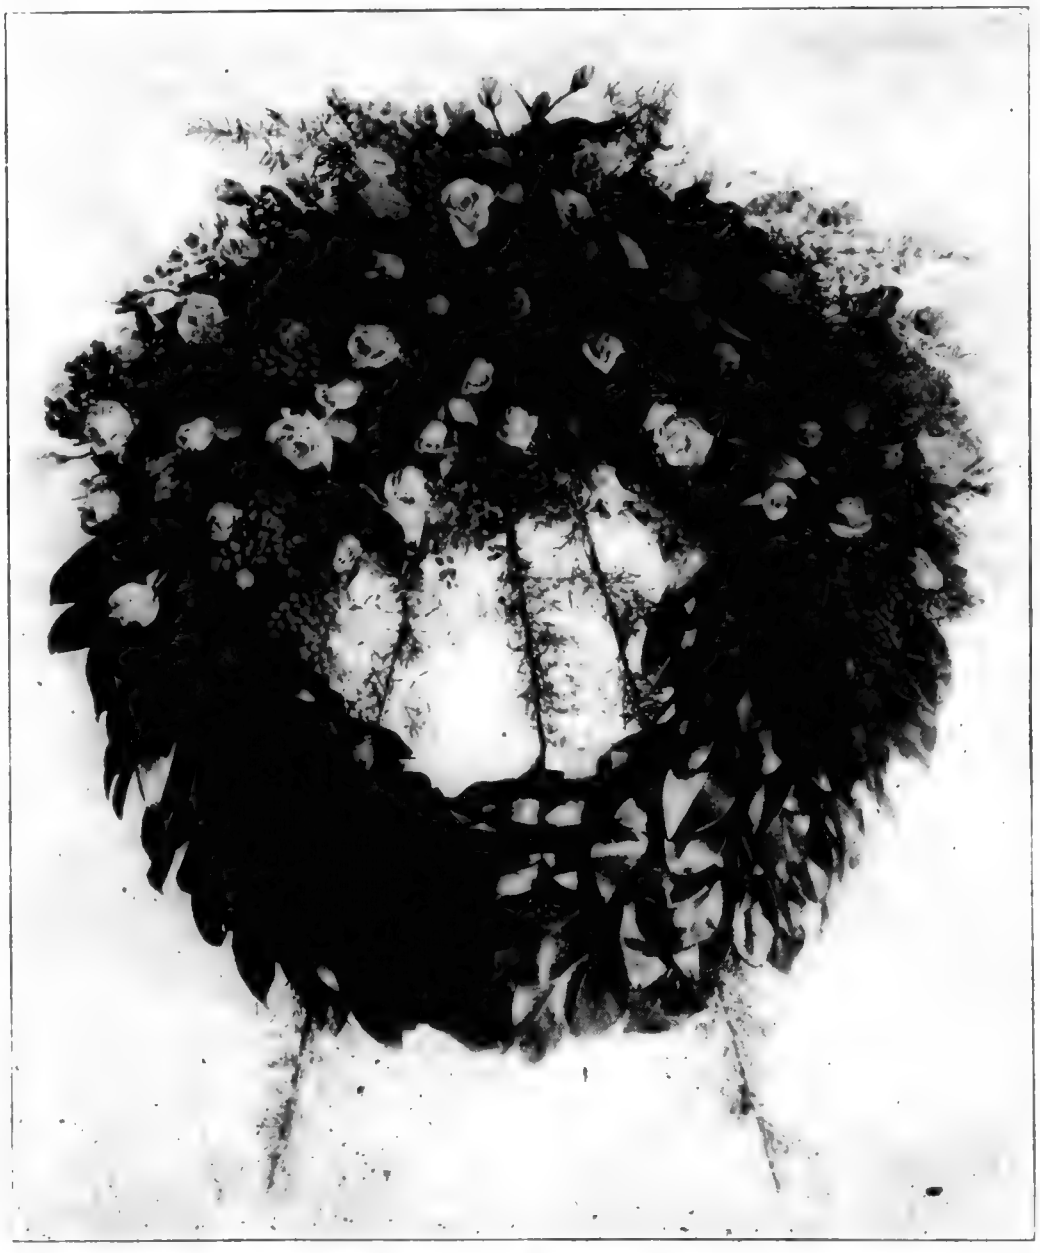
THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

MEMORIAL DAY GROWING GREATER

Easter and Mothers' day this year showed what energy and advertising could do to make good business for the trade. Memorial day is the last of the spring's three big holidays. It should be the best. The following suggestions are offered to help make the season's grand finale truly grand.

HOLIDAYS play an enormous part in the trade's business—of that the experience of the week before Mothers' day alone was convincing proof. Such a holiday supplies an outstanding reason for the use of flowers; there is something definite to be said with flowers, something that can in no other way be said so well. But Mothers' day is comparatively new. The education of the public to use flowers on that day has gone far enough so that upstart propaganda in favor of flags this year made little headway, but still there is need for further awakening of the people to the many ways in which honor may be shown the mother with flowers.



Memorial day, however, is different, in that, ever since that day was established by the G. A. R. in 1868, the use of flowers—all flowers, without limitation of kind or color—has been the customary and natural mode of memorializing the dead heroes. The history of Memorial day has been marked, not so much by the growing popularity of flowers as compared with other means of expression, but rather by a broadening in the significance of the day and a greater freedom in the ways in which flowers are used.

Two Trade Days.

These two holidays, Mothers' day and Memorial day, may be rivals as trade aids, but their competition is helpful rather than otherwise. They are far enough apart so that different crops supply stock for each and yet near enough together so that the public's flower-buying momentum generated on Mothers' day will to some extent carry over to the second holiday; advertising for one day strengthens the public's inclination to buy flowers for the other as well, especially when the Mothers' day prices have not been such as to dampen the enthusiasm of flower lovers. The spirit of the Mothers' day flower buyer closely resembles and hence helps to produce that of the Memorial day flower buyer.

How Memorial Day Grew.

When Memorial day was first celebrated, it was the day when members of the G. A. R. decorated the graves of their comrades who had fallen in the Civil war. But soon it was taken up by the families of those heroes. As the ranks of the G. A. R. grew smaller and smaller, the responsibility rested more and more with the surviving relatives. And there were those, in constantly increasing numbers, who felt a desire on that day to commemorate the death of a loved one, whether that person had been a soldier or not. Then in 1898 the Spanish war, with its 6,600 fatal American casualties, increased the number of homes in which a loss was mourned and Memorial day looked to as a fitting time for the commemoration of the soldier's death. Now the recent war has added much more largely to those homes and the significance of Memorial day has been renewed with tragic keenness for many thousands of American families. Even where no member of a particular family was killed in the war, there is grieving in sympathy with those who sustained direct loss and in sadness over the cutting down of so much young manhood both in this country and, yet more, in Europe. Thus Memorial day has become a truly national holiday and not, as originally, a day for the north alone.

Scarcity of Flowers Will Make Wreaths More Popular This Year.

In various cities throughout this country a campaign is being waged for the raising of money to supply flowers for the decoration of the 70,000 graves of American soldiers in France. While this money will not be spent with the trade here, the wide publicity involved in raising the funds will, at no expense to the trade, bring the public to realize more fully the need of flowers for every memorial use on that day.

Flowers' Place.

What, after all, is the real relation of flowers to Memorial day? That is a day when people are remembering a son, a father, a brother, a husband, a friend, whose beauty of character, whose fragrant personality, whose vigorous growth was so much to be enjoyed during his lifetime. These happy characteristics of the living, not the sadness of death, are to be testified to and only flowers, with their beauty and fragrance and vital vigor, can adequately represent and express what is in the minds and memories of those who look back to the life now spent. Because of the spirit which is abroad at this time, many people will wish, if not to take flowers to some cemetery, at least to send them to an institution such as a hospital or a children's home, where a bit of bright color and fragrant life will bring joy on a day all too likely to be sad and full of lonesomeness. In this last holiday of the season flowers have a place from which no rival can ever dislodge them.

Such ideas as these may well be incorporated in copy prepared for Memorial day advertising, in which the breadth of appeal should be emphasized. Not only is the day's significance broader than it used to be, but this year, since Memorial day comes on Sunday, the day itself may be said to be broader than usual, with Saturday, Sunday and Monday as the chief selling days. This triple opportunity will both cut down the chances of the day's business being injured by bad weather and give more time for the filling of orders. With these three days to look forward to, the public should be urged both to take flowers to the cemeteries and to make use of them in other commemorative ways.

The Day's Publicity.

The suggestions given in The Review April 22 in connection with Mothers' day advertising apply in large part to the campaign for publicity for the later day. Both days have a depth, as well as a breadth, of appeal which will lead to much unsolicited, but effective publicity, from pulpit and press particularly. Most of the paid advertising will be in newspapers and a large part of that will be inserted on a coöperative basis by groups or organizations of florists. In Chicago the Allied Florists' Association of Illinois, which is not yet three months old and has already conducted a strong advertising campaign for Mothers' day, has voted to spend $2,000 for Memorial day advertising. Organizations in other cites are also taking steps to bring before the public the special significance of flowers on that day. In planning the advertising the large opportunity for telegraph delivery business should not be overlooked. The florist will often be called upon to act for someone who is prevented by distance from providing the memorial token in person.

Window displays will be an important factor in the campaign for business. While things military are not likely to be so fully represented in Memorial day windows this year as in 1918 and 1919, the recent war is still of course the dominant fact in the minds of those who have been bereaved by it. The flag under which the Americans died is certain to appear in the large majority of window displays for this day. While the new day of world peace for which they fought may be unexpectedly slow in coming, a suggestion of a rising sun, of rising hopes, of new joys blossoming from the memories of old joys, may be worked into the scheme. The best products of the designer's skill in wreaths may be used as effective elements in the scheme.

The Decoration on the Grave.

Wreaths, too, are sure to be in large demand for decoration on graves or at the foot of monuments. In the past there has at times been disagreement between cemetery companies and the trade, directly or through lot owners, as to the respective rights of the companies and of outsiders in the decoration of the graves. This, however, has had little or nothing to do with the use of cut flowers on the graves, being concerned rather with bedding, the planting of shrubs and other work which might require supervision in order to secure a comparatively uniform scheme of ornamentation. But Memorial day trade is chiefly in cut flowers and small designs, which, being temporary, would have no permanent effect on the cemetery's general decorative plan.

Tying up with Window.

While wreaths are probably the most nearly permanent, as well as the most economical, way of using cut flowers for Memorial day, sprays of flowers are likely to find especial favor with those who object to any formal design, even that of a circle, and who think that flowers by themselves can most fitly express the spontaneous feelings characteristic of the day. Yet wreaths have a simple effectiveness and also give the florist a freedom in the use of stock, which make them a most important feature in the decorations to be used for Memorial day.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Eureka, Cal.—The meeting of the creditors and stockholders of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries called for April 19 was duly held in the main office at Eden. It was heavily attended by stockholders and also by a large number of the creditors either in person or represented by their attorneys. At this meeting G. Vanden Abeele presented a report covering his first year's operations as receiver. In a condensed form the essential facts presented were as follows:

Total sales of nursery stock and bulbs.	$135,506.06
Total expenses paid, including labor, material and miscellaneous.....	115,139.41
Balance	$ 20,366.65
Operating expenses due but not paid..	13,765.07
Profit on operation	$ 6,601.58

As that portion of the business devoted to the production and sale of Dutch bulbs was operated at a loss of $6,489.29, the profit on nursery business amounted to $13,088.80. In addition to the profit on operation, the inventory of plants, figured on the same basis as last year at a conservative valuation, at least one-third less than catalogue price, shows an increase of $41,172.87. The net result of the meeting was that a committee of five was appointed, consisting of James W. Henderson, L. E. Mahan, S. H. Nilsen, Geo. C. Jacobs and C. F. Geitney, to represent the creditors and to devise the best ways and means for conducting the business another year. Since then several meetings have been held, attended by this committee and the receiver, and it has been decided to dispose of the bulb farms at McKinleyville and other properties, leaving the elements for carrying on a purely nursery business; that is, the main Eden nursery, at Eureka, and the distributing point and branch nursery, at San Jose. The receiver offered, provided the plans to furnish the necessary operating expenses can be carried out, to set aside fifty per cent of all cash received from sales of nursery stock during the coming season and to deposit this fifty per cent in any Eureka bank, where it will be subject to the control of the creditors' committee and be used only for pro-rata payments to the creditors who are unsecured at the date thereof, subject to the approval of the Superior Court of Humboldt county. If sales for the next twelve months are no greater than the sales for the last twelve months, or $135,506.06, this plan would result in the payment into the creditors' fund of $67,753.03. The fifty per cent which is to remain in the receiver's hands is expected to cover operating expenses for a greater portion, if not all, of the coming year.

SALT IN WHITEWASH.

Where it is customary in the summer months to whitewash greenhouse glass to keep off some of the hot rays and it is necessary to clean the glass in the winter time, usually causing hard work to get it off, a mixture can be made which can be removed easily by putting one gallon of common salt in a barrel of whitewash.

CO-OPERATIVE WAY WINS

ILWAUKEE'S WIRE WINDOW.

Made Mothers' Day Success.

ney are apt to tell you in the ropolis of Wisconsin, if you appear e a credulous person, that the name, vaukee, is a native Indian word ning coöperation. Then they will eed to prove the right of that city ch a cognomen. To which you will dily agree. The points in that f are several, provided mainly by sts.

irst of all, there is coöperation ng different industries. In bygone —gone since July 1, 1919—Milwau- was famous for a beverage now, to ntents and purposes, extinct in its tine glory, only sad and wan imita- s and violent substitutes remaining. When the handwriting predicting its demise appeared on the walls, another industry undertook the glorious task of spreading the city's fame. It was altogether fitting and proper that to an industry whose product had generally a cheering effect on mankind, another profession should succeed, in this fame-spreading work, whose commodity likewise gladdened the heart of humankind.

Hopes Where Hops Grew.

When hopes filled the place of hops in the life of the citizens of that city, the task of maintaining its world-wide fame devolved upon new shoulders. They were willing ones and strong ones. They belonged to florists.

Already had the trade in that city banded together in its advertising club, working on a plan for united publicity that was destined to become the pattern of many more. As the success of this plan became greater, its fame spread throughout the country, and now the Cream City—so named for the one-time color of its residences, not for superiority over skim-milk metropolises—has attained a name for itself quite aside from the brown beverage that once advertised it.

Not content with merely devising the plan that achieved so much note, the florists of that city have carried their bent for coöperation and for advertising to lengths unparalleled. So far as the coöperation is concerned, the trade there is likely—unless copyright laws forbid—to steal the name of Philadelphia as the community of fraternal affection. And so far as advertising is concerned, the achievements of the Milwaukee publicity experts speak for themselves—as do also some of the experts, before florists' clubs of other cities.

More of Same Thing.

Now there is a new achievement in Milwaukee, new though merely the result of more of the same old thing, publicity and coöperation.

For Mothers' day the eight F. T. D. florists joined together and, securing the coöperation of the Western Union Telegraph Co., staged an elaborate display in the latter's office, at 116 Wisconsin street. The illustration shows only part of it. Pedestrians crowded to see it closely during the week of May 3 to 9. Along the front ran a wire, a section of the Chicago-Milwaukee line, over which messages came into the office. This was the telegraph company's contribution, in addition to the window space. A map of the United States in the center called attention to telegraph delivery facilities of florists. Placards told the spectators something of the service they might obtain in their flower store. Baskets, vases and pots of flowers gave a distinctly floral appearance to the telegraph company's window. The expenditure by all the florists amounted to a total of approximately $200.

At the same time the advertisement reproduced on page 18 appeared in the daily papers, to reach that part of the public which had not seen the window.

Striking Results.

All of the florists who participated in the display tell of noteworthy returns in the shape of telegraph orders for Mothers' day. Outgoing orders were ten times the number of those coming in, they say. One store, which had an average telegraph business, not the largest, sent out 140 orders, averaging better than $4 each. Others, while not presenting exact figures, put the total higher.

From the achievement of these Milwaukee florists comes the opportunity of the trade in other cities to do likewise. The Western Union Telegraph Co. is freely coöperating with florists in boosting their service and offices in other cities will doubtless aid the trade as much as in Milwaukee. Though Mothers' day was a particularly opportune time to stage such a window, it may be done at any time. Florists might enliven any week by a campaign for telegraph orders. Even though it were not so productive of immediate results as a holiday window, it would do much toward public enlightenment and education regarding the telegraph delivery of flowers.

ROSE GARDEN PILGRIMAGE.

The summer meeting of the American Rose Society will be held at Washington, D. C., June 2. All visitors are expected to register at the store of Gude Bros. Co., on F street, between 9 and 10 a. m. Promptly at 10 o'clock the party will proceed by automobile to the Department of Agriculture to pick up any others who may have registered at the department's main building. The party will then proceed to the garden for an inspection, two hours being allowed for this. There will be no speeches at the garden, these being reserved for the banquet, which will follow later. At 12 o'clock the party will be taken to Twin Oaks, where, as in former years, an enjoyable time will be spent, two hours being allowed. The banquet will follow and at this function certain prominent members will uphold the oratorical traditions of the society. The report of the judges will be presented at the banquet. At 4 o'clock the party will be conducted to the site of the show garden, which will be dedicated with appropriate speeches. Those in charge have prepared a program well provided with entertainment and it behooves the members of the American Rose Society to encourage those in charge of our national rose garden by attending the meeting. There is going to be a larger attendance than in any previous year in history. Are you going to attend the banner meeting and partake of the joys and pleasures of this feast of roses?

ST. LOUIS SPRING SHOW

ST. LOUIS FLOWER SHOW.

Held at Botanical Garden.

The first annual flower show given by the Garden Club of St. Louis opened in the floral display house at the Missouri Botanical Garden May 15 and closed May 16; it was a large success in attendance and exhibits. The admission was free to the public and from the opening to the close the big display house was taxed to capacity.

The amateur section in the perennials, annuals, house plants and vegetables was surprisingly large, with all sections well filled.

Schedule B was for commercial growers and retailers; the classes for the latter were noncompetitive. The entries were not so large as those of the plant and cut flower exhibitors. The latter section was open to any grower within twenty-five miles of St. Louis.

Retailers' Exhibits.

In the retail exhibit, that of the Mullanphy Florists was voted the largest and best display. It consisted of large vases, baskets and cut flowers. The stock used was of the best quality and drew many compliments from the visitors and the trade. The display was in charge of Nat Kingsley and Arthur Ellison.

A table decoration by Fred H. Weber elicited many favorable comments. So did the one exhibited by Windler's Flowers.

Grimm & Gorly showed a large floral design of flowers and fruit and a bouquet for a tin wedding.

The Blossom Shop exhibited a bride's bouquet of valley with shower effect, which was highly commended, and that of C. Young & Sons Co. also had many admirers.

Joseph Witek showed two splendid baskets of choice cut stock and fine workmanship.

Miss M. Carroll and Charles Meur also exhibited excellent filled baskets.

Window boxes and hanging baskets exhibited by W. H. Kruse, C. Young & Sons Co., the Bourdet Floral Co. and the Mullanphy Florists were excellent in the arrangement and selection of plants.

Blooming Plants.

In section B, which included blooming plants of commercial growers, the entries were small, notwithstanding the good money prizes. John Steidle took first prize on twelve plants of Begonia Chatelaine. Philip Goebel, Jr., was first on twelve plants of callas in bloom. Frank Fillmore was the most successful exhibitor, with eleven firsts on the following: Twelve plants of geraniums, twelve plants of fuchsias, twelve plants of heliotropes, twelve plants of pelargoniums, specimen plant of marguerite, specimen plant of begonia, specimen plant of fuchsia, specimen plant of dracæna, six plants of calceolarias, best collection of coleus, and the special prize of the St. Louis Florists' Club for the best and largest collection of potted plants.

In section C, W. H. Kruse was first on the following: Twelve palms, specimen palm, twelve Boston ferns and specimen Boston fern. The Bourdet Floral Co. was second on specimen Boston fern.

Cut Flower Prize-Winners.

Sections D to K were for cut flowers. The prize-winners were as follows:

CARNATIONS.

Next Year to Be Better Still.

The judges for the exhibition as a whole were as follows:

Commercial growers' exhibits—F. J. Fillmore, F. H. Weber and W. J. Pilcher.

Vegetables and fruits—H. C. Irish and A. H. Hummert.

Amateur exhibits—G. H. Pring, L. P. Jensen and Jules Bourdet.

At the close of the show the management of the exhibition and the officers of the Missouri Botanical Garden expressed great satisfaction at the result of their first attempt and a vote of thanks was extended to all who took part and helped to make this show the success that it was. It was promised that next year even greater efforts would be made to encourage the retailer and the commercial grower.

MISSOURI FLORISTS ELECT.

Hold Annual Session.

The Missouri State Florists' Association held its annual meeting May 15 in the lecture room at the Missouri Botanical Garden, with an attendance of twenty-five, all local members except L. H. Archias, Sedalia, Mo., secretary, and P. A. Manson and H. C. Riker, of Pleasant Hill, Mo.

In the absence of President G. A. Kaupp, of Nevada, Mo., Frank A. Windler, vice-president, presided over the meeting.

Secretary Archias stated that this was the first meeting of the association since it was organized July 3, 1916, and that this meeting was called to revive interest in the association, which could be accomplished with work by the members in all parts of the state if they would only put their shoulders to the wheel.

J. F. Ammann, who was the secretary of the Illinois State Florists' Association for a number of years, was present and made an interesting talk, giving sound advice on inside work which has to be done to make an association of this kind a success.

Prof. H. C. Irish, Jules Bourdet, H. C. Berning, W. A. Rowe, F. A. Windler and A. H. Hummert all responded with good talks for the association's success.

New Officers.

The election of officers resulted in the choice of the following members for the various offices: President, L. H. Archias, Sedalia, Mo.; vice-president, W. A. Rowe, St. Louis; secretary, J. J. Beneke, St. Louis, and treasurer, P. A. Manson, Pleasant Hill. The new officers were at once installed. It was voted that the chair appoint twelve vice-presidents from all parts of the state.

It was decided by vote that the association should meet again this fall in Kansas City, at which time an exhibition of flowers would be held, and that the president, secretary and treasurer make all advance arrangements for this meeting and exhibition.

Several new members were elected to membership. The meeting then adjourned to meet again subject to a call from the president, with the date and place of meeting. J. J. B.

SHOW WINDOWS TALK.

The show window, the silent salesman of flowers, is one of the most important details of an up-to-date establishment. It truly "Says It with Flowers" to the passers-by and gives them an idea of what they want. If the people passing by a well decorated window every so often are not made flower buyers, newspaper publicity will never make them. In keeping with the ultra-modern store which Grimm & Gorly, St. Louis, Mo., have recently built, they have paid particular attention to the window, as the accompanying illustration will show. The window must have the power of creating the desire for the product and Grimm & Gorly make it a point that their window, although one of the best in construction, shall not lack suitable decorations.

The Market.

The market continues to be fair. It is not possible, as yet, to make shipments to all points by express, but conditions appear to be improving. As far as the cut flower market is concerned, stock in general appears to be fairly plentiful, the quality keeping up remarkably well. There is a heavy supply of Easter lilies on hand, which, unfortunately, do not move as rapidly as might be wished for. The daily shipments of roses are meeting all demands and include excellent stock. Ophelia, which is of excellent color just now, sells well. Columbia, Hoosier Beauty, Sunburst, Ward, Killarney, Premier, Maryland and Martinet are included in the offerings. Snapdragons are in fair supply and of good quality. They sell readily. Carnations are coming into their own again.

Everything available for Mothers' day was cut and scarcely anything was in sight for a few days afterward. The supply of sweet peas keeps up well and excellent stock is seen, for which there is a good demand. Bulbous stock is practically over now and only outdoor stock is seen. Calendulas are in good demand and sell at fair prices. Yellow daisies are quite plentiful, with a medium sale. Mignonette, forget-me-nots, cut primroses and other flowers are all in good demand. There is a good supply of palms, rubber plants, ferns, etc., on hand and sales continue to be good. Cut greens are fairly plentiful and sell well, the demand being about usual.

Much disappointment and anxiety are being felt by a great number of the growers at the continued cold and dull weather experienced in this locality. About two good days of warm weather is all we have had since before Easter.

Greenhouses in which bedding stock is grown each year are filled to their limit and, according to reports from several growers, stock will be spoiled if not moved soon. Scarcely any bedding work has been done as yet and, although the stores are showing good stock, little is moving.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

IS THERE A SOLUTION?

I noticed in The Review of May 6, under the heading, "Open Letters from Readers," one signed by S. S. Skidelsky, relative to Mothers' day prices.

This gentleman calls attention to the fact that prices are high for that day, but does not give any way to prevent this. He states that if there are any profiteers among us inclined to "bleed" the public, we, as a body, should repudiate such actions. I am of the opinion that the majority who believe in the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," give the public all the value they can, based upon the prices charged by the growers. In my opinion, the fault lies entirely with the producers. As an example, carnations were selling under date of May 3 at $1 per bunch of two dozen and rose to $1.50 per bunch May 6 and $2 per bunch May 8, 9 and 10.

We, as retailers, are entirely in their hands and there does not seem to me to be any solution to the problem, except to refuse to purchase when these prices are asked. But when your customer demands this particular flower, you are up against it. Perhaps Mr. Skidelsky can give us some better method; at any rate, I should like to have his opinion. Frank Smith.

MOTHERS' DAY PRICES.

I read with much interest a letter by S. S. Skidelsky in The Review of May 6. I fully agree with him. As I see it, the public spend liberally for all the holidays from Thanksgiving to and including Easter. They pay the price and make no complaint. They realize that during the short days and cold weather it costs more to produce. When it gets to be May, the papers advertise plenty of flowers and at greatly reduced prices; then when it comes to Mothers' day, up go the prices beyond all reason. I am not in a position to say who is to blame, but something is wrong.

Another bad feature is that some growers and perhaps some wholesalers hold the flowers for days before a holiday. I know one grower who would not sell me anything but white carnations from Easter until the Saturday before Mothers' day; that day I wanted white for a special purpose, but he would let me have nothing but colored. Another grower sold me carnations which he claimed were freshly cut, but they did not stand twenty-six hours. To be honest, I have cut out carnations at such times all that I can. My experience is that the higher the price, the poorer the flowers.

Some will say that the price is justified. They will tell you that it costs more to grow now than formerly. That is true, but there is no great difference from one week to the next. When I can buy 18-inch to 30-inch roses for $15 per hundred from a grower all through the winter and others ask $40 per hundred for 16-inch to 18-inch roses at the same time, there is something wrong. This grower supplied me with everything but carnations for Mothers' day at no advance in price; he does not grow carnations. I did not advance the price on anything but carnations. If the grower can do as I have described and add more glass at this time, as he is doing, others make some overcharge somewhere. What he does others should be able to do. What I did for Mothers' day others can do if grower and retailer will work together.

Charles M. Allen.

CLINTON, MASS.

Frank P. Sawyer says that Mothers' day was a big day for him. Everybody has a mother, and it seemed as if everybody remembered her that day, either by sending flowers to her or wearing flowers for her. Telegraph orders were fairly plentiful, but flowers for home delivery went beyond all precedent.

Mr. Sawyer is getting settled in his new store at 190 High street, where he has an attractive place of business. He has engaged the store at 182 High street for his Memorial day trade.

E. W. Breed is having a good spring trade at his Four Ponds nursery and is putting out a good deal of shrubbery. He is laying out and planting the new memorial park at Depot square, which has been planned by the town as a memorial to the soldiers in the late war.

H. E. S.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

The Market.

The trade has experienced a prosperous season. The demand for Mothers' day proved to be greater than ever before. The supply was good, but everyone was sold out long before the demand ceased. The public realized that carnations were not plentiful enough to go around; consequently roses were in fully as large demand as carnations. It seemed that everything that looked like a cut flower was taken. Pot plants and hanging baskets were also sold out. There is no doubt that the business for Mothers' day was from fifty to seventy-five per cent better than that of any previous year.

The bedding plant business is good, but on account of the late season so much work comes at once and must be done in a short time that it makes the season quite strenuous. H.

TATE'S TIPS

LOCAL OPPORTUNITIES.

Illustrated in Baltimore.

That florists are slow at times to arise to their opportunities was never better illustrated than it was in Baltimore last week. Of course, there is some excuse, for they are exceedingly busy at this season, but the instance to which this article is devoted shows the need of eternal vigilance for such opportunities. In the city referred to there is an organization known as the Women's Civic League; the object of the organization is the advancement of domestic conditions in the city. Each year in the early part of May these ladies, who are the most cultured and refined women of the city, hold at the base of the Washington monument, in the heart of the most exclusive residential section, a Flower Mart. Until this year most of the florists looked upon this sale of flowers as simply a fad and, aside from making a donation of flowers to some of their customers who were interested in its management, did not know much about it. But this year a direct appeal was made to the florists, the president of the organization going so far as to appear before the Florists' Club and make her appeal direct. This appeal was not for donations, but for coöperation and help in this work. When the florists found out just what these ladies were doing, they realized that this was no fad, but constructive work, which meant the betterment of the florists' business. And right here let me add that the thing which prompted the florists to join these ladies in this good work was nothing else than the coöperative advertising campaign that is now going on in our city. The florists are becoming experts in the advertising game and are always on the lookout for opportunities to push the slogan, "Say It with Flowers."

Developing Customers.

One of the greatest self-imposed problems these ladies have to solve in the work of their league is to Americanize the foreign element that is now taking possession of every large city of our country. Their claim is that the only way in which this can be done is through object lessons, and the first lesson they are trying to impart is home building; that is, the true American home. In order to do this, they are doing everything in their power to create the love of flowers in the hearts and minds of these people. They are ready to give you object lessons of the success of their plan, of a small flower garden in the back yard of some humble home, which is cared for and cultivated by the members of a family after their day's toil is over, in their effort to win the cash prize that is offered for the best such garden. There are many prizes offered. It is not long, any of these ladies will tell you, before an improvement is noted in the interior of these homes. This is a way to "Say It with Flowers" that many of us had never thought of.

Florists' Partners.

At this Flower Mart these people are permitted to buy their stock of plants at actual cost to the league. The sale is not patronized by the foreign element only, for all classes of people are to be seen at this sale. And everywhere one looked the eye was sure to see "Say It with Flowers" prominently displayed. All over the city there were hand-painted art posters advertising the Flower Mart. On each of these, in the regular script, was the slogan, "Say It with Flowers." It got to be a joke that the Women's Civic League had gone into partnership with the florists. That is just what they have done, in a way, for the president of the league, in thanking the club for its help and co-operation, assured the members that any time they might need the assistance of the Women's Civic League, all they had to do would be to call on them. Think of the assistance such an organization would be to any club in promoting a chrysanthemum show next fall!

Now, the point I wish to emphasize is, get into touch with the women's organizations in your town, not as individuals, but through your clubs. Let them feel that when they need assistance such as that referred to in this article, all they need to do is to visit one of your club meetings. They will feel that they are under obligations to the florists, and when you need the assistance of their organization you will get it.

In conclusion, I want to ask a question: What would any large advertising enterprise have been willing to pay for the privilege that the florists had in the above instance to display the slogan, "Say It with Flowers"? The florists were able to have this privilege at the expense of a little labor, and they had the assistance of a number of women whose services could not have been bought for money. Tate.

DAMAGE BY HAIL.

The illustrations on this page show to what extent the range of John Stevens, Kansas City, Mo., was damaged recently by one of the most destructive hail storms which ever visited that part of the country, the effects of which were reported in the Kansas City news-letter in The Review last week. Not a light was left in his 75,000 feet of glass and the stock in the greenhouses was completely destroyed. The hail beat down the plants so that scarcely a sign of them could be found a short time after the storm was over. He had a fine crop of sweet peas, which would have been ready for cutting this month, a crop of gladioli for June and eight houses of carnations. The damage amounts to about $25,000, with about $4,800 insurance. The range was the result of eight years' labor on the part of Mr. and Mrs. Stevens and the stock was wiped out in fifteen minutes. The structures were uninjured, however, although the hailstones were of sufficient size to pierce shingled roofs of barns and houses. The houses were built by the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Continued cold and unsettled weather has not been conducive to good business, but sales, everything considered, have held up surprisingly well. Prices are naturally a little lower than a week ago, when the Mothers' day buying gave the market a fillip, but declines have not been serious. Roses move a bit slowly and values have declined more than in other flowers. The short-stemmed stock goes at from $3 to $4 per hundred upward, with the better grades reaching $20 to $25 and some fancy stock making a little more. Carnations held at $6 per hundred most of last week, with fancies at $8. They are unlikely to decline between now and Memorial day unless hot weather intervenes.

Sweet peas are still in abundant supply, with little change in prices. Narcissi are now all from outdoors, at $4 to $5 per hundred. Lilies and callas are both somewhat less plentiful. While snapdragons are abundant, they sell well when a too fancy price is not asked for them. Gypsophila elegans sells well at 50 cents per bunch, also myosotis and yellow marguerites.

In cattleyas there is still an ample supply of Mossiæ, also a number of hybrids. Lily of the valley is not in much demand. A little bouvardia comes in and is always quickly sold. Roses, hydrangeas, calceolarias and pelargoniums are the leading flowering plants offered. Pansies, daisies and forget-me-nots in baskets are also meeting with a good sale.

Horticultural Society.

The extreme lateness of the season caused a postponement of some of the classes at the show May 15 and 16. Miniature rock gardens, wild flowers and hardy flowering shrubs will be competed for June 5 and 6. The lecture hall was well filled with exhibits, in spite of the backward spring, and orchids were again a great feature. A. C. Burrage received a gold medal for a magnificent group of odontiodas and odontoglossums, all beautifully flowered. Among the odontiodas were Vuylstekeæ, Bradshawiæ, Iona, Black Prince, Cooksoniæ and Charlesworthii. A few striking odontoglossums were eximium, Jasper, amabile, warnhamense superbum. Mr. Burrage also showed another group of 100 orchids, which included oncidiums, cattleyas, lælias, renantheras, miltonias, phaius, cœlogynes, etc. A cultural certificate was awarded for some splendidly flowered plants of Cœlogyne pandurata and C. Massangeana.

J. T. Butterworth had some nice baskets arranged with well flowered odontoglossums, oncidiums, dendrobiums and cattleyas. Henry Stewart, gardener for Miss C. Warren, had a collection of well flowered show pelargoniums and amaryllis. George F. Stewart, gardener for A. T. Lyman, showed some grand specimen plants, over a yard across, of Calceolarias Stewartii, yellow; Baileyi, reddish terra cotta; Medford Gem, orange, and Lymani, rich red. The last named has not previously been shown and is a gem with great commercial possibilities; it was awarded a silver medal. Mr. Stewart was also awarded by a special committee a gold medal for his grand lot of new calceolarias; this medal was offered by the National Association of Gardeners for the most meritorious novelty staged by one of its members and is now awarded for the first time.

George E. Buxton received honorable mention for his new geranium, Mrs. Geo. E. Buxton, and Hillcrest Farm received the same award for a collection of growing native plants. W. H. Golby and W. N. Craig received the awards for a collection of narcissi and W. H. Golby won first prizes for collection of Darwin tulips and collection of tulips of all classes.

The trustees of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society are planning to hold a great rose show in the spring of 1922 and another big orchid exhibition in 1923.

Calls are being sent out this week by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for the conference of horticultural interests to be held at the Museum of Natural History, New York, June 15, at 10 a. m., to consider a plan of campaign for securing a modification of Quarantine No. 37. Numerous garden clubs, horticultural societies, florists' clubs, etc., will send delegates and this promises to be a real start of a vigorous campaign against the autocratic Federal Horticultural Board.

Various Notes.

William R. Nicholson is cutting 1,000 bunches of his special strain of gypsophila weekly and will have a big Memorial day crop. He now devotes several benches to myosotis and it has proved a profitable crop, netting as much as $1.60 per square foot this season. He has four long beds of snapdragons, pink, white and yellow, and finds no trouble in selling them at good prices. He is at present finishing planting out his houses of chrysanthemums direct from the cutting benches, a great saving of labor compared with potting each cutting off. Some 25,000 carnations will go into the field this week. Mr. Nicholson is cutting a handsome lot of delphiniums and of these he has 10,000 plants in the field for use another season.

J. Eisemann, the Beacon Florist, is doing a remarkably good business and has had some fine wedding and funeral orders recently. He is at present doing a great business in artificial wreaths for Memorial day.

Ernest H. Wilson, assistant director of the Arnold Arboretum, will leave July 8 for a 2-year tour of the world.

Up to and including May 16 we have only been favored with three clear days in May and twelve have been rainy ones. Temperatures continue abnormally low and vegetation is late. The persistent rains keep the ground in such a saturated condition that little planting has been done.

J. T. Butterworth will exhibit an imposing group of miltonias at the next exhibition in Horticultural hall, which comes June 5 and 6. Classes are allotted for rhododendrons, azaleas, irises, hardy herbaceous flowers, hardy succulents, flowering shrubs, miniature rock gardens, etc. The annual peony show is scheduled for June 19 and 20 and the rose and strawberry show a week later.

It would seem as though more artificial wreaths and sprays for Memorial day are being offered this year than ever before. The designs are more tasteful than in former years. That there will be a decided shortage of natural flowers seems a certainty and it would be utterly impossible to serve everyone with them. Then, as many prefer the artificial for this occasion, if florists will not supply them someone else will, and many dry-goods and other stores now feature them prominently. One leading retailer said a day or two ago, "I don't like this artificial business, but people want them and there is more money in them than in natural flowers; so there you are." W. N. C.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

J. A. Swartley & Sons, Sterling, Ill., have opened a temporary store at Dixon, Ill. This custom of opening this store has prevailed for six years and it is in operation until the plant season closes.

The Dixon Floral Co., Dixon, Ill., reports a heavy demand this year for seeds. From the many seeds sold a good number of city lots will produce vegetables.

The Sterling Floral Co., Sterling, Ill., is busy in all its departments. Funeral work has been heavy and, with a big demand for bedding stock, all hands are hard at work.

Raymond De Rycke, who recently bought the greenhouses of Ekstram Bros., Moline, Ill., reports a satisfactory business. He is operating under the name of the Sunnyside Greenhouses & Nursery.

L. Stapp, Rock Island, Ill., is erecting three new houses, which will be ready this summer.

Hensley's Flower Shop, Rock Island, Ill., reports a heavy season in the demand for funeral work. Cut flowers also have been in large demand.

PLANS READY

GROWERS DRAFT CONSTITUTION.

To Be Adopted in August.

Secretary J. F. Ammann has sent out the draft of the proposed constitution and by-laws of the National Flower Growers' Association, which is the name adopted for the new organization begun in January at Chicago when the American Carnation Society met. This draft will be given consideration by the growers of the country, so that it may be adopted or altered when the first meeting is held at Cleveland, at the time of the S. A. F. convention in August. Since the draft is of such length that it cannot be reprinted in full, the important articles are quoted and others outlined. Copies may be obtained from Secretary J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.

The objects of the association are given as "the advancement of commercial floriculture under glass; devising ways and means for the best and most economical way of producing and marketing stock; discouraging unfair competition and encouraging coöperation; to more perfectly combat insects and diseases; to bring about uniform working conditions for labor; uniform grading of flowers and plants; to procure uniformity and certainty in the customs and usages in the trade; to educate floriculturists to better business methods; to devise and carry out ways and means of bettering selling conditions and eliminating the present cause of waste in marketing flowers; to secure a uniform basis of credit and collection of accounts and to promote the interests of commercial floriculturists."

Organization.

The business of the association is to be carried on by a board of directors of fifteen, including the president and vice-president of the association. The members of the board will be chosen at the annual meeting of the association, which comprises the delegates from the local organizations on a basis of one delegate for each twenty-five members. Twenty-five delegates constitute a quorum.

While the president and vice-president are elected by the delegates for terms of one year, the secretary and treasurer are to be chosen by the board of directors, from within or without its own membership as it shall decide, and their salaries also fixed by the board. Directors are to receive $5 for each day's attendance at meetings and for each day consumed in traveling to and from the meeting place and 10 cents per mile one way from place of residence to meeting place.

The annual dues of the national body are provided for as follows:

As annual dues, an amount equal to 50 cents for each 1,000 square feet under glass owned and controlled by members of local organizations shall be forwarded to the secretary of this association by the secretary of each local organization in quarterly installments, March 1, June 1, September 1 and December 1, and shall be deposited in the treasury of this association.

Locals.

The organization is local and is elastic in character, being under the supervision of the board of directors. They are described in Article IX, as follows:

Membership shall consist of units called local associations working under a charter to be granted by this association through its board of directors. Commercial floriculturists desiring to organize a local association may apply to the board of directors of this association for a charter. They shall furnish the board of directors such information as may be required by the board as to number of members, number of square feet under glass operated or controlled by each, etc. The board of directors shall take into consideration the number of floriculturists in the section represented by the applicants and shall fix and determine the number of members requisite to form a local organization in each particular locality and shall designate the territory over which the said local organization shall have jurisdiction.

The annual dues in locals are set at $1 per thousand square feet under glass, with $10 as the minimum fee, thus allowing the local organization half the sum for its expenses.

Statistics.

One provision for carrying out one of the objects of the organization appears in the by-laws. This will make it possible for the association to collect statistics in regard to the greenhouse industry, so much desired in the past. Section 7 of Article X reads:

It shall be the duty of each local organization to have an annual invoice made of the amount of square feet of ground under glass that each member owns. Also, the number and kind of plants grown on the premises. This is to be done once each year between the dates of October 1 and December 31. One copy of such invoice shall be mailed to the office of the national association not later than January 15 following such invoice and one copy is to be kept on file in the office of the local secretary.

The Market.

The business for Mothers' day was exceedingly good; in fact, much heavier than in other years. Although there seemed to be a large supply of cut flowers, there was not nearly enough for the demand. The business this year started Thursday, May 6, and did not end until late Sunday evening, with a large business being done all day Sunday. Combination baskets were good sellers, being composed of pansies, petunias, sweet alyssum, begonias, cinerarias, white marguerites and geraniums. Small baskets were used and the price came within reach of everybody.

Roses were good and were in large demand, especially red and white. The varieties chiefly used were Hoosier Beauty, Milady, White Killarney, Killarney, Sunburst, Ophelia, Columbia, Premier, American Beauty, Russell and Ward. After the red varieties were all sold, Columbia took their place.

There was a good supply of carnations, but not enough. There was no red left for Saturday's trade, as the stock which was available had to be kept back for orders. The pink and white were more plentiful and held out much better, but even at that nearly 30,000 more could have been used. Sweet peas were fine and the supply was equal to the demand, the pink and white selling best. Other flowers used were snapdragons, Darwin tulips, Easter lilies, yellow and white daisies.

The first shipment of peonies arrived in time for Mothers' day. The stock was good and sold well. They came in white and pink. In potted plants the supply was just about right and consisted of hydrangeas, primulas, cinerarias, pelargoniums, fuchsias, begonias, calceolarias, geraniums and Darwin tulips. The rush of funeral work, which never fails at holidays, was much in evidence.

Various Notes.

J. J. Le Borious says that he never had such a clean-up since he has been in business. Sunday, May 9, there was not a flower of any sort to be seen at either of his places. He had a good assortment to offer to the trade, including some fine hydrangeas, Darwin tulips and carnations. Next year he says that he will grow a great many more Darwin tulips for Mothers' day.

The Duluth Floral Co. had a busy time. Shipping orders were unusually heavy and the local trade was much heavier than usual. This firm carried a large stock of cut flowers and plants, but had to cut down on shipping orders to make the stock go around.

The Quality Flower Shop did a fine business, although it complained of shortage of stock. It could have sold a great deal more Sunday, May 9.

William Jaap completely sold out of all kinds of plants. He had some fine hydrangeas and primulas, also some bedding plants in 4-inch pots, which sold well.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE AND WHY

L. R. BOHANNON.

Kansas City can place a mark in the gain column, while Chicago regretfully places one in the loss column, by the announcement that L. R. Bohannon has taken the position of manager of the Kansas City Cut Flower Co., the new firm succeeding T. J. Noll & Co. in the Missouri city. Mr. Bohannon, who has been identified with the florists' trade since 1897, started life at Versailles, Ky., February 5, 1872, and was educated at Woodland College, Independence, Mo. He was married to Miss Eula Allen, of Sedalia, Mo., in 1897 and has two children, Jeanette and Lacy R., Jr. He established the Bohannon Floral Co., operating a retail store in Chicago's downtown district, in 1907, and has since been its head. He was the first president of the Chicago Retail Florists' Association. His partners in the Chicago establishment, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart, will remain as managers.

Houston, Tex.—The Houston Floral Co. was recently incorporated with a capital stock of $35,000. The incorporators are Paul M. Carroll, R. R. Carroll and L. M. Carroll.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—Jessie T. Morgan, who has five acres here, is planting the land as fast as possible for cut flowers, expecting to cater particularly to the tourists' trade.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

FORCING production up is a better policy than forcing prices down.

THE weather man has not shown himself partial to florists this spring.

LAST autumn's prediction of a scarcity of plants this spring has proved true.

HARD winter and late spring have combined to put a crimp in the bedding plant trade.

DON'T stop the season at Memorial day. You can do plenty of business during the summer.

THE cold weather is holding back the outdoor crops usually available for Memorial day.

GROWERS should get ready all the stock they can for Memorial day. The supply promises to be none too large.

So rapidly have we progressed in the publicity campaign that now the trade is to have its own advertising movies.

"SAY It with Flowers," read a girl from the lettering on the Chicago florists' float. "I wish," she sighed, "that some one would say something to me."

IF you can't make your business attractive to your sons, how do you hope to make it attractive to employees? The trade must do both in order to keep on growing.

LATE freezes, cold weather and shortage of help are cutting down the supply of peonies to be available at Memorial day. Looks like another shortage of stock for that holiday.

WITH third-class mail lying in post-offices two or three weeks undelivered, the use of circulars is losing much of its popularity and trade papers have enjoyed a corresponding gain in favor.

A SURPRISINGLY large percentage of the trade now pay all bills in full each month, in marked contrast to the custom before the war. In that respect at least there has been a distinct gain to all.

THE breakdown of the railroads threatens the life of all industry. If growers can not get coal and publishers can not get paper, all will be in the same boat, including labor, which will be out of a job.

Now is the time to put up the S. A. F. billboard to catch automobilists' eyes this summer.

EVERY florist should urge his customers to plant gardens this year. There is still time.

IMITATION is the sincerest flattery. A Chicago bank is indulging in it by the use of a slogan reading, "Say It with a Savings Account."

HOLIDAY SHORTAGE.

Another holiday, the last of the big spring days, is in the offing and still the bountiful supply of flowers that should come at this time of year is not at hand. One expects a shortage at Christmas and perhaps at Easter, but this year Mothers' day and now Memorial day sees no abundant supply.

The weather is largely responsible. The backward spring, late frosts and devastating storms have curtailed the outdoor flowers usually counted upon for Memorial day. The greenhouse crops are, because of the dark weather, backward too.

And the scarcity of labor is also partly accountable. Outdoor stock has not been so largely planted as in some other years because sufficient help is not available. Peony orders are restricted in some localities because hands enough cannot be obtained to cut the blooms that fill the fields. The pinch in greenhouse help is known to all.

Flowers are going to be in such demand at Memorial day that prices are likely to go up a notch or two. But retailers should not allow the public to place the blame for the increase on the holiday. See that it is charged to the factors that are most responsible, the weather and the scarcity of labor. The public and the press should not be permitted the idea that holidays cause the flower shortage this year. Florists should set them right.

FREIGHT TIE-UP HALTS COAL.

The situation resulting from the switchmen's strike in the railroad yards of the principal cities has been steadily becoming worse. Florists in some places are unable to get coal and cannot extract promises or predictions from fuel dealers as to when a supply will be available. No alleviation has been seen in the freight tie-up and embargoes continue to prevent shipments into the big cities.

In the present circumstances the only ray of hope comes in the appeal of the railroad officials to the interstate commerce commission to take action as it has done in previous emergencies. Orders from that body are expected which will give priority to food, fuel and perishable commodities. In that event cars of coal will be among the first to move and if the florist will make representations to local railroad authorities, showing the necessity of his having fuel, there is little doubt that he can get it, just as he did in previous emergencies. The only hope at present lies in such a course, for the deliberations of the wage board, on whose action a settlement depends, are not expected to end until sometime in June.

Not only does the present tie-up deprive florists of their present supply of fuel, but it will also make the coming season's supply costlier. Production of late has been much below normal, since the coal cannot be moved from the mines. Consequently, the available quantity for coming use will be smaller and the price will continue to climb. A coal trade journal in speaking of the black fuel outlook stated last week: "Spot coal is selling throughout the country at prices $1.50 or more higher than those that obtained under normal conditions. While this has been the case the last few weeks in the east, the west has now joined the upward price march and the country can expect to pay abnormal prices for coal until better transportation facilities permit a production higher than that possible at present, which now averages twenty-five per cent of normal capacity."

EARNING A COMPLIMENT.

Since the time, several years ago, when a half-dozen florists in a city joined in a page advertisement for a holiday, The Review has strongly encouraged coöperative advertising, believing it to be one of the greatest factors in the trade's advancement, combining two powerful forces, advertising and coöperation. When Milwaukee undertook its pioneer plan, now familiar to the trade throughout the country, its possibilities were recognized for what they have later proved to be, and The Review reproduced the Milwaukee florists' first coöperative advertisement, with a story of the organization which they had formed. As the coöperative idea spread to other cities, The Review lent the new movements its aid, both by contributing information regarding previous plans and by giving liberal space to accounts of the undertakings. Three months ago, when several more cities were talking of coöperative advertising, The Review invited the active leaders in the three cities whose plans had achieved decided success—Milwaukee, St. Louis and Buffalo—to tell readers in detail of the working of the scheme in their communities. These articles proved highly helpful to the men organizing campaigns in other cities. Since that time coöperative advertising has advanced more rapidly than ever before, Chicago and Baltimore adding decidedly to the trade's achievements and other cities making progress towards coöperative campaigns. Aside from permanent campaigns, there were at Mothers' day more coöperative advertisements run in newspapers this month than ever before.

Beyond its satisfaction at the spread of the coöperative advertising idea, The Review finds it pleasant to receive such a compliment as was tendered at the meeting last week of the Florists' Club of Baltimore, when the chairman of the advertising committee proposed the following resolution, which was unanimously carried:

That a rising vote of thanks be extended to the editors of The Review for the splendid way in which they have coöperated in the advertising campaign and for their free use of space in its behalf, and that the secretary be instructed to write them and inform them of the club's action.

In transmitting the resolution, the secretary, after remarking that his eyes "were opened during this discussion to the educational work The Review is accomplishing among the florists in better business methods," made the statement, "It certainly makes one feel that one's efforts have not altogether been in vain." It certainly does.

OBITUARY

Herman Niessner.

Herman Niessner died at his home in Johnstown, Pa., April 28, after a ten days' illness. He was 68 years of age. Mr. Neissner was born in Austria, came to this country in 1876 and was a resident of Johnstown for more than forty-two years. His wife died in 1917. He leaves four children.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The market last week was fairly satisfactory; supply and demand were nearly equal, making clearances easy except in one or two lines. Some heavy arrivals of outdoor lilacs are responsible for a little disturbance among some lines, which is not an unusual thing at this time of year. Peonies from the south are arriving, but do not seem to excite much interest, the tight condition of the flower heads not making them particularly attractive. Large quantities of tulips and daffodils continue to arrive, but move fairly well. Much of this stock is from frames.

At the beginning of the week arrivals were not particularly heavy and the demand was nothing to boast about. Roses are not overplentiful, but sales are light. American Beauty specials hang fire at $50 per hundred, the asking price for the best. Hybrid teas are not particularly active in movement, but prices remain about the same as in the previous week, except in the top grades, which are slightly lower for some varieties.

Carnations are abundant and are not in great demand. Prices obtained are scarcely normal under the new conditions, the range being $3 to $5 per hundred for the general run of stock. A few days of bright, almost warm weather have seemed to bring on crops.

Cattleyas are not quite so plentiful as they have been, and the demand is rather weak. A few of the gigas variety bring as much as $100 per hundred, but the general run, which is largely made up of Mossiæ, moves at $25 to $50 per hundred. Gardenias are plentiful, most arrivals being of poor quality. Selected flowers bring $2 per dozen; the rest go at any price obtainable.

Frame stock adds considerably to lily of the valley arrivals and movement is slow at $1.50 to $6 per hundred sprays. Easter lilies are in good supply and move within a range of $8 to $12 per hundred. Callas are bringing 75 cents to $2 per dozen.

Sweet peas are abundant, although the fine stock seen two or three weeks ago is no longer in evidence. Short-stemmed stock clears at 35 cents to 50 cents per bunch, with the best grades at $1 to $2.

Miscellaneous stock is in heavy supply and much is sacrificed to effect clearances. Antirrhinum is particularly abundant and fine stock clears at as low as 50 cents per bunch, poorer grades going at prices down to 20 cents. Irises, mignonette, white and yellow daisies, calendulas, pansies, myosotis, delphiniums, ranunculuses, candytuft, centaureas and cornflowers are prominent among the offerings. Fruit tree sprays and sprays from flowering shrubs help to swell the list of arrivals.

Various Notes.

The subcommittee on the schedule for the 1921 flower show met Friday evening, May 14, and settled upon a preliminary schedule which will go out in a few days. The premiums offered cover plants only; cut flower classes are to be arranged for later.

Louis Raptis, the retailer at One Hundred and Forty-ninth street and Third avenue, sailed April 12 for Greece, to visit his parents, and will be gone some time.

E. J. Fancourt, of the S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia, was a recent visitor.

HARTFORD, CONN.

The Market.

The weather conditions for this part of the country are unseasonable. We have had rain almost continually and the temperature has been below normal, causing a scarcity of flowers. The demand holds up well. Spring weddings are taking place in rapid succession and keep the florists busy most of the time. Sweet peas, iris, calendulas, snapdragons and roses are the main items at present. Carnations are unusually good in both stem and color for this season of the year.

Mothers' day was a great success in Hartford. The demand was the greatest we ever had. The Florists' Club of Hartford placed advertisements in the newspapers calling attention to the facts that prices would be about normal and that other flowers besides carnations were just as appropriate. This enabled us to sell all kinds of flowers and not only the usual white carnation. Saturday, May 8, was stormy, but the demand was good in spite of the weather.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club of Hartford held its regular meeting at the City club Tuesday evening, May 11. After a steak dinner the business meeting was held. It was decided to spend about $300 for newspaper advertising for Memorial day. The work of placing the annual assessments for the coming year was left unfinished until the next meeting. The entertainment committee was instructed to proceed with the plans for the annual club picnic. It reported that ladies' night was a success financially and otherwise.

The club had the great pleasure of having Max Schling, of New York, as its guest. Mr. Schling came prepared to talk on the uses of flowers. He brought a large box of flowers, baskets and ribbons and proceeded to show that he could work and talk at the same time, for he explained clearly each part of the work as he did it. He said that the foundation of good business might be placed in three divisions, service, salesmanship and advertising. He told of some of his experiences when he first started to build his business, which were amusing. The methods he used and the baskets created were unusual and beautiful. Mr. Schling's talk was instructive and was much appreciated by the club.

Wallace Pierson, a member of the club, gave a talk on the National Flower Growers' Association. He told of its start, its work and its object.

Various Notes.

George Lane said that if Saturday, May 8, had been a good day he would have had to sell the signs off the front of the store.

At John Coombs' stores business was the best ever. The stores looked like brokers' offices by the way telegrams were being received.

George G. McClunie did a big telegraph business and his regular trade was the largest he has ever experienced. He was sold out.

The Volz Floral Co. did not open at all Sunday, May 9, having cleaned out Saturday.

Andrews Bros., of Bristol, had to lock the doors at 11 o'clock Sunday morning to keep the crowd out.

Robert Marchant & Sons report the best business they ever had for Mothers' day. Business has been excellent all the season.

Edmund Pehl has moved into a new store. It is much larger than his old one and will enable him to care for his increased business.

The bedding stock at Mrs. Newton's greenhouses is in excellent shape.

Mr. Ruddle has been unusually successful with his carnations this year.

The McManus Posey Shop reports that business is good. A fountain in the window is attractive. G. B. M.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

May thus far has been possibly the best business month in the history of the Chicago market. Not only did Mothers' day business make a splendid new record, eclipsing Easter and equaling Christmas for many, but the week following Mothers' day was unexpectedly good. There was a brisk demand throughout and the supply of stock was unusually small for this season of the year, with the result that prices were excellent and the week proved one of the best ever recorded in May. The present week opened with bad weather and there was some accumulation of stock, but it is thought we are now too near to Memorial day for any break to occur. Indeed, the market is rising, for the orders coming in for May 30 are larger and more numerous than ever.

There is no real shortage of flowers unless it is of valley. Everything else is in supply adequate to the demand, but not in such oversupply as is usual at the middle of May. The three principal items are roses, carnations and sweet peas. The peony has not yet assumed its usual commanding position in May. The weather has been too cold for any of the outdoor flowers and has been of great influence in holding back the crops of indoor stock. In the rose section it is noted that there are increased supplies of short-stemmed flowers, some of which are of such low grade that they are scarcely salable even on so good a market as we have been having. This is particularly true of Milady, a rose which does extremely well in the hands of a few growers and extremely poorly in the hands of the majority. The leaders are Russell, Premier, Columbia and Ophelia; the rest are insignificant by comparison.

The carnation growers are not cutting the usual quantities for this time of year, but they are getting much better than the usual prices and doubtless are taking in more money than ever before was the case in May. The strength of the present market is making dealers cautious about booking orders for Memorial day. All thought of 6-cent carnations is abandoned and some houses will not book orders at less than 10 cents, though the majority will agree to deliver assorted colors at $80 per thousand.

The sweet pea is enjoying a season of great prosperity. It has the corsage trade almost to itself, in addition to other fields of usefulness. Jonquils are practically gone. The only bulbous stock now seen is Darwin tulips. There are increased supplies of snapdragon, but the demand is not so strong as it might be. Easter lilies are continuously available and selling steadily; many of them are fine. There are occasional shipments of lilac and other outdoor stock, but the weather has been against all such.

Greens of practically all kinds are scarce. Between transportation troubles and spoilage, ferns are in irregular supply; some days hardly any are to be had and the price has gone to $6 per thousand, a figure not reached in many years. Smilax and asparagus strings have practically disappeared from this market; a little smilax is to be had at 50 cents per string, but there is scarcely any asparagus. Plumosus and Sprengeri are available only in small quantity, the former coming almost exclusively from Florida. Adiantum, too, now comes principally from Florida and there has been little of it all winter. Mexican ivy, which comes from California, where it grows wild, arrives so irregularly and keeps so well that buyers scoop it up at sight.

Peony Prospects.

Weather conditions have been extremely unfavorable for the peony crop and there is quite a little difference of opinion as to what Memorial day will bring forth. The Tennessee crop has come and gone. Sarcoxie is out of it for the season, because of the heavy hail storm. At Carbondale and Alton, whence come large quantities of peonies in a normal season, it is said the weather has resulted in blasting nearly half the buds. Evansville and Grayville report large crops, but there is a labor shortage and it will not be possible to cut and ship the usual number of flowers. The season is at least two weeks late at most of the points mentioned and, instead of this being right now the height of the peony season, only small quantities are coming in. Some of the largest growers have not yet cut a flower.

From these facts wholesalers think that the supply for Memorial day is likely to be much smaller than usual. Of course a great deal depends on the weather, but the arrival of warm weather would be likely to bring the crop on so fast that it could not be handled with the reduced labor available. Consequently wholesalers are withdrawing their lower quotations.

Allied Florists Meet.

The father himself of "Say It with Flowers" gave the local trade his paternal blessing at a meeting of the Allied Florists' Association of Illinois in the Hotel Randolph Thursday evening, May 13. That it deserved his benediction was shown by the progressive report of the secretary, H. V. Swenson, indicating that the association then had a membership of 423, of which eighty-one were last month's increase and represented a spontaneous growth rather than the result of any special campaign, for which the officers had been too busy. The assessments for March, the first month of the campaign, totaled $3,176.59, with $350 more expected to come. Mr. Swenson told of what had been done to forestall or counteract Miss Jarvis's propaganda against the use of flowers Mothers' day.

George Asmus, the president, was in the chair and announced that the directors of the association had decided to spend $2,000 to advertise flowers for Memorial day. There was some discussion of a suggestion to have a 4-minute speech campaign in the motion picture theaters as part of the association's coöperation with the Chicago Tribune in raising money to decorate the graves of American soldiers in France; it was agreed that this suggestion should be referred to the Tribune.

P. F. O'Keefe, of Boston, admitted that he was the originator of the trade slogan, but said that its great value had arisen largely from the way in which the trade had worked together to push it. Then, after commenting upon the importance of the association's work and saying that a trade member who did not join it was "standing in his own light," Major O'Keefe showed, in forceful fashion and with particular instances, how the slogan was winning its way in the public mind. He also indicated, by various advertisements which he exhibited, the extent to which flowers were being used in the advertising of other commodities; the popular appeal of flowers is thus receiving more and more recognition. The economy of advertising and the way in which national and local publicity strengthen each other were also effectively demonstrated. A rising vote of thanks was given Major O'Keefe for his interesting and powerful address.

C. C. Pollworth, of Milwaukee, introduced as the youngest member of the national publicity committee, said that it was hard to understand how anyone could stay out of such an organization as that of the Allied Florists' Association and that it was coming to be a question rather of getting stock than of getting customers. A. H. MacDonald, another representative of Milwaukee, described in glowing terms the coöperative publicity campaign in that city. He emphasized the harmony which existed in the Milwaukee trade and called attention to the fact that their newspaper advertisements were unsigned.

After a discussion of the proportion of the local fund which should be allotted to the national publicity campaign, it was voted to refer the question to the directors for a report at the next meeting. Shortly before the adjournment of the meeting, Dr. A. J. Knapp, of Evansville, Ind., announced, amid applause, that he had been so impressed by the meeting that he would like to join the association and also that he was going home to plant thirty-five more acres of peonies, on the strength of these bright prospects for the trade.

Florists' Floats.

The trade feels itself worthy of some congratulation on the fact that the gold and silver medals for the best decorated automobile trucks in the parade May 14, in honor of the opening of the Michigan boulevard bridge, were won by floats of the Allied Florists' Association and the Fleischman Floral Co., respectively. In view of the large number and splendid variety of the floats in the parade, such commendation is felt to be doubly well earned.

The float entered by the Allied Florists' Association was thought, by the many members of the trade who saw it, to be the most elaborately decorated floral car ever seen in Chicago. The investment it represented at prevailing prices caused considerable comment. It is stated that 50,000 flowers were used. They were contributed by the various wholesale houses and were all good stock.

The work of decorating the car was done by Arthur Weatherwax, of W. J. Smyth's staff, and Peter Miller, from George Wienhoeber's, with able assistance of an executive sort from John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co.

Through the latter agency the truck was borrowed from the H. R. Gibbons Box Co. It was first completely draped with lavender cloth. Along the sides, in large gold letters, was the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," and on an arch supported by two of the columns of roses on each side appeared the words, in smaller gold letters, "Boost Chicago." Cattleyas decorated these arches. In addition to the columns on the sides, roses were used on the front of the float and also filled a huge gold basket in the center of the truck. Heavy festoons of lavender sweet peas were hung along the sides. Inside the truck were big tubs of hydrangeas and boxes containing thousands of loose flowers, which were thrown from the floats by several girls. The car won much applause all along the route from the spectators who watched the 10,000 automobiles go by.

Reburn opened the doors of the garage in the rear of his home as the women left the car. Three men stepped out of the shadows. One struck down Mr. Reburn with a blow from the butt of his revolver. Another seized Mrs. Reburn as she started to run and tore the earrings from her ears, took the rings from her fingers and the lavalliere from her neck. Mrs. Andrews' gloves hid her rings and she was not molested. The loot was worth $9,800 in diamonds and $218 in cash. The police are mystified as to where the robbers got their information that the Reburns were wearing their jewelry."

Mr. Reburn takes the loss philosophically, saying, "We are glad to be alive." With Mrs. Reburn and her mother he started to drive the new Marmon to West Grove, Pa., and Atlantic City, planning to be away three weeks.

ris[illegible]' Club, May 10, to learn how it was carried out.

George M. Geraghty, chairman of the publicity committee, gave an outline of the work. All the growers and all the retailers, except two, contributed willingly to the fund and, in most cases, had the money or checks waiting the committee when the members called. It was one of the most pleasant jobs it had to do and the florists are to be congratulated on the manner in which they pulled together. Large space was used in both the daily and the weekly papers and there is a good balance on hand to start the next campaign.

Several of the florists told of the greatly increased trade and Silas McFadden suggested that a questionnaire be sent to the growers and retailers, suggesting that one-half of one per cent be set aside for advertising. It was decided to ask them if they were willing to contribute this on the basis of the invoices.

A vote of thanks was tendered the publicity committee. Letters from the Dominion Orthopedic and Sick Children's hospitals were read, thanking the club for large donations of flowers.

Mr. McFadden reported on the arrangements for floral exhibits at the Canadian national exhibition. The committee, of which he is a member, representing the florists, is taking up the question of beautifying the Horticultural building and new buildings.

A committee was appointed to look into the question of having flowers put on the graves of the soldiers buried in France.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Moore and her committee, consisting of the ladies of the club who gave an excellent banquet to the 140 florists April 19. This committee consists of L. Waters, E. Simmons and S. A. Frost.

The annual picnic will be held July 14 and a committee consisting of J. J. Higgins, Mrs. Moore, E. Sanderson and E. Simmons was appointed to arrange for the grounds. The picnic will probably be held at Toronto island.

The Hamilton members spoke on advertising and extended a hearty invitation to the members to attend the Canadian Horticultural Association convention at Hamilton in August. They were assured that there would be a record attendance of florists from Toronto.

J. A. Neal was reported ill.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

It was circus week. It was also a bad week in the cut flower market. There was too much of everything. The beginning and the end of the week brought a fair amount of business. The middle of the week was dull. Some of the growers took the occasion to ship their flowers to New York, believing that the renewal of steamer orders would create a better demand over there. It was hard to sell flowers here at times. Prices were so weak that new buyers came into the market. Much stock was carried over despite the fine Saturday.

Indoor sweet peas were plentiful and good. Snapdragon is declining in numbers; so are Easter lilies and callas. There is some nice outdoor valley. Greenhouse-grown gladioli have come. Outdoor lilac is pretty nearly over. There are some nice ten weeks' stocks in three colors and a little delphinium. Laddie continues to bring a better price than other varieties of carnations. Roses are becoming plentiful.

Miss Jarvis and the Flag.

There are a good many of us who do not understand what Miss Anna Jarvis means by advising the wearing of a little American flag instead of a flower on Mothers' day. They know that Miss Jarvis originated the pretty custom here of wearing a flower in Mother's honor. Why, they ask, has she changed to a flag, which seems rather foolish? The published explanation, that flowers are so expensive, hardly seems to explain, because flowers are not expensive. It is only white carnations. The answer to the question is simple; Miss Jarvis is mercenary. When Miss Jarvis originated the custom here, which was the revival of an old English idea, she did it from motives that were wholly unselfish. When the custom grew in popular favor to an extent that neither she nor anyone else had imagined, her ideas changed. Miss Jarvis felt that the florists were reaping a harvest. She wished to share in it. Miss Jarvis asked that the florists raise a fund sufficient to yield her a handsome income for life. The florists generously gave Miss Jarvis a handsome present, but they felt that her request was ridiculous and they did not grant it. Then Miss Jarvis advised the wearing of the flag. So far her advice has had little effect. The real root of the matter is that Miss Jarvis does not understand the laws of supply and demand. She proposed wearing a white carnation. When ten people want white carnations and there is only one white carnation the price will go up. You can't stop it. The remedy lay in the general use of flowers, Mother's favorite flower. Miss Jarvis could not see this. She thought the florists were mercenary. So she became mercenary. When she got all she could, and could not get any more, she grew bitter and tried to undo what she had done.

The Plant Exchange.

The Germantown Horticultural Society held its first plant exchange in Vernon park on the afternoon of Monday, May 10. A table was placed under the trees. It was covered and surrounded by plants and bulbs and roots. People came, bringing their surplus plants and taking away other plants in their place. The idea was to improve the gardens of Germantown by giving them greater variety.

The florists and gardeners contributed generously, so that there was something to start with when the first people came. The high school girls acted as aides, doing the actual work of exchanging under the committee's supervision. The amateur who had a few too many forget-me-nots and wanted a couple of cannas could exchange them; so, also, with the owner of a clump of coreopsis who did so want a rose bush. Toward the end the school children gathered around. They were given encouragement to become gardeners by a judicious distribution of the surplus. The affair was most successful.

Various Notes.

advertising by the association here, papers gave favorable write-ups. fine illustrations were used in advertising, which, without doubt, brought a great many dollars into the florists' shops.

One of the slogans used was others like all varieties of flowers and no doubt this had considerable effect in distributing the sales among all varieties of cut flowers on the market and it also helped the sale of plants, which was unusually heavy.

There was a shortage of colored carnations and medium-priced roses. Geraniums in bloom helped out considerably and thousands of them were sold. The day was equal to Easter in every respect and nearly all florists had to put on additional help, both in their stores and in the delivery service.

Since Mothers' day the weather has been rather cold for this time of the year and little firing is being done, due to the high price of fuel. All coal dealers sent out an announcement, May 1, that they were unable to supply any fuel until navigation opens. Those who happened to have a surplus stock of coal were fortunate, for a number of the trade were entirely without any and the temperature goes down low at night. This, following the close cut for Mothers' day, made stock quite scarce the first part of last week. The market now has eased up considerably and there is sufficient stock to meet the demand.

The delay in planting out bedding stock, due to cold weather, was followed by a rush at the first sign of warm weather. Indications are that everything will be pretty well cleaned up by Memorial day.

Grand Rapids, Wis., and Frank Henry, of New York. P.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

Business has been fairly satisfactory, although the supply of some lines of stock has been larger than the demand. There were more lilies than the market could take up, while there was a glut of sweet peas. Good carnations, however, have been scarce and sold at $8 per hundred, the quality being exceptionally fine. Roses have been quite plentiful, demanding from $4 to $30 per hundred. Sweet peas sell for 25 cents to $1.50 per bunch, depending upon the grade and variety. The supply of home-grown peonies for Memorial day will be short. Tulips, daffodils and narcissi are in good supply.

Mothers' day came up to expectations. On the whole, the retail florists seemed quite satisfied with the results, although it was remarked among the wholesale houses that there seemed less zest than on former occasions.

SOLD OUT; SEND BILL.

It's a short story. Sold out; send bill. But it suggests a pretty solid satisfaction, the kind of satisfaction that is eager to pay a bill for a job well done. And, in one form or another, it comes into the office of The Review often enough to keep the Classified ads constantly changing. Here is one wording:

Please stop all of our ads and send bill, as the Review certainly sells the stock.—George Hummer, Van Horn, Ia., May 9, 1920.

And here is another, from close by the Pacific:

Please send us bill in full for our ad for dahlias and discontinue same at once, as we are sold out of all varieties.—C. J. Groen, Montebello, Cal., May 8, 1920.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

Want and For Sale Department

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Mothers' Day.

Mothers' day this year goes on record as the best yet, better than some holidays which are thought more of and given more attention by retailers and wholesalers alike. This does not apply to local stores only. Wholesalers say that their demand from small towns has been far above that of any previous year, showing that the propaganda of the national society is bearing fruit in out-of-the-way places.

Stock in all lines was scarce and practically all the wholesalers had to cut down on their orders. There was a noticeable desire on the part of all the leading wholesalers to help each other out.

Various Notes.

W. Armacost & Co. have recently finished and planted the new 5-acre addition to the lath houses; this makes a total of fourteen acres devoted to plumosus. F. E. Royston, of this firm, is on a business trip east. He went by way of New Orleans, in order, it is said, to enjoy what the newspaper reporters call the "succulent bivalve," but probably with some other idea as well.

S. Purdie & Co. have the decks cleared for action in alterations to the store, but no information is being given out as yet as to what form these will take. This firm had a fine Mothers' day business.

O. C. Saake is at the old stand and is keeping his end up with funeral work.

Harry Friend, of the staff of Wright's Flower Shop, said that the Mothers' day demand was something entirely different from anything ever experienced before by this firm, a constant stream of wires from the eastern trade supplementing the local work.

S. Murata, of S. Murata & Co., says that their Mothers' day business beat all records. Extra office help had to be taken on, in addition to an enlarged force on the floor.

Since starting a few years ago at Fourth and Hill streets, Peter Brown has worked up a fine business. This thoroughfare has recently been greatly improved.

Fred Dostal, of the Dostal-Wolters Flower Shop, is making a great show in the better class of stock and his business records show it. J. W. Wolters was at the store last week meeting old friends and customers.

At F. Lichtenberg's store some elegant peonies are being shown; this stock, so common in the east, is rarely seen here in good condition.

Tony Tassano has returned from a business trip to San Francisco and says that he found conditions booming in the northern city. He was buying stock for his new establishment at Glendale, but says that some varieties are scarce, notably maidenhair ferns. Everything is progressing finely and Mr. Tassano looks forward to a big cut next season.

Louis Goodfriend, representing Wertheimer Bros., New York, called on the trade last week.

The beneficial effects of the national publicity campaign will soon be increased for Los Angeles by a local campaign, supported by a fund to which every member of the trade is urged to contribute. This will help to make the demand more uniform, so that the growers can afford to grow a more adequate supply of stock.

H. R. Richards.

The Market.

This market has recovered somewhat from the clean-up on Mothers' day, but the weather continues dark and cool and stock in the aggregate is in lighter supply than usual for this time of the year. A strong demand for flowers tends to accentuate the short offerings.

Retail business for Mothers' day was beyond expectations. High prices prevailed and everything was sold out. Several large funerals, together with various spring weddings and other social events calling for a liberal amount of flowers, have forestalled any accumulation since the holiday, although the shipping demand has not been particularly heavy.

Carnations are scarce and the quality inferior. Mothers' day offerings of this flower were more or less unsatisfactory. Owing to the strong association of carnations with Mothers' day and the light supply, everything was sold, good or bad, at high prices, but there have been some complaints since. The outlook in regard to carnations is not considered favorable. Most of the supply reaching this market has been grown by the Japanese and it is noted that many of the growers have recently replaced their carnations, either entirely or partly, with roses.

Roses are the backbone of the market here, heading the list of seasonable stock in both quantity and quality. Outdoor roses, as well as greenhouse offerings, show fine quality and each day sees the supply cleaned up. American Beauties are more plentiful, while there is an especially fine cut of Russell, Ophelia, Columbia and Brunner.

Irises are arriving quite freely. The quality leaves nothing to be desired and they sell well. A few greenhouse gladioli are appearing, which find ready sale. More sweet peas could be used and the same may be said of orchids and gardenias.

In flowering plants rhododendrons and hydrangeas make a fine showing and some especially fine specimens of calceolarias are prominently displayed at the retail stores.

All indications point to a heavy Memorial day business. The shippers have orders on file which will require large quantities of flowers and the local demand is expected easily to take care of all other available stock.

Various Notes.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. decorated the Civic auditorium for the seventh national foreign trade convention, which began its sessions here May 12. Greens, hawthorn and hydrangeas constituted the principal features of the decoration. Fred Bertrand, manager of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., attended the Shriners' conclave at Fresno, Cal., recently. Donald McLaren is visiting in southern California. Miss Greene, who had been with the firm for several years, left to be married to B. B. Kellogg. Miss Irene Galli fills the vacancy.

Work for the funeral of Isaiah William Hellman, Jr., San Francisco banker, caused a rush at several of the florists' establishments, this being the

As far as can be ascertained, all the dahlia growers did well with their tubers this season, the demand from eastern points being particularly strong. The Dahlia Society holds regular meetings and a lecture is given at almost every session on some educational feature of dahlia culture. At the last meeting Arthur Twitchett gave an interesting and instructive talk on dahlia planting.

Avansino Bros. did a good business at their new store on Geary street, opposite Union Square, Mothers' day, and report business holding up well since. They had a fine display of iris last week, which brought many passers-by into the place.

C. Kooyman's wholesale establishment presents an attractive appearance with strawflowers, suspended from hooks in the ceiling to dry, giving the effect of a ceiling of solid flowers. Mr. Kooyman is preparing for a heavy fall business on this class of stock.

Joseph's advertised Mothers' day quite extensively and Mr. Joseph says that the results were satisfactory, many patrons expressing appreciation of the fact that the firm called their attention to this special flower day. Supplementing the newspaper advertising, Joseph's

J. A. Axell looks for a big shipping business for Memorial day, judging from orders and inquiries already on file. In speaking of Mothers' day shipments, he says that everything was satisfactory, with the exception of sending carnations long distances. He has about decided to refuse orders on these flowers for long rides once and for all.

The United Flower & Supply Co. has just received a large shipment of imported plant tubs and baskets and a limited supply of Japanese store lanterns, which are in good demand. This firm calls attention to the fact that a large portion of the baskets used by florists in this country come from the orient; many go east and then are reshipped

The rose show, given under the auspices of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society in conjunction with the regular meeting May 8, brought out a fine showing of roses. The display included both indoor and outdoor-grown flowers. In the former, the E. W. McLellan Co. carried away most of the prizes, having taken first prizes for best vases of Russell, Ophelia, Hadley, Premier and Columbia. J. B. Smith, of Burlingame, was awarded first prize for the best collection of outdoor roses and Pelicano, Rossi & Co. took first prize on the most artistic basket of roses.

A special feature of the spring flower show to be held in the Hotel Oakland, under the auspices of the Alameda County Floral Society, will be an exhibit of over seventy-five varieties of iris, which is being arranged under the direction of F. B. Mitchell, Pacific coast regional director of the American Iris Society. These flowers will not enter in competition for prizes, but iris growers from all parts of the state are expected to contribute their best offerings. The Dean Iris Gardens, near Los Angeles, will be represented, also Carl Purdy, a nationally known iris collector, of Ukiah, Mendocino county. Another special feature will be an exhibit of orchids by J. A. Carbone, of Berkeley, who promises to place over 200 varieties of these plants on display, including specimens from Venezuela, the Philippines, Mexico, Brazil and Central America. M. M.

There was nothing but satisfaction expressed among the trade concerning the Mothers' day business. The good call for Mothers' day was followed by the largest funeral Seattle has ever had on a Sunday. There was enough of nearly all flowers, with the exception of carnations, and the result of the educational advertising was seen in the greater ease in selling the customer some other flowers than carnations.

but when quality is considered there have not been better deliveries this season. Columbia is arriving in good quantities and commands ready interest from the buyers. The deliveries of Cecile Brunner, Bride and White Killarney roses have picked up, with local cuts of Ophelia a little lighter.

The carnations which were delivered for the Mothers' day trade were of fine quality and cleaned up quickly; in fact, several retailers had their supply of carnations moved by telephone orders from regular customers. Spring flowers in baskets and the bright-colored potted offerings were in large demand and there were more baskets sold this Mothers' day than for any previous celebration of this occasion.

The supply of most flowers has been good during the last week, with the exception of roses. Orchids are big sellers, as there has been an increase in the number of social events held and these flowers have been used extensively in table decorations, early weddings and baskets in window displays.

New offerings from growers last week included gladioli, iris, peonies and statice. The purple shade of this latter flower was used in several windows to give an air of novelty and sold freely. Locally grown violets have been in increased supply and all show good length of stem. The cloudy days at the start of the previous week gave poor coloring to former deliveries, but this has changed with the return of spring weather. Lilac blossoms are another local offering which is common and used quite freely. Local iris is not of strong color and for this reason fails to catch the eye of the buyer so quickly as it might.

Various Notes.

A most effective window display was used by the Woodlawn Flower Shop in honor of Mothers' day. The two sides of the show window were covered with canvas painted to resemble the wall of a brick house, having a window in the center of each room. Inside was placed a figure of an old lady, quaintly dressed, seated in an old-fashioned chair, near a spinning wheel. In her arms were a bunch of Columbia roses and in one hand she held a florist's card with a

The Market.

Market conditions are about normal for this time of year. There is a good, steady demand for flowers and the supply is keeping pace with the demand insofar as the indoor stock is concerned, but outdoor flowers are rather slow, on account of weather conditions.

Roses are plentiful and of excellent quality. Tulips are also plentiful and are of good quality this year. A few indoor gladioli have appeared in some of the stores and they will arrive in larger quantities from now on.

The growers are kept busy now filling orders for bedding stock and yard decorations.

Mothers' day was a big day for the local stores. Everyone reports a fine business, much better than last year, and predictions are made that this day will soon be one of the biggest days of the year.

Club Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Portland Floral Society was held May 11, with a fairly good attendance and several visitors. The meeting was decidedly interesting and entertaining. Plans are being mapped out for the decorative feature of the festival center at the rose show in June.

Mr. Darnell, of Cleveland, O., representing the F. T. D., was a visitor at the meeting and gave an interesting talk on the benefits derived through the Dibble & Franklin, of Salem, whose tulips were exhibited at the meeting of the Portland Floral Society, have been experimenting for about five years and now have about 60,000 bulbs. The methods of curing and storing are now occupying their attention and when those have been perfected they feel that they will be able to go into it more extensively. SCHLING MAKES SUGGESTION.

To Combat Propaganda.

The article about that $1 carnation, which appeared recently all over the country in the daily papers, and most likely also in Canada, was something which will not do much harm to legitimate florists who have the confidence of their customers, but it will do harm among those who are not flower buyers and from whom we expect to make new customers.

There is no ill wind which does not blow somebody good and if it did do some damage by placing us in a line with profiteers, it does some good also by waking us up and showing us how much more we have to work shoulder to shoulder; how much more we have to prepare to let the public know that we are live wires; that we are prepared to do business in a business way, and, incidentally, help the national publicity fund.

Everyone who has hesitated so far to support national publicity will now jump in and contribute his mite towards the general fund. But there should be an extra fund to counterbalance such occurrences as we have just experienced. We should have money on hand to meet this underhanded propaganda against us.

Emergency Fund.

Florists should not hesitate to send in subscriptions, no matter how small, $1 or $2, or even 50 cents. How many thousands of dollars would we get if each one would only send 50 cents? I know that there are many who would

The Sunny Side of Present Day Memorial Days

As a kid, did you hate Memorial Day?

Next to the first day of school in the fall, I sure did have a grudge against that day.

It seemed so doggone silly to be dolled all up in one's Sunday clothes, and carrying a bunch of peonies or something or other, gather at the school house and then parade up the dusty streets to the graveyard. As if there weren't Sunday afternoons enough to visit graveyards, without wasting the best part of a perfectly good holiday that a fellow could use to so much better advantage going fishing.

Happily for all of us these days—Memorial Day is quite as much in memory of the living as the dead. Which to my notion is quite as it should be.

Sending flower messages to gladden the day for the living was about fifty per cent of our business last year.

Knowing which fact, doesn't it look as if we florists are asleep, not to do more to increase that end of the business more?

Sometimes I think most of us know 'most anything but how to sell more flowers.

If only we had a few more Pochelons to poke us in the ribs, we would all be sending twice the F. T. D. orders to each other.

Which statement may or may not hold a suggestion.

send a few dollars and I, for one, am willing to open that campaign with $100. I hope we shall be followed by others and I propose that such subscriptions should be sent to the different trade papers, which would print the names of the subscribers to this special fund, which should be kept on hand until after the meeting of the S. A. F., where it could be decided in what way such a fund would be utilized for the good of the trade.

As the only constant advertiser in the New York daily papers on a large scale, we necessarily are in contact with the large dailies. When the nefarious report came out we at once phoned them that there was no florist in New York or elsewhere who sold carnations for $1 per bloom. The editors promised to investigate this unwelcome publicity and to enlighten the public as to the real facts. We ourselves advertised in New York city, showing a short article and printing underneath, "Fiddlesticks! We'll give you a carnation free or sell you a dozen for $3." The first advertisement, appearing in the Times, was wonderfully successful. Reprints of this advertisement were sent to 8,000 private families. It also appeared in the New York American, Evening Sun, Sun, New York Herald and others. Adjoining the advertisement was a column of free publicity in the American's editorial style, which we secured on account of this unfair propaganda. It would be advisable for all florists who do advertising in their respective cities to follow this same method.

I remember an incident of some years ago, when Menelik sent the Crown Prince of Abyssinia to visit Washington. One of his body servants met so many well dressed men with a white carnation in their buttonholes that he also, in passing a flower shop, thought he would wear one. His coat somehow didn't have any buttonhole, but Mr. African was not much in doubt where to put his carnation. He remembered his split ears where he used to wear bangles while at home, and the carnation went in. It was too small—not the split in the ear, but the carnation. The florist had to put in four, so that they would not fall out again. The florist asked $1, which the Abyssinian willingly paid.

Is that the $1 carnation which our brother florists in Washington are suffering from? It seems so. The only way to counterbalance such propaganda is to make it ridiculous. We spoke to everyone who is a flower buyer and in almost every instance the answer was, "Why, such a statement is ridiculous. We never paid that price at any time of the year, much less on Mothers' day." The story is for some people who do not know. The only way possible that a carnation could be sold at $1 would be for two fools to meet each other, one selling the carnation, not knowing what he is selling, and the other paying $1 for the carnation, not knowing der way and the stock is going fast; indeed, at the rate the plants are going at this writing, the season will be a short one. It would be well for growers of bedding plants to study the situation and see if it would not be good business to increase their output. Is this increased demand likely to be permanent, and what is the reason for it? It is well to remember that in the last ten years the living conditions of the better class and a large percentage of the middle class have changed. These people are now in the suburbs. Take a trip through Guilford, Roland Park and Ten Hills, or out on the York road, and you will find from half an acre to an acre of ground about each home. These grounds all require bedding plants, and there are more of such homes being built each year. Growers are going to be short of bedding plants this spring. Why not resolve to be prepared for next year? Investigate for yourself, and I am sure you will find conditions that will make an increased production of bedding plants a safe proposition.

season. One of the features of the meeting, and one that is going to bear fruit, was the presence of Mrs. Ellicot Worthington, the chairman of the home garden committee of the Women's Civic League. Mrs. Worthington, in addressing the club, said she could not miss the opportunity to thank the members for the splendid manner in which they had helped the league with the Flower Mart and assured the club members that any time the league could be of service to them, all they need do would be to let the league know. I feel sure that the club will take advantage of Mrs. Worthington's generous offer in the fall. The Women's Civic League will be a splendid help in a fall flower show; the women are organized and know how to handle such a proposition.

Another feature of the meeting was an exhibition of Henry Penn's collection of advertisements. This is a wonderful collection and shows the caliber of the man who does so much individual advertising and yet devotes so much of his time and means to the national campaign. One need only look at this collection to realize that if there is one man in the United States who could get along without national publicity that man is Penn of Boston. A rising vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Penn for sending the exhibit to us.

On motion of Joseph Merritt, chairman of the advertising committee, a rising vote of thanks was extended to the editors of The Review for the space they had so willingly contributed and for their hearty coöperation in the advertising campaign now being pushed in our city.

Mr. Walton entertained the club for half an hour with sleight-of-hand tricks, which were certainly clever and much enjoyed.

The business of the next meeting will be devoted to the National Flower Growers' Association. If Maryland wants to participate in the organization of this society, which is bound to grow, delegates have to be selected to go to Cleveland in August. We will have all of the data to present at the next meeting.

The Advertising Campaign.

The advertising campaign is going along in leaps and bounds; new members are coming into the Associated Florists every day. One of the most conspicuous features of the campaign is the way in which the Saturday advertisement of the $2 box is taking. One firm alone reports that in three weeks the calls for this box increased from two to seventeen. This is certainly a vindication of coöperative advertising, for none of these were sold to regular customers. This means that this advertisement was the means of giving this firm an opportunity to make new customers of seventeen prospects. Everyone should get in and play the game; you can't afford to be wall-flow-
